Navy Invites Public

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Fireworks, patriotic speeches, and music and other traditional features of the glorious Fourth will be available to those greater Washington citizens who are enjoying the holiday near home today.

The largest local celebration of the 171st anniversary of the Declaration of Independence will be the Cavalcade of Freedom at the Washington Monument Grounds, scheduled for 7:30 tonight and expected to draw a record July 4 crowd of 300,000 persons.

For the Navy-minded in the area, nine World War II naval vessels will be at "dress ship" all day at the Naval Gun Factory, with the public invited to inspect them. They will remain through tomorrow and Sunday for the John Paul Jones observance.

Full Day at Takoma Park

Montgomery County's observances in Maryland will center in Takoma Park, where residents will have something to see, hear or do all day, from the beginning of a parade at 9:30 a.m. to an open-air dance at 10 p.m. Neaby Virginia residents, lacking any local July 4 observances, will participate in the District program at the Monument Grounds or celebrate the holiday in other ways.

The Cavalcade of Freedom program, which is free to the public, will feature a fireworks show of 115 pieces, aerial displays and ground sets scheduled for 9:29 p.m.

Early arrival may enjoy a concert of recorded music between 7 and 7:30 p.m. at the Monument Grounds, followed by a concert by the Marine, Navy and Air Forces Bands until 8 o'clock.

Monster Massing of Colors

At that time, more than 300 American and organization flags will be displayed in a monster massing of colors, with more than 35 military and patriotic organizations participating. A flag-raising ceremony, with invocation by Dr. Albert J. McCartney, former pastor of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church and Pledge of Allegiance to The Flag led by P. Y. K. Howat, program chairman, will lead up to the address by Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho).

Beginning at 8:30, after the retirement of the colors, a series of great poems celebrating milestones in our history will be recited by four local radio speakers, against a background of orchestra music. At 9:15, a Navy group will depict scenes in the life of John Paul

Rocky Mountain spotted fever claimed its second victim in the District it was disclosed yesterday when the death of a 10-year-old girl in Gallinger Hospital was reported.

The victim is Mary Agnes Walton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Walton, 4600 G st. se. The child had been sick a week when she was admitted to the hospital Sunday. Her death Wednesday night was diagnosed as from spotted fever caused by wood ticks.

This was the year's ninth case of spotted fever in the Greater Washington area, and the third case reported in the District, including the death of a 70-year-old man May 15.

Besides her parents, the child is survived by a 6-year-old brother, Edward.

Face Up to 6-Year Terms

May and 2 Garssons Guilty Of Conspiracy and Bribery

Henry Garsson — Andrew J. May — Murray Garsson
Jury found that they bought . . . and sold . . . a Congressman

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Andrew Jackson May, Murray Garsson and Dr. Henry M. Garsson were found guilty yesterday of conspiracy and bribery.

They all face prison—a top of six years each—and fines up to $30,000 apiece.

After hearing the case for 10 weeks, a District Court jury took less than two hours to decide that the Garssons bought—and May sold—his office for about $50,000.

That was May's price, the jury found, but he didn't get much out of it. He gave back $40,000 after the investigation got under way.

What the Garssons made on the 70-odd million dollars they got in war business, while their friend May was House Military chairman, never has come out. They have hinted that it wasn't much.

Both May and the Garsson brothers met the verdict with new claims that May got nothing at all, that all the Garsson jobs he did and all the pressure he put on the Army in their behalf were for patriotism and not for pay.

Their chief counsel, Warren E. Magee for May and Charles J. Margiotti for the Garssons, had this to say:

"We never criticize a jury for its verdict. However, we are still convinced of the innocence of Dr. Henry Garsson, Murray Garsson and Congressman May, and we will use every legal process possible, available to us under the laws, to finally establish that these three men, all of whom made such outstanding contributions toward winning the war, committed no crime."

Next week the defense lawyers will ask Justice Henry A. Schweinhaut for a judgment of acquittal.

Truman in Va. For Monticello Speech Today

Crowds Turn Out Along Route to Jefferson's Home

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Charlottesville, Va., July 3.—President Truman led a 17-car motorcade into Charlottesville today at 3:05 p.m. and retired at once to a hilltop estate nearby to rest before delivering a Fourth of July speech tomorrow at historic Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson.

Fifteen minutes after entering the city, he was at "Colle," estate of Stanley Woodward, chief of protocol of the State Department. The trip from Washington, over winding and narrow roads, had taken 3 hours and 5 minutes.

After delivering his address from the east portico of Monticello tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. (EDT), Mr. Truman will lunch at the Colonnade Club at the University of Virginia. Following the luncheon, he has been invited to a cocktail party to be given by Admiral William F. Halsey at the university for correspondents in the President's party.

During his two-day stay here the President will be Woodward's guest in a white Georgian cottage 600 feet above Charlottesville. The house, built in 1940, stands on 210 acres of land given by Jefferson to Philip Mazzei, Italian horticulturist he imported to help with his orchards. Mazzei named it "Colle," Italian for "hill."

Tomorrow's program at Monticello will be opened with an invocation by the Right Rev. Roy W. Mason, bishop suffragan of the Diocese of Virginia. After brief remarks by Frank K. Houston, president of the Jefferson Memorial Foundation, Gov. William M. Tuck of Virginia will deliver an address of welcome. The President will then be introduced by Houston and is expected to speak for 20 to 25 minutes.

As the presidential motorcade rolled deeper into Virginia today, it collected touring motorists at its tail until it extended back several miles along the road. Passing

3 Violators Of Sales Tax Law Caught

Md. Comptroller Says Merchants Were Buying Goods for Own Use

The Maryland State Comptroller's office yesterday turned up the first violators of the three-day old retail sales tax.

They were merchants who were buying goods for their own use but certifying that they were for resale.

Under the sales tax law, merchants buying goods to resell are not required to pay a tax. The tax is collected only once and then from the consumer.

Officials of the comptroller's office said stationery and office equipment were major items purchased with improper "resale certificates."

In the District yesterday, Ralph Goldsmith, chairman of department stores for the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, scheduled a meeting at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday to discuss proceedures to be followed by Washington merchants doing business in Maryland.

Washington merchants like those in Maryland are required to obtain dollar licenses and to collect the 2 per cent tax on all goods they deliver in Maryland.

Maryland retailers who have secured their certificates approached 35,000 yesterday with officials estimating the number eventually will reach 50,000.

July Corn Futures Hit $2.05½ Figure

Chicago, July 3 (AP).—July corn futures advanced to another all-time record high of $2.05½ a bushel on the board of trade today.

Short covering boosted prices. Traders also were influenced by good demand for cash corn and the fact that deliveries from the country continue light. Traders believe farmers are holding their old corn because of uncertainty over the new crop, which has been hampered by bad weather.

Mystery Explained

No TNT, but H2O, in Bombs Dropped on Maryland Village

Wittman, Md., July 3 (Spl.).—Still wary about putting their heads out of doors, inhabitants of this tiny fishing village learned today that the "bombs" dropped here yesterday may have been "duds."

The Glenn L. Martin Co. announced in Baltimore that an experimental plane it had been testing for the Navy lost two nonexplosive, 1000-pound ballast bombs near here yesterday.

The company said its pilots were flying a two-engine Navy amphibian at 9500 feet when the ballast bombs, loaded only with sand and water, broke loose.

The pilots said they thought the missiles went into Chesapeake Bay off the lower tip of Kent Island, about 40 miles southeast of Baltimore.

Wittman is above 5 miles from the lower point of Kent Island, on a peninsula which reaches out into the Bay from Maryland's Eastern Shore.

The company announcement, which did not directly link the accident with yesterday's "bombing" of Wittman, said a further investigation is being made.

Four men were stunned and scratched by debris when a "bomb" shattered the end of a boat repair shed here. A second missile from the sky churned up a crater in a field 50 yards away.

Investigators, led by Capt. C. H. Beery, bomb disposal expert from the Ordnance Division of the Army's Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds, were sent to Wittman and today were sifting the wreckage of the boathouse and examining the nearby field for fragments.

Lieut. Paul J. Randall of the Maryland State police said eyewitnesses gave conflicting reports. Some thought the missiles fell from a low-flying plane which just missed the boathouse. Others insisted the plane was at a high altitude. There was disagreement, too, on whether the "bombs" exploded when they hit.

However it happened, the fishermen of Wittman are agreed on one thing: they don't like to be bombed.

UMW Wage Boost Sets UnionRecord

Lewis Has Doubled CIO 15c Formula In Contract With Northern Operators

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

John L. Lewis appeared yesterday to have won a wage contract from Northern coal operators with an increase of more than double the 1947 CIO "15 cents an hour package" formula.

Terms of the contract, as they were learned yesterday, showed it to contain by far the largest single increase the miners have ever won. Lewis gained more in wages from private owners than he ever had from the Government, either directly or through Federal labor board awards. He also doubled the amount of payments to the miners' welfare fund.

The provisions of the new contract were not officially released. They were ascertained, however, although not in complete detail, from reliable sources. The settlement was reached on Wednesday and covers a little more than one third of all the coal produced in the country.

Southerners Meet Today

Some operators in the West and Midwest are expected to accept the contract, although reluctantly, before July 8, when the miners present vacation ends. In other words, in time to forestall a strike in their fields. Southern operators, also not participating in the settlement, are meeting here today to determine their course of action. It is not probable that Lewis would settle with them on terms any less favorable than those won from the Northerners.

Whether the Southern owners will concede those terms before next Monday, or whether Lewis will call a strike, was problematical.

Yesterday, in a formal statement, Labor Secretary Schwellenbach commented that the agreement with the Northern group covers coal operations "so strategically located" that it will prevent any serious interruption of production generally. He expressed the hope that other elements in the industry would begin negotiations with the union as quickly as possible.

His statement seemed to be a rather pointed nudge to the Southern and Western groups to get into line.

$13.05 a Day Now

As reported earlier, the pact between Lewis and the Northern operators provides miners with a daily pay of $13.05, for eight hours, including an hour of travel time between the pit head and their place of work, and half an hour for lunch. This compares with pay of $11.85 a day, for nine hours, including one hour portal-to-portal time, under Government operation, which ended last Monday.

There was a fierce adding-machine controversy yesterday among those interested in the coal situation to determine just how this increase should be stated. The difficulty lay in the fact that the miners formerly had a base hourly pay of $1.18½ an hour, for seven hours, plus two hours a day at time and one-half rates, or $1.78.

The new base rate, without overtime for an eight-hour, five-day week, is $1.63. This would indicate that Lewis got a 44½ cents an hour boost for his men.

The United Mine Workers itself, however, chose to think in terms of gaining a new wage rate for

Young Backs Police Chief On Secrecy

'Nothing Wrong,' Commissioner Says, Approving Order To Pocket Reports

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

District Commissioner John Russell Young yesterday approved the Police Department's order permitting crime complaints to be hidden and kept from statistical records.

"I don't see any reason to interfere" with Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett, said Young, "unless something is definitely wrong in the department."

Young said he didn't think anything was wrong now. He shrugged his shoulders and reached for his hat as he sidetracked talk of The Post investigation which uncovered 600 robberies hidden by police during 11 months in precincts and secret Detective Bureau files during Barrett's terms as chief of detectives.

Not on Records

These 600 cases were never included in the official crime statistics which show how effective police are in preventing crime and apprehending criminals. Police statistics acknowledge only 761 cases of robbery during the period.

"What are the police trying to hide?" he was asked.

"There is no desire on our part to hide statistics," Young replied. "The police are not trying to hide anything."

Police Superintendent Barrett issued orders Wednesday permitting three categories of crime complaints to be hidden. The order was the first in writing formally authorizing hiding of complaints so that the public would not know about them.

As for there being no desire to hide statistics, Young seemed to know nothing about police methods in gathering their figures.

Post investigators found that when cases are "held"—or hidden—they never are recorded on the police teletype. The only source used for statistics is from the teletype.

Moreover, when crime complaints are kept from the teletype, most of the police force knows nothing of the crime and can't help in finding the criminal, the investigation showed.

Young said he had not heard of the regulation in the police manual

Fire Threatening Chapel Dies as Nuns, Priest Pray

Burbank, Calif., July 3 (AP).—While a Catholic priest and two nuns knelt in prayer, a wall of fire advancing on a wayside chapel suddenly halted and subsided, leaving the little edifice unharmed, police reported today.

"It was the strangest thing I have ever seen," said Lieut. Kenneth K. Kipers of Burbank police. "The flames came within 20 feet of the chapel then died out. There was no noticeable change in the wind."

The flames, which had burned approximately 1200 acres, last night swept toward the chapel, on a hill above the Mother Cabrini School for Girls.

Father Innocent Mangus and two nuns rushed from the school to the chapel to remove sacred objects but before doing so bowed in prayer that the building be spared.

Army Investigating

Mysterious 'Flying Saucers' Reported Seen Over 10 States

Chicago, July 3 (U.P.)—"Flying saucers," mystery missiles of the sky, were coming from all directions according to "eyewitnesses" today and the U. S. Army began an investigation.

Persons in 10 States, including a United States meteorologist and the lieutenant governor of Idaho, and residents of Eastern Canada, reported they had seen "flying saucers."

The mysterious discs, usually reported as shiny and traveling at great speed, first were reported 10 days ago over the Pacific Northwest. Some suggested our Army, or some other army, was testing a secret weapon.

Army officers in Washington laughed, but later began to take the reports a little seriously. The discs had been reported over Oregon, Washington, California, Kentucky, New Mexico, Idaho, Colorado, South Carolina, Ohio, Texas and Eastern Canada.

The air research center at Wright Field, Ohio, was looking into the reports and all service intelligence agencies were at work on them. Army experts suggested, as a bare possibility, that some civilian inventor had been making experiments of some kind. And an Army Air Force spokesman at Washington said:

"If some foreign power is sending flying discs over the United States, it is our responsibility to know about it and take the proper action.

Lieut. Gov. Donald S. Whitehead of Idaho said he saw strange comet-like objects in the sky on June 24. That was the day Kenneth Arnold, Boise, Idaho, first reported seeing the projectiles. Arnold estimated the projectiles' speed at 1200 miles an hour. Whitehead said they "didn't move, but just seemed to go below the horizon with the rotation of the earth."

At Denver, Henry Martin and Walter Harrod said they caught a brief glimpse of a group of "bright objects" flying at about 5000 feet last night. Martin said they looked like coffee can tops. They were moving southwest, he said.

State Highway Patrol Sergt. David Menary, of San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge detail, reported seeing a dozen bright metal objects "about the size of a football" whizz over San Francisco Bay.

At Bath, S. C., Jack Reams reported that last week he saw a disc 12 inches in diameter, giving off a small weird light as it whizzed through the sky. A Monterey, Calif., women said she saw some "flying saucers" today. She said they were quite rounded" but not circular, with a red glow on the edge."

A United States meteorologist, E. E. Unger of Louisville, Ky., said he saw a circular object flying through the air Tuesday night. He said it was moving at 100 miles an hour and gave off an orange light.

Britain, France Defy Soviet Warning, Invite 22 Nations to Parley

Pattern of Power Politics?

Reds May Let Poles, Czechs Participate in Marshall Plan

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
By the United Press

In spite of Foreign Minister Molotov's outburst in Paris on Wednesday, informed observers here feel there is at least a fifty-fifty chance that Russia will let Poland and Czechoslovakia join the so-called "Marshall plan."

No single question intrigued official Washington more yesterday than whether these two eastern European countries would be allowed to accept the Anglo-French invitation to a European conference on July 12.

If they accept, there is at least some prospect that Poland's coal and Czechoslovakia's industries can be used in the reconstruction of the continent.

If not, then Europe will in truth be split economically as well as politically, and the Poles and the Czechs will be put into the desperate position of having to remake their economies in the image of Soviet Union's.

There is no question here that the Poles and Czechs are eager to join in the Marshall program. The Poles, for example, have held a cabinet committee in Warsaw drawing up information and recommendations for use in connection with a concerted effort toward European recovery.

If past behavior is any guide, the Russians might well let the Poles and the Czechs, and perhaps other eastern European countries as well, join with the West to revive the continent, in the hope of getting American help later in the year.

Russia is not a member of the World Bank, yet did not prevent the Poles and the Czechs from joining and from seeking large loans. Russia is not a member of the European coal organization and a number of United Nations economic agencies which the Poles and Czechs have freely joined.

In fact, Russia joined the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe last winter only after the urgent pleas of the Poles and the Czechs. Neither at that time nor at any other did Molotov warn them that they were signing away their economic independence of the capitalist countries of the West.

What, then, made Molotov do it on Wednesday? The Soviet Foreign Minister is not exactly popular here, but at least he is respected

2 Western Powers Accept Challenge That Action Alone Would Split Europe

By Joseph E. Dynan

Paris, July 3 (AP).—Britain and France today defied Russian warnings and invited 22 other European nations to meet in Paris July 12 to work out plans for implementation of the Marshall program for economic aid.

Less than 24 hours after Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov had declared that such a course would split Europe into two blocks, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin took up the challenge.

The division between Russia and the Western Powers was underscored by the failure of the sponsoring governments to invite the Soviet Union to the conference, which would include virtually all European nations except Spain and Germany.

The door was left open for Soviet participation, however, when the two Western Powers sent a letter to Soviet Ambassador Alexandre Bogomolov suggesting that Russia, which yesterday rejected the British-French proposals for economic cooperation, reconsider her attitude and join them.

The new conference was announced in a joint British-French communique after a meeting this morning between Bidault and Bevin. Some such action had been expected, however, since they told Molotov yesterday they would go ahead without Russia if necessary.

Even before the announcement, the European press—Communist, center and rightist alike—had gloomily acknowledged that the breakup of the three-power conference marked the beginning of a struggle between two European blocs.

Speculation on Eastern Europe

A major subject of speculation was whether the eastern European countries—those along the red fringe—would attend the Paris meeting or would follow the lead of Russia and refuse to participate.

No invitations were sent to the Soviet republics of the Ukraine and White Russia, nor to the states absorbed by Russia—Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania—but a half dozen other countries under the Soviet sphere of influence were invited.

These included Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Hungary, Poland, Romania and Yugoslavia.

There was no immediate reaction from any of them, but a dispatch from Prague indicated Czechoslovakia might follow Russia's lead. The dispatch said Czech economy was too closely linked to that of Russia and her Slav neighbors to enable her to enter any Soviet-opposed program except in the direst need.

Communique Outlined

The Bidault-Bevin communique called upon the invited nations to draft "a European reconstruction program in which the resources and needs of each country will be coorinated in such a manner as the European countries freely decide."

The word "resources" was the rock upon which Russia and the western powers broke their short-

House Starts Tax-Cut Bill On Repeat Run

2 Democrats Switch In Vote Reporting Measure to Floor

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The resurrected four-billion-dollar tax reduction bill, slashing individual income rates starting next January, yesterday started its second trip through Congress.

The Ways and Means Committee favorably reported the bill, 18 to 6. House passage, under a closed rule, is slated Tuesday.

Senate Republican leaders, less certain of when the showdown will come, tentatively scheduled Senate Finance Committee action next Wednesday, and a Senate vote, if possible, by Saturday.

Except for a probable Democratic delaying action in the Senate, the bill's first repeat run through Congress will be a routine performance over an old track.

Martin Claims Switches

The real test will come after the President's expected second veto, still more than two weeks away. Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) yesterday claimed enough Democratic switches for an easy House over-rider.

Senate Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) would make no flat forecast on the final Senate outcome. Millikin said only: "I think there is a fairly good chance we can over-ride."

Yesterday's Ways and Means vote disclosed the first meager House evidence of a Democratic shift. Three Democrats, led by former Chairman Robert L. Doughton (N. C.), voted with 15 Republicans for the bill. Other Democrats voting "Aye" were Milton H. West (Tex.) and Wilbur D. Mills (Ark.).

In the initial committee test on the original bill, Doughton was the only Democrat voting with Re-

Balkan Crisis To Test U. N., Britain Says

Cadogan Says Problem Should Be Solved Or Charter Torn Up

By Kenyon Kilbon

Lake Success, N. Y., July 3.—Britain told the United Nations today that it had better override narrow national interests and solve the Balkan crisis, or else "tear up the Charter and pack up."

In a statement aimed particularly at Russia, which has argued against long-term U. N. supervision in the Balkans as a violation of national sovereignty, Sir Alexander Cadogan warned the Security Council that the issue is "a danger point" and "just such a case as the United Nations was designed to meet."

He calmly reduced, one by one, the principal objections offered by Russia to the majority report of the council's Balkan Commission. Eight commission members, with Russia and Poland opposed, found Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania guilty of helping Greek guerillas and proposed a U. N. commission for the frontier area.

The majority plan, now before the council, should give the commission power to operate in all four countries, dealing directly with their governments. The Russians, in a minority report, said this would limit the sovereign rights of the Balkan states to settle things among themselves.

Sir Alexander bore down heavily on this Soviet objection.

In these days, he said, sovereign rights "do not retain their pristine inviolability." The U. N. Charter itself makes "very considerable inroads on the theory of national sovereignty," he said, and if any country wanted to maintain sovereign rights inviolate "that ought to have been thought of at San Francisco."

"If we cannot apply proposals such as those submitted by the

To Strengthen Air Power

Army Appropriation Boosted 600 Millions by Senate Group

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Senate Military Appropriations Subcommittee late yesterday added a round 600 million dollars to the 1948 Army supply bill—largely to strengthen American air power.

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) announced that the group had unanimously voted to allow the War Department 6.1 billions in cash and contract authorizations for the new fiscal year.

They restored $335,636,376 of the cash reduction made by the House and approved additional contractual authority of $263,490,000.

"Most of the restoration," said Gurney, "goes to the Air Force to give us 55 air groups at full peacetime strength."

The House, he stated, allowed for only 38 air groups, plus 15 others at skeletonized strength. AAF chiefs asked for 70 groups, but were cut to 55 when President Truman's budget was submitted last January.

Other major changes approved by the Senate subcommittee, Gurney said, were:

(1) Restoration of more than half of the money cut out by the House for pay of commissioned officers. This is expected to provide about 10,000 more Army officers than allowed by the House action, but still some 7000 under the President's budget figures.

2. Voted 100 million dollars in contract authorization for new planes, over and above the 280 millions contract authority allowed by the Bureau of the Budget and the House. If approved, the additional plane orders will help bolster some of the Nation's ailing aircraft companies.

3. Provided substantially larger sums for the Army civil employe force over that allowed by the House. The latter body voted a cut of 74,631 civil jobholders.

Chairman Gurney did not give the number of Civil Service employes whose jobs will be saved if the Senate subcommittee action

Balkan Leaders Form Exile Group

Plea to Congress

Truman Asks Quick Action On Jap Isles

President Truman appealed to Congress yesterday to stay on the job until it approves a United Nations Security Council agreement giving the United States authority to administer Japan's former island mandates in the Pacific.

At the same time, he reaffirmed this country's determination to support the United Nations "with all its resources as a permanent partnership."

The trusteeship plan, giving the United States administration over the Marianas, Caroline and Marshall Islands, is pending before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Secretary of State George C. Marshall and top Army and Navy officials have been asked to testify on it Monday.

Urges Early Action

Mr. Truman, in a brief message to the Senate and House, said action is essential as soon as possible—at this session of Congress, now scheduled for adjournment July 26.

"The United States has taken an active role from the beginning in the establishment of the trusteeship system of the United Nations," the President said.

"I believe, therefore, that it would be only fitting, as well as in the interest of the inhabitants of the islands, that the trusteeship agreement should be brought into force as soon as possible."

Defense Angle Stressed

He pointed out that the agreement gives this country the right to install defense works in the islands, so that approval of it is necessary not only for the development of the islands, but for protection of the United States.

He also believed that prompt approval would justify the confidence of smaller nations in the United States as a leading exponent of freedom and democratic progress.

"I firmly believe that the United States, by carrying out fully the terms of the agreement, will fulfill the obligations entrusted to it by the United Nations," he said.

In pledging permanent support to the United Nations, Mr. Truman said "this policy has the support of the overwhelming majority of the American people."

Nagy and Dimitrov Issue Manifesto Here on Unity

Exiled leaders of anti-Communist parties in southeastern Europe yesterday issued a declaration of union, announcing they intended to work together to restore suppressed liberties in their former homelands.

They hope to open a joint office in the United States and make a joint appeal, if possible, to the next session of the United Nations Assembly against Soviet interference in their countries' internal affairs.

Their declaration was signed by Ferenc Nagy, recently ousted as Premier of Hungary; Georgij M. Dimitrov, former leader of the Bulgarian Peasant Party; Vlatko Matchek, the Croatian leader who was Vice Premier of Yugoslavia; and Milan Gavrilovich, former Yugoslav deputy who was leader of the Serbian Peasant Party.

Claim 100,000,000 Followers

Nagy and Dimitrov issued the manifesto personally at a press conference here, together with Alexander Cretzianu, who described himself as a personal friend of Peasant Party leader Juliu Maniu in Romania. Matchek is in Paris and Gavrilovich in London, but both of them cabled their willingness to sign the declaration.

Claiming to represent the interests of more than 100 million people in eastern and southeastern Europe, "now deprived of their inalineable rights," the signers condemned present totalitarian rule and reaffirmed a belief in democratic liberties.

"On this Fourth of July," the declaration stated, "we raise our voices on behalf of those who cannot speak.

"We appeal to the democratic peasant parties of other countries, which so far have not had the possibility to associate themselves with our efforts, to join with us in the creation of a democratic international peasant union and the eventual realization of the United States of Europe, with the ultimate aim of establishing world-wide democratic unity."

No State Department Comment

Answering questions from reporters, Dimitrov said he had informed the State Department of the new union, but had received "no comment" as the reply. He said the appeal to the United Nations would be made under Article 14 of the Charter, which entitles the Assembly to consider any situation involving a threat to the peace or good relations among Nations.

"I wish we could invite all the people now in concentration camps and even in tombs to appear as witnesses before the United Nations," said Dimitrov, who apologized for his accented English, but added that he spoke English "better than Stalin speaks democracy."

He expressed fears for the life of his friend and former colleague, Nikola Petkov, Bulgarian opposition leader who was recently jailed by the Communist police.

Nagy was asked for comment on the recent attack on him by President Tildy of Hungary. He replied that not even such an attack could prevent Tildy, a non-Communist, "from sharing the fate of Bela Kovacs and myself." Kovacs, leader of the anti-Communist Smallholders' Party, has been in prison for several months, and Nagy recently charged that his Communist jailers were using torture upon him.

Come on Now, Who Did It?

MYSTERY BOMB DAMAGE—All's quiet on the Eastern Shore front today, but in the St. Michael's sector there are some mighty curious folk. They want to know who dropped the bomb that wrecked this shop in the Whittman boatyard and another that tore a hole in the ground about 50 yards away. One report has it that they were "non-explosive ballast missiles" from a twin-engine plane being tested for the Navy. Who said the war's over?

as a formidable diplomatic tactician who does not usually set out to determine his own position or that of his friends.

His brutal breakup of the Paris conference left officials here flabbergasted—not because they expected real cooperation from him, but because they never expected him to cut the ground from under the feet of his satellites, his Communist parties in the West and his fellow-travelers throughout the world.

Internal Politics Seen

Some diplomatic observers, seeking a charitable explanation, thought his speech must have been dictated by the needs of domestic Soviet propaganda, which will now proceed to use it as the official "line."

But others, looking deeper, thought it reflected the rough-and-tough influence of the Soviet secret police within the Politburo in the Kremlin. After the Ribbentrop-Molotov pact of 1939 the Soviet secret police, the NKVD, were given supreme authority to conduct mass deportations and other repressive measures in the part of eastern Poland seized by Russia.

The full story of what went on there during the war has not yet been told, nor has there yet been a full story of the insurrection in Warsaw and the Red Army's failure to support it. What is known, however, is that Soviet diplomacy has assumed a peculiarly violent tone whenever it deals with certain events in eastern Europe.

Molotov himself has been unusually harsh whenever there have been references to the so-called Katyn massacre of Polish officers during the war, or the uprising in Warsaw, or the Western powers' refusal to hand back displaced persons who have first-hand knowledge of what went on in the areas under NKVD control in wartime.

Molotov on Tight Rein

Some of the leaders of the secret police are members of the Politburo itself, and may well have convinced their colleagues that the Marshall program was nothing but a device to shake the Soviet political grip on eastern Europe.

Whatever the explanation, qualified observers here feel this speech of Molotov's was dictated from start to finish by the Politburo. The fact that he tied up the telephone line to Moscow for hours at a time seems to prove he was being held on a very tight rein in Paris, and was not even permitted to follow more subtle tactics.

Having stated its case so harshly at Paris, the Kremlin may yet turn around and let the eastern European countries join the European program. It has done so before, because it has realized that the Poles and the Czechs must trade with the west and that Russia cannot help them economically. Few in Washington were willing yesterday to predict with confidence which way the Kremlin cat would jump.

Meantime a House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee head by Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio) estimated yesterday that Europe, excluding Russia and her satellites, would need at least 10 billion dollars of American help over the next three years, even if Europe's own resources were used to the utmost.

Refusal 'Not the End'

Vorys said he did not believe Russia's refusal at Paris meant "the end of our efforts to help Europe." But his subcommittee said the United States must decide soon whether to "write off Russian cooperation, as every previous Russian action has indicated that we must, and proceed with the building up of western Europe and the rehabilitation of the Far East."

The subcommittee added that effective American help to Europe would involve "putting an end to current reparations and cutting down the earlier punitive programs of reparations aimed at weakening or destroying Germany and Japan."

Representative Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.), a member of the subcommittee, commented: "We did not object to the Soviets being in on European reconstruction, and we are not going to be scared or bluffed by their getting out—nor will the rest of Europe."

Representative Chester E. Merrow (R., N. H.) agreed with Javits, adding that Russia had "wrecked another international conference" in order to aggravate Europe's postwar troubles.

Holy Land Committee Will Hear Witnesses

Jerusalem, July 3 (AP).—The United Nations Special Committee on Palestine will begin tomorrow hearing Jewish witnesses after a two-week tour of the Holy Land which one delegate said left committee members "mentally and physically exhausted."

With a visit to Rehovoth and surrounding Jewish villages in the coastal plain area today, the committee completed a 2000-mile trip during which its members considered at first hand the knotty Holy Land problems for which it will attempt to find a solution.

lived conversations on the plan offered by United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

Molotov insisted that such an endeavor—the listing of national resources—would constitute interference in the internal affairs of some countries and would lead to British-French domination of the continent with American funds.

Stressing the necessity for speed in drawing up the recovery program, Bidault said that "a temporary organization must be created to assemble the data on which such a program will be based."

They set September 1 as the target date for a first report on Europe's ability to help herself and the extent of American assistance needed to supplement her own recovery efforts.

The French Foreign Ministry said the United States would be informed of the progress of the reconstruction efforts in the forthcoming conference.

The ministry also said the United Nations Economic Conference for Europe, which meets in Geneva Saturday, would be kept informed, but indicated there would be no point in "plunging the commission into needless debate on the subect" since Russia is a member.

The conference will attempt, a French spokesman said, to sidestep the major point of discord between Russia and the western powers—the German question—as being beyond its province.

The French said the British-French proposals submitted in the closing hours of the three-power conference would be taken as a basis for discussion in the July 12 meeting. It was agreed, however, that the conference itself might modify some of the provisions.

These proposals—which Russia rejected—provide for the creation of an international steering committee to draft and administer the economic cooperation program through six subcommittees of technicians.

In addition to the "Soviet fringe" countries, others invited to the conference were Austria, Ireland, Italy, Portugal, Turkey, Belgium, Greece, Denmark, Iceland, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland.

A French spokesman said Spain was excluded, in accordance with a decision of the U. N. General Assembly last December, "as long as she has her present form of government."

While Germany was not invited to attend, the spokesman said the commanders in chief of all four zones of occupation in Germany will be asked to report the available resources and needs of their respective zones.

Molotov and his staff of advisers—numbering 89 persons—left Paris last night in five planes.

Russia's Marshall Plan Boycott Held Reich Zone Merger Aid

Berlin, July 3 (U.P.).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay said today that the Russian boycott of the Marshall plan might hurry the political unification of the American and British zones of Germany, a move that could split the Reich permanently.

He disclosed that the United States and Britain had finally agreed on their program for getting the industries of the western zones going again. Only a few small details had not been settled, he said, and they would be decided in a few days. Agreement on a joint industrial program had been one of the major problems confronting Britain and the United States.

Clay, military governor of the American zone, said he hoped the breakdown of the Paris Conference "has not added difficulties to the unification of Germany."

"But on the other hand," he said, "anything that makes unification more difficult tends to make political fusion the approach to our German problem."

The American and British zones are already united economically and the United States and Britain are engaged in a program of manufacture and export intended to make them self-sufficient.

Clay pointed to the visit of Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman as the most recent evidence of western determination to hurry along production and trade in the American and British zones.

Clay said Harriman was here "to see to what extent he can revive German trade with the United States and to what extent the United States can help restore German economy."

Harriman and Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson landed at Templehof airdrome today.

Anderson said he and Harriman would investigate the possibility of a greater utilization of production facilities already available in the American and British zones.

German Socialist and Conservative leaders hailed the Marshall plan today.

Wilhelm Hoagner, Socialist deputy minister-president of Bavaria, said that as soon as possible the western occupation zones should unite politically and economically and extend this unity to a separate peace treaty.

commission, and now in the United States resolution, we had better tear up the Charter and pack up," he said.

Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko is expecte dto reply next Tuesday that Russia cannot agree to the proposals in the United States resolution—meaning that they cannot be applied at all.

The United States has asked that that force be applied by the U. N. if peaceful measures fail to restore order along the Greek frontier.

Success in applying the proposals, Sir Alexander said today, "might avert disaster" and might even lead to friendly cooperation among the four Balkan countries.

Assails Polish Complaint

He scornfully attacked a Polish complaint that the majority recommendations were ineffectual and could prejudice the prestige of the U. N. To Sir Alexander, this was "timid solicitude."

"I always hope that my doctor is thinking more of me than of his prestige," he said.

The Balkan Commission itself met long enough to refer to the council Yugoslavia's refusal to let the commission's subsidiary group into Yugoslav territory to investigate alleged frontier incidents.

The commission was faced with the same situation last week when the subsidiary group was kept out of Bulgaria.

Tsaldaris Is Hopeful

New York, July 3 (INS).—Vice Premier and Foreign Minister Constantine Tsaldaris of Greece expressed utmost confidence today that the Marshall plan eventually will succeed in Europe despite Russia's torpedoing of the Paris three-power conference.

"What happened in Paris," Tsaldaris said soon after his arrival in New York, "is only a postponement of the European reconstruction plan."

Tsaldaris will go to Washington to confer on implementation of the Greek aid program, and will talk with United Nations delegates about the Balkan controversy currently before the Security Council.

Discussing the Marshall proposal, he declared: "The plan in no way jeopardizes the sovereignty of any nation which wishes to take part in the program."

Basic Industry Gains Described By Moscow Press

Moscow, July 3 (AP).—The Moscow press, reflecting current interest in economic affairs, has been filled for the last three days with stories of fresh Soviet economic achievements.

The stories include assertions that programs are being fulfilled and output boosted in such vital fields of endeavor as coal, electric power, railways and ocean shipping.

Today's papers also devoted considerable space to the closing of the three-power conference on the Marshall aid-Europe proposal, but avoided editorial comment. They noted, however, that "the final contradiction in the views of England and France on the one hand and the Soviet Union on the other was revealed."

Bill Introduced to Erect Monument to Patton

Legislation for a national monument in memory of the late Gen. George S. Patton, famed military leader of World War II, was introduced yesterday by Representative Sheppard (D., Calif.).

The monument would be located in San Bernardino, Calif., on part of the lands used by Patton when he commanded the southern California desert training area.

through towns along the way, it was greeted by entire populations which had turned out to see the President and to marvel at the length of his cavalcade.

At many points, school children waved American flags. This part of the reception at Madison, Va., was featured by a little blonde unreconstructed rebel, who held aloft the Confederate Stars and Bars.

Charlottesville, nestled under the eastern shoulder of the Blue Ridge, was gaily decorated with flags and bunting and its streets lined with enthusiastic citizens. By the time the newsmen's cars reached them, their excitement at greeting the President had waned a little and astonishment at the length of the procession was beginning to take its place.

"Did he bring the whole Cabinet?" one young women was heard to ask. In Mr. Truman's official party were Secretary of the Treasury Snyder; Admiral William D. Leahy, his personal Chief of Staff; Clark M. Clifford, presidential adviser; Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughn and Rear Admiral James H. Foskett, aides; Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, the President's physician, and Charles G. Ross and Eben Ayers, press secretaries.

Truman's Mother Walks Again

Grandview, Mo., July 3 (INS).—Mrs. Martha E. Truman walked a few steps from her rocking chair today for the first time since she fell and fractured her right hip last February in her Grandview home.

The 94-year-old mother of President Truman was assisted by her daughter, Mary Jane, and Dr. Joseph W. Green.

Charlottesville, Va., July 3 (U.P.).—President Truman today signed legislation providing tide-over funds for Federal agencies whose regular appropriations for fiscal 1948 have not yet been approved by Congress.

It will begin at the home of Dr. Henry Welch on Overlook dr. and proceed to the Recreation Building, where floats and costumes will be judged. A short patriotic program will follow.

'Voice' Funds Cut to Force Dismissals

Still another batch of State Department information officers will have to be called home from abroad and dismissed as a result of further appropriation cuts finally approved by Congress yesterday.

Already 141 of the 323 information officers in foreign countries have had notices to come home, leaving skeleton staffs in some posts and involving total abandonment of the information and propaganda work in about a dozen others.

Now additional recall notices will be sent, since the amount Congress appropriated for the information program yesterday was a million dollars less than the Senate Appropriations Committee had recommended. The cut of another million will involve heavier liquidation expenses and, according to State Department officials, will leave little more than a token operation in some fields of American information and propaganda work in the new fiscal year.

Most Bitterly Contested

Both the Senate and House yesterday approved a $551,275,932 appropriation bill for the State, Commerce and Justice Departments, including $12,400,000 for the State Department's Office of International Information and Cultural Affairs. The overseas information item was the most bitterly contested and controversial part of the bill.

Of the $12,400,000 allotted to overseas information activities, $6,857,000 was appropriated for broadcasting the "Voice of America" throughout the world. The bill provides, however, that all broadcasting except to critical areas like Russia, southeastern Europe and certain Far Eastern areas, must be turned over to the private broadcasting networks within 90 days.

The big networks insisted they did not want this responsibility, but Congress was determined to get the bulk of the broadcasting out of the State Department's hands. The networks are expected to hire some of the language experts and announcers whom the State Department has been using.

The State Department's present broadcasting organization in New York will be virtually scrapped; the controls exercised in the past by a large staff of "area specialists" in the department in Washington will have to be carried on by a handful of surviving officials, after arrangements have been made with the networks for transmitting State Department policy to them.

The department expects to be able to continue the daily wireless bulletin which brings texts and other official news to embassies and legations throughout the world. It also expects to maintain a majority of its overseas libraries, although those in Australia, South Africa and New Zealand and perhaps others will be closed for lacks of funds.

Eisenhower Favors Mundt Bill

Meanwhile Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower pleaded before a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee for approval of the Mundt bill, which would authorize the State Department's continuance of information and cultural work abroad on a permanent basis.

"People who understand each other do not fight," said the Chief of Staff, arguing that the Mundt bill would play a large part in creating understanding and "preserving permanent peace."

The general's plea will not result in more money for the information program at this time, but the subcommittee has asked State Department officials to appear Saturday to describe just how the slim fund of $12,400,000 will be spent.

Proclamation May Put China On War Basis

Nanking, July 3 (U.P.).—The State Council, China's highest policy-making group, will meet tomorrow to discuss a proclamation which would place Nationalist China on a virtual war footing, a reliable source said today.

The source said it would provide for more drastic conscription and give military leaders broader powers to requisition food and supplies.

The source said the proclamation was drawn up by Kuomintang (government) Party members and will be issued in the name of the national government.

Mukden, Manchuria, July 3 (U.P.).—Gen. Chao Chia-hsiang, acting commander of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces in Manchuria, charged today that the Manchurian conflict was a Sovie tattempt to seize the territory under guise of civil war.

He predicted that an international war would break out within a year.

Chao, chief of staff to ailing Manchurian Commander Gen. Tu Li-ming, charged that the huge former Japanese arsenal at Mukden, removed by the Russians after the war, was set up at the Soviet-Manchurian border, "where it is now producing arms and ammunition for Chinese Communists."

Chao claimed Soviet officers directed the recent Communist attack on Szepingkai.

Pledges Peace

New Premier Of Indonesia Takes Office

Jogjakarta, Java, July 3 (AP).—Formmer Defense Minister Amir Sjarifoeddin became Premier of the Indonesian Republic today and immediately pledged himself to a "policy of peace" in future relations with the Netherlands.

Appointment of the bespectacled 40-year-old Socialist leader as head of a new national coalition government followed the resignation of former Premier Sutan Sjahrir.

Sjarifoeddin sought a solution to the dispute over the projected interim government which is to be set up pending the independence of Indonesia on January 1, 1949.

A breakdown in negotiations on this problem recently led to threats of war between the Indonesians and Dutch. Sjahrir was forced out of office by critics who accused him of making too many concessions to the Dutch.

Sjarifoeddin announced that the new cabinet would meet tonight to frame a reply to a Netherlands demand for clarification of President Soekarno's letter of June 27 to the Dutch. The reply will be taken to Batavia by special train tomorrow night.

In his letter Soekarno said, "No objection exists against the presence of a Netherlands crown representative in the interim government." The President did not accept Dutch demands that the crown representative be recognized as the final authority—the concession which led to the ouster of Sjahrir.

Sjarifoeddin said he had not yet studied the United States note of June 28 urging immediate formation of the proposed interim government and promising to discuss financial aid after this is accomplished.

Sjarifoeddin kept the defense portfolio and Hadji Agoes Salim, progressive Islamite now in the Arab League countries arranging for recognition of the republic, was named Foreign Minister.

Panama Youth Would Ignore 4th Holiday

Panama City, Panama, July 3 (U.P.).—More than 100 National University students asked the dean that classes be held tomorrow as usual, although normally the Fourth of July is celebrated throughout Panama as a national holiday.

The students' petition was based on the following reasons:

1. "Certain governing factions in the United States have unleashed a defamatory attack against the sovereignty of Panama and our dignity as a free people.

2. "The behavior of the United States Government towards the issue of (Panama Canal Defense) bases has resulted in a strong attitude among Panamanians against the pretentions of the United States, which makes it impossible for Panama's youth to join any demonstration of sympathy towards the United States.

3. "Celebration of the Fourth of July in Panama is a shameful act, lacking in national meaning and worthy only of persons desiring to place Panama in the service of the United States."

Italian Housewife Proves She Was Not Hitler's Mistress

Milan, Italy, July 3 (U.P.).—Mrs. Eva Braun Coppa, 29, a tall, dark-haired Italian housewife, jovially denied today that she ever had been Adolph Hitler's mistress.

For a few exciting hours yesterday some Italian papers thought that the German Eva Braun, who died in the Berlin chancellery bunker, had come to life in the person of Mrs. Coppa.

Mrs. Coppa, wife of a Milan lawyer, said that "what the newspapers seemed to forget was that the German Miss Braun—or Mrs. Hitler—was a blonde."

Mrs. Coppa went to Fondo last week to cash a check. She showed the bank cashier her passport, made out in her maiden name of Eva Braun. The cashier, noticing an Austrian visa, ran to the bank manager who notified police. Detectives roared over the roads from Trento to investigate, and found at once that there had been a mistake.

General Held As Planner of French Revolt

Paris, July 3 (U.P.).—The French government today accused Reserve Gen. Jean Casimir Merson of drawing up a "blue plan" for a Black Maquis March on Paris, and locked him up in Santé Prison.

The march for which Merson was alleged to have drawn the blueprint was scheduled for Sunday. But it was thoroughly smashed. Merson was the twelfth alleged conspirator under arrest.

Premier Paul Ramadier called a press conference to deny that Gen. Edgar De Larminat, inspector general of colonial forces, had been indirectly accused of implication. He said De Larminat was recalled to explain the "inadmissible terms" of a letter he wrote to a magistrate in Rennes.

The letter strongly protested the magistrate's assumption of jurisdiction in a murder case involving Lucien Crete. He was a Breton Maquis, whose liberation from Vannes Prison was to have been the first overt act of the "revolution." De Larminat is president of a group of former Breton Maquisards.

Crete was brought to Paris last night for questioning. He is accused of murdering a woman and her 12-year-old son during the war. Crete contends the killings were justified because the woman and her son were Nazi informers.

"For the moment, nothing permits him (De Larminat) to be incriminated personally," Ramadier said.

The Communist press called for a full-scale inquiry of all alleged "reactionaries" in the armed forces and of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's anti-Communist Union of French People.

"What are they waiting for to question Koenig and Bethouard?" the Communist newspaper L'Humanite asked.

Gen. Pierre Joseph Koenig and Gen. Marie Emile Bethouard are the French commanders in Germany and Austria, respectively.

'Affair' Described In Slavery Trial

Maid Was Pregnant By Husband of Defendant, She Says

San Diego, Calif., July 3 (AP).—Dora Jones testified today she had undergone an abortion at the insistence of Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls, who, with her prominent Massachusetts husband, is being tried on Federal slavery charges.

Facing the Ingalises for the first time since she was separated from them by the FBI more than four months ago, the 58-year-old Negro testified she became pregnant more than 30 years ago by Mrs. Ingalls' first husband.

"I told her it was the milkman at first," Dora stated.

"Then I thought I better tell her the truth. I told her it was Mr. Harmon. Mrs. Ingalls' first husband was Walter Harmon of Washington, D. C., a classmate of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt and recently retired from the Government Lighthouse Service.

Defendants Smile

The maid was dressed in a simple black dress.

The Ingalises straightened in their chairs and smiled at her. She kept her eyes fixed on Assistant U. S. Attorney Betty Marshall Graydon, who did the questioning.

Dora said that she heard Mrs. Harmon talk about her condition to Harmon.

"She told him," she added, "that it was a terrible thing to do to a colored girl—with all the education he had."

The Government contends that the Ingalises, who were married in 1918 after Harmon was divorced, kept Dora in bondage throughout the years by threatening her with jail because of the affair.

Defense Attorney Clifford Fitzgerald told the jury it was Mrs. Ingalls who was afraid—afraid to let Dora go because she would make the "scandal" known to the world.

Dora testified that she continued to live with the Harmons, explaining: "We said we wouldn't talk about it any more."

The relationship between Mr. and Mrs. Harmon, she told the jury, appeared unchanged.

Harmon and his wife were divorced during the First World War, after, the Government alleges, he resumed the affair with Dora.

Dr. Harold O. Cosby, physician and psychiatrist, testified before Dora took the stand that she was sound of body and mind.

Sheet Metal Workers Quit In Wage Row

Five hundred and fifty union sheet metal workers walked off their jobs Monday with the expiration of contracts, it was disclosed yesterday.

The workmen, who are demanding they be paid $2.50 an hour, have been in continuous meeting ever since in their headquarters at 1123 9th st. nw.

The walkout climaxed negotiations under way for the past three months. In addition to the wage scale, major demands of the workers are two-week vacations with pay and a continuance of the right to forbid laborers from handling sheet metal materials.

Had Received $2 Hourly

The workers under the expired contract received $2 an hour for a 40-hour week. They are asking that the 40-hour week be continued. There was no vacation clause in the expired contract.

Contractors, who negotiate with the union through the Sheet Metal Contractors Association of Washington, are offering $2.12½ an hour, according to Raymond L. Skinner, chairman of the negotiating committee. He said that negotiations stopped when the workmen entered the continuous meeting.

The expired contract, Skinner said, carried a no-strike clause and authorized arbitration in case differences were not ironed out by the expiration date.

Daily Sessions Held

John O'Brien, business manager for the union, Local 102, said that members were holding daily sessions to consider the offer of the contractors.

No major building projects as yet have been shut down by the walkout, Skinner said. They are being slowed down, however, and will be brought to a stop in the near future unless the workers return to their jobs, he said.

One large building threatened by the walkout is the RFC building now under construction at Connecticut ave. and H sts. nw. Sheet metal workers were roofing the building and fitting air conditioning ducts when they left their jobs.

Other sheet metal projects halted by the continuous meeting are the roofing of Continental Hall, the Westchester Apartments, an addition to the Benning Power Plant and the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oaks, Md.

New D. C. Airline Starts Flights To Ocean Beaches

Flight service for Washingtonians to ocean beaches was begun yesterday by Potomac Airlines, Inc., a newly organized company.

The company flew Fourth of July weekend passengers to Rehoboth Bach, Del., and Cape May and Atlantic City, N. J., and will fly others to the resorts tomorrow.

The new airline plans to continue this flight service to the ocean resorts on a non-scheduled basis throughout the summer. The company, whose organizers are all District residents, is headed by Carl F. Krogmann, 1261 Kearny st. ne., a pilot with the Royal Canadian Air Force and the United States Coast Guard during World War II.

Howard U. Receives Allocation From Fund

Howard University this week received its first allocation from the 1947 United Negro College Fund campaign. A total of $300,000 was distributed to 33 participating institutions.

W. J. Trent, jr., executive director of the fund, announced in New York that further distributions will be made in October and in January, 1948, at the conclusion of the campaign. This first allocation was made to help member colleges finish the fiscal year without a deficit.

2 of 3 Counts Dismissed in Eisler Case

Two counts of the three-count passport fraud indictment against Communist Gerhart Eisler were dismissed yesterday.

Justice James W. Morris of District Court ruled that the indictment was a duplication. He said that the first two counts of the indictment, which charged making fraudulent statements to the Government, were included in the third count, charging making misrepresentations in an application for an exit permit. The latter carries a five-year jail term and $5000 fine possible penalty.

Eisler is to be tried on the remaining count July 9 before Justice Morris. Eisler is now under $20,000 bond while he appeals his conviction for contempt of Congress. He was sentenced to a year in jail and a $1000 fine.

Justice Morris refused to change the scene of the coming trial to New York as Eisler asked. The defendant contended that newspaper publicity prejudiced the prospective jurors against him here. He also urged that his witnesses were more available in New York than in Greater Washington.

Justice Morris pointed out that newspapers in New York published stories about Eisler and that witnesses would be called from various parts of the Nation.

11 Nations Divide German Industrial Plant Equipment

Brussels, July 3 (AP).—Industrial equipment from 18 German factories valued at $10,600,000 was allocated by the assembly of the Inter-Allied Reparation Agency at its tenth session, a communique stated today.

The agency, with headquarters in Brussels, also allocated 11 German ships, with an aggregate gross tonnage of 18,056.

The United States, France, Britain, Belgium, Australia, India, the Netherlands, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Greece and New Zealand were among the receivers.

Equipment allocated to the United States included some minor technical equipment of Kugelfischer and Schaefer and Co., of Schweinfurt, a bearing plant; and a small section of a chemical plant manufacturing sulphuric acid, resins and impregnated paper.

Senate Passes Proposal To Aid Small Business

A resolution calling on the President and his aides to give small businessmen a greater voice in policy-making was passed without dissent by the Senate yesterday.

The resolution, by Senator Brooks (R., Ill.), urges the President and the Cabinet "to accord the small businessmen of America representation on . . . Government agencies," especially policy-making bodies.

It now goes to the House.

Kilian Loses Suit to Regain Rank as Permanent Colonel

Col. James A. Kilian, former commander of the Litchfield, England, military prison, lost a District Court suit yesterday in which he attempted to force President Truman to return his name to the regular Army promotion list.

Justice David A. Pine decided that District Court was "without jurisdiction over the President." Justice Pine dismissed the suit with prejudice, so it cannot be reopened.

Colonel Kilian had accused the President of arbitrarily removing his name from the list of promoted permanent colonels after it reached the Senate last March. He contended the President could only remove a name from the list if a court-martial directed it.

The colonel was convicted last year by court-martial of permitting mistreatment of prisoners at Litchfield. He was fined $500 and reprimanded. He is now stationed at Walter Reed Hospital.

18 Nazi SS Officers Indicted in Slaughter

Nuernberg, July 3 (AP).—An indictment charging 18 S.S. (Elite Guard) officers—including six generals—with directing the slaughter of more than one million persons during the Nazi occupation of eastern Europe was handed up to an American war crimes court here today.

Those accused included Gen. Otto Ohlendorf; Brig. Gens. Heinz Jost, Erich Neumann, Otto Rasch, Win Schultz and Franz Six; Cols. Paul Blobel, Walter Willy Seibert; Lieut. Cols. Ernest Biberstein; Gustav Nosske and Adolph Ott; Majs. Emil Haus-Felix Ruehl and Lieuts. Heinz Schubert and Mathias Graf.

Wife Who Shot Husband Faces Murder Count

A 39-year-old housewife who riddled her husband with five shots in their home at Cottage City, Md., during an argument over "another woman" was being held yesterday on a charge of murder.

Police said the woman, Mrs. Katherine Weaver, the mother of two children, had admitted firing the shots which killed her husband, Joseph W. Weaver, 43, at about 9:30 p. m. Wednesday in their home at 3802 37th ave., Cottage City.

Weaver operated a service station in Georgetown at 3327 M st. nw.

Neighbors called police to the Weaver home after hearing the burst of gunfire and a woman's shriek.

Used Frontier Colt

When police arrived, Mrs. Weaver sobbed:

"This is my husband. I shot him."

Although there were five wounds in his head, chest and abdomen, Weaver was still alive. He died 10 minutes after reaching Prince Georges General Hospital.

Mrs. Weaver told police the shooting climaxed an argument over "another woman." She said they were arguing in the kitchen. When he told her he was going to leave her for the other woman, Mrs. Weaver told police, she went to the bedroom and picked up an old frontier-model Colt pistol owned by her husband.

Married 22 Years

As she returned to the kitchen, she related, he moved toward her and she fired.

Because of her highly nervous condition, Mrs. Weaver was admitted to Prince Georges Hospital overnight. She was transferred to the county jail at Marlboro yesterday afternoon.

It is expected that a preliminary hearing on the murder charge will be held Monday in Hyattsville. Robert W. McCullough, Mrs. Weaver's attorney, said that he will file for a writ of habeus corpus on Monday.

The Weavers, married for 22 years, have two children, Mary, 20, and Nancy, 8. Weaver had operated his filling station in Georgetown for more than 15 years.

Explanation Promised In Romania Arrests

Bucharest, Romania, July 3 (U.P.)—Teohari Georgescu, the Communist minister of the interior, promised today that an official explanation of the mass arrests protested by the United States and Britain will be released in a few days.

"The measures taken were necessary to insure the life of our democratic regime," he said. "Those taken were enlisted in organized clandestine groups and will be brought to trial in due time."

New Trial Requested by Anti-Fascists

A new trial was requested yesterday by 16 members of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee convicted last week for contempt of Congress.

The petition for a new trial was filed in District Court. Contentions include statements that the evidence did not warrant a conviction and that the prosecutor made inflammatory comments to the jury in his closing argument.

Justice Richmond B. Keech, recipient of the petition, was told that Charles B. Murray, assistant United States attorney, tended to enrage the jury when he called the refugee committee a "Communist-front organization."

Among the defendant members were Howard Fast, author, and Leverett Gleason, publisher.

All of them officials of the committee, they were charged with wilfully refusing and failing to produce records of the refugee committee when subpenaed by the House Committee on Un-American Affairs.

House Sends Off Tax Bill

publicans. The vote then was 16 to 9. Both Doughton and Mills later voted to sustain the President's original veto. West voted to override.

An important GOP concession to Doughton, designed to attract other Democratic votes as well, was made before the vote. Doughton carried to the meeting an amendment extending to husbands and wives in all States the same rights couples now have in community property States to split their income for tax purposes.

Doughton withheld the amendment and supported the bill only after Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.) obtained a committee agreement to include the community property split income principle in an over-all tax reduction bill slated for consideration early in 1945.

Democrat Amendments Fail

Similar assurances are expected to be given to Senate proponents of the split income principle when the bill reaches the Senate.

Rejected by the Ways and Means Committee were two Democratic amendments to by-pass the proposed 10½ to 30 per cent tax cuts.

Representative Aime J. Forand (D., R. I.) moved to increase personal income tax exemptions from $500 to $700 instead. This was defeated 16 to 7.

Representative John D. Dingell (D., Mich.) moved to sidetrack income tax cutting this year. As a substitute he proposed repeal of wartime increases in excise taxes on so-called "luxury" items. This was defeated 19 to 5.

Only Change Is in Date

As reported to the House, for Rules Committee clearance Monday, the bill is in precisely the form the President first vetoed it, except for the shift in the effective date from July 1, 1947, to January 1, 1948.

Here are the proposed cuts:

Taxable incomes of less than $1000, 30 per cent.

Incomes between $1000 and $1395, graduated cuts from 20 to 30 per cent.

Incomes between $1395 and $137,000, 20 per cent.

Incomes between $137,000 and $302,000, 15 per cent.

Incomes above $302,000, 10½ per cent.

Colin F. Stam, congressional tax expert, estimated it would cost $4,081,000,000 in its first full year of operation, if the national income holds at 170 billion dollars.

Knutson insisted the bill's $39,900,000,000 revenue outlook would leave 2.4 billion for debt retirement even if the Government continued to spend at the President's 1948 budget levels.

Republicans privately claimed some 20 Democratic House shifts to the bill, mostly from the South. On the last veto test, Republicans fell two votes short of overriding.

In the Senate, which fell shy of a two-thirds vote on original passage, the most optimistic polls showed Republicans still two to three votes short of the number needed to override, if the full Senate votes.

Addition of tax reduction to the already crowded session's end agenda, may squeeze out some bills tentatively booked and play hob with July 26 adjournment plans.

The House will call up and probably pass on Monday legislation giving veterans the optional right to cash their terminal leave bonds. The Senate will go to work Monday on Army-Navy unification legislation and probably pass it before tackling tax reduction on Thursday.

House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.) told newsmen the House plans action this session on unfication, plus a vote on these other measures: Minimum wage, antipoll tax and possibly anti-lynching legislation.

Halleck estimated about half of the holders of some $1,800,000,000 in terminal leave bonds will take advantage of the bill's cash offer, and the rest will hold them at 2½ per cent interest. He said Republicans took the view "that this is one way of reducing the debt and helping veterans at the same time."

Halleck accused Democrats of "working both sides of the street" on the terminal leave bond issue. While the Treasury opposes the legislation, he charged, National Democratic headquarters "blames Republicans" for not passing the bill.

Russia Is Assailed In Vatican Newspaper

Vatican City, July 3 (U.P.).—The newspaper Osservatore Romano today blamed Russia for break-up of the Paris Conference on the Marshall plan and questioned whether any country attempting to "induce chronic agitation" really desired European peace.

The semiofficial Vatican organ said, "once more Russia does not concur in an agreement which, aside from its intrinsic economic and political value, would also have profound moral benefit."

Lutherans Form World Federation

Luden, Sweden, July 3 (U.P.).—Delegates from 25 nations formally created an International Federation of Lutheran Churches today.

First to sign the federation agreement was Swedish Archbishop Erling Eidem. He was followed by Dr. Franklin Clark Fry of the United States.

Delegates discussed Lutheran support of the United Nations. A special committee asked the federation to support all changes that would develop U. N. as a still more efficient instrument of peace.

In a session led by Frederick Nolde of the United States, it was emphasized that international cooperation must be intensified. The aims of the United Nations are in accord with a Christian conscience, the committee reported.

American Delegates Ralph Long, Abdel Wentz and Fry were appointed doctors of Sopron University by the Lutheran Church of Hungary.

Mountains Under Ocean To Be Studied

A mountain range two miles high yet submerged under the Atlantic Ocean will be explored this summer.

Dr. Briggs

A party of scientists, including Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, chairman of the research committee of the National Geographic Society, will probe the range with dredges and sounding devices.

They will attempt to chart undersea peaks and valleys as well as to determine the depth and consistency of mud deposits. They also will search for steep walled furrows in the sea floor which have been found in the continental shelf off the eastern coast of the United States.

Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, who yesterday announced the expendition, said that the scientists will sail from Woods Hole, Mass., July 15, in a 146-foot ketch. They will be gone about two months.

Columbia University and the Oceanographic Institution of Woods Hole along with the National Geographic Society will sponsor the expedition which will be under direction of Prof. Maurice Ewing of the geology department of Columbia University.

The scientists will center their research among peaks 1200 miles east of Bermuda. The range runs from Iceland nearly to Antarctica and includes the Azores and Ascension Islands among its peaks.

U. S. Acts to Cut Food Deficit in 2 German Zones

The State Department took steps yesterday to carry through a recommendation by former President Herbert Hoover on means of meeting the food deficit in the British-American zones of Germany.

Dr. Edward Campion Acheson was designated special representative of President Truman with the rank of minister to visit northern European countries to determine whether their surplus foods could be used to help feed the Germans.

Dr. Acheson, a brother of former Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson, has been given leave of absence from George Washington University where he is a professor of finance.

Amateur Prospector Missing in Helicopter

Phoenix, Ariz., July 3 (AP).—An amateur prospector was reported missing today after flying the forbidding Superstition Mountains in a helicopter in search of the fabulous Lost Dutchman Gold Mine.

Sheriff Cal Bois said he had been asked to search for James A. Cravey, 62, retired Phoenix photographer, reputed to have employed a helicopter to replace the old-time prospector's burro as a means of packing into the rugged range.

Wage Increase Sets Record

seven hours straight time, as before, plus one hour at time and one-half. On this basis, the basic rate would be $1.53½ an hour, or 35 cents an hour boost.

A more sensible way to figure the matter, however, is to disregard the hocus-pocus about overtime. Previously, the day actually worked was one of nine hours, for which the miners got $11.85, or an average of about $1.31½ an hour. They will now work eight hours and receive $13.05, or $1.63 an hour. Thus, disregarding bookkeeping fictions of "overtime"—it was actually a required part of every day's work—the wage jump for the miners between the old and the new contract is about 31½ cents an hour.

This is more than double the CIO 15-cent "package" established as an increase earlier this year in the electric, steel and auto industries.

But another gain for the miners in the new contract is the raising of the royalty payments, for a miners' welfare fund, from a previous 5 cents per ton of coal mined to 10 cents.

Converting this figure from a tonnage to an hourly basis, the change represents about 4½ cents more per hour for the miners, although they do not receive the money directly, but only if they have need to draw on the welfare fund.

Safety Code Included

Other contract provisions, it was learned, provide for the inclusion, with some conditions, of the Federal mine safety code. This had been worked out between Lewis and Interior Secretary Krug when the mines were in Government possession. It establishes standards of safe mine conditions which must be met by the owners.

Another provision called for Lewis to give up attempts to organize mine foremen who are designated as supervisory employes in the new Taft-Hartley Act. Lewis reserved the right, however, to kick over this provision if he feels that operators are classifying more employes as supervisors than actually exercise that function.

Lewis also gave up demands for six paid holidays each year and for the classification of all work on Saturday as payable at time and one half, and Sunday work as double time.

"Work When Willing"

The time and one-half pay is due, as before, however, for the sixth day a miner works in any one week. The operator has the option of running his mine six days a week and the miner has the option of coming to work that day or not, as in the previous Government contract. If the miner does choose to work six days, the new increased basic hourly rate will benefit him proportionately.

Other contract provisions, the actual language of which is apparently not yet drafted have the effect of taking the union—as far as it is possible to do so—outside the purview of the Taft-Hartley Act. One provision, for example, declares that miners will work when they are "willing and able." This would apparently release the union from damage suits for wildcat strikes and other penalities under the new law for work stoppages.

The philosophy behind these latter provisions, it appeared, is that the union and the operators will conduct their affairs not illegally, but extra-legally, not using the procedures, privileges and penalties of the Taft-Hartley Act.

UE Boycotts NLRB

The general plan to stay as far away as possible from the Taft-Hartley Act appeared yesterday to be gathering momentum among other unions.

The general executive board of the CIO United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America, in New York, advised its local unions, representing more than 600,000 workers in 1300 plants, "to submit no issue" to the new Labor Board.

The 23-member board said in a statement that "it shall be UE policy to submit no issue to the determination of the Taft-Hartley board, nor in any other manner, upon union initiative, to step among the snares and pitfalls that the NAM (National Association of Manufacturers) authors of the law have spread for labor's feet."

The steelworkers, largest CIO union, made a similar policy statement on Wednesday.

Berlin, July 3 (AP).—The Office of the Chief Surgeon of United States Army Headquarters reported today an outbreak of paratyphoid in a number of German communities north of Weisbaden.

May Case Is Second in Which Paisley Lands 'Big Game'

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Reporter

A self-styled country lawyer with an easy Southern drawl yesterday won his second major conviction as the Government's ace criminal prosecutor.

William A. Paisley, chief of the Department of Justice's general crimes section, handled the cases that meant convictions for:

James M. Curley, Mayor of Boston.

Andrew Jackson May, wartime head of the House Military Affairs Committee.

The tall slightly stooped, bald Paisley looks like anything but a demon prosecutor.

A reporter who spent 10 weeks on the trial which ended today in the conviction of May and the Garsson brothers summed up Paisley's actions around a jury with:

"You drive up to a gas pump out in the country and the guy who comes out to serve you sorta grins and says, 'Howdy.' It could be William Paisley."

Tries to Be Natural

Paisley himself has this version: "I just try to be natural," he says.

Being natural in the Paisley manner includes arms folded, head outthrust and an approach to a jury that varies from gentle, preacher-like advice to withering scorn for the city slickers working for the defense.

A reporter wondered if Paisley had done anything unusual in getting ready for the May trial.

"I'll tell you, fellow," he said. "These trials got a lot of publicity because the defendants were big men. But, shucks, I didn't handle them any different than I have dozens of others.

"There was the same long preparation, the same looking up the law until we were sure of every angle, and there was the same attempt to foresee objections and be prepared to meet 'em."

Served U. S. in Jacksonville

Speaking of being prepared, the 51-year-old Tennessee-born, Mississippi-reared Paisley has spent considerable time getting ready for this day.

He became an assistant United States attorney in Jacksonville, Fla., in 1929. He served on that job for 12 years, and then came here shortly after Pearl Harbor, to specialize in war fraud cases.

Any particular plans for the future?

"Listen, I've been doing practically nothing but this May case for mighty near a year now," said Paisley.

"Do you know any nice, quiet fishin' holes, fellow?"

May and 2 Garssons Guilty Of Conspiracy and Bribery

an arrest of judgment and for a new trial.

Besides that, the defense is investigating an anonymous telephone call which accused a juryman of bias. Murray Garsson claims that one night last week somebody called him up at the Statler and told him that one of the jurors was telling people that the jury already believed May and the Garssons were guilty and would so find.

Attorney Margiotti said the anonymous call was no basis for action at the time and that no investigation was proper during the trial. But now he is looking into it, and if finds any basis for the story he will file sworn statements.

Prosecutor William A. Paisley grunted, "no comment" when told of this inquiry.

Trial Lasts 10 Weeks

For ten dragging weeks, the tale of May's relations with the Garssons has been unfolded in the District Court.

Just a few weeks after Pearl Harbor, May and Murray Garsson were in company in Havana, and have been in close contact ever since. The Garssons started out with a letterhead, and ran their munition interests into a string of companies which handled millions of dollars in war business, making millions of shells, as well as fuses, pipe and other war materiel.

May was their contact man here, putting heat on the Army when his friends had trouble over priorities, or manpower, pushing transfers, furloughs and promotions for their friends and relatives.

Profit Motive Denied

All this he and the Garssons claim he did for free, just to help the war effort. Murray Garsson never took the witness stand to deny the charges, but his brother, and May, swore that Army officers gave the Garssons one raw deal after another. This was because the Garssons were Jews, they claimed, and May went to bat just to get them an even break, no more; and to help the war effort. officials said.

The Garssons set up the Cumberland Lumber Co., in May's home State of Kentucky, and gave May thousands of dollars for to meet its payrolls and buy its timber land. He ran it, just as an agent, he told the jury. But during the war, before there was any investigation, he told people the company belonged to him, and he wrote letters saying it was his own.

After ten weeks of this story, and of hearing May and Dr. Garsson claim it was all on the level, the jurors went to their room to deliberate at 9:25 yesterday morning. The court settled down for a long wait. But it was short.

After an hour and 50 minutes the jurors said they had made up their minds. Defense counsel said freely that such a quick verdict must mean an acquittal, that a conviction surely would have taken longer. At 11:37 the three defendants stood to hear their fate.

May, straight and sturdy for all his 72 years, was pale, with his hands clenched.

Dr. Garsson's plump face was flushed, but he stood at ease.

Murray Garsson, a portly man with folds of skin along his jaw and a record of heart trouble last year, was breathing heavily.

"Mr. Foreman, has the jury found a verdict?" asked Clerk James Morgan.

"We have," said Foreman George E. Wells, 51-year-old draftsman in the District surveyor's office, who lives at 5206 Sherrier pl. nw.

"What is your verdict as to the defendant, Andrew J. May, on the first count" (the conspiracy)?

"Guilty," said Wells firmly.

A hurt and puzzled look spread over the faces of the three men. Then May paled, Murray Garsson swayed and Dr. Garsson gave an angry start.

"Guilty," Wells said, for each of the three defendants, for each of three counts—one conspiracy and two bribery. Nine times in all. The other eleven bobbed their heads in assent.

Attorney Margiotti asked for a poll of the jurors, and Justice Schweinhaut told May and the Garssons they might sit down.

Jurors Repeat, 'Guilty'

Clerk Morgan called the roll, and each juror said, "guilty" nine times—108 times in all. The Garssons listened without moving. May kept knotting his fists together and loosing them again. His color came back, deepened until his face was swarthy. Then it was over.

The justice, who might have sent the three straight to jail, left them free on bond, and they walked out of court.

May said he was not daunted, that the case would be appealed. Dr. Garsson said, "We will be vindicated."

Dr. Garsson still faces trial on a charge of perjury.

May's Neighbors All Express Regret

Prestonsburg, Ky., July 3 (AP).—Prestonsburg's reaction to the conviction of former Representative Andrew J. May today was mixed regret and indignation.

Police Chief Epp Lafferty, a Republican, but a friend of many years' standing of the former Democratic Congressman, said:

"I hardly believe it (the conviction). Everbody here feels hurt about it."

He said of May:

"He'll stay with 'em. He's got guts."

Mayor E. P. Arnold, Democrat, a patient in a Huntington, W. Va., hospital, said: "It's a miscarriage of justice. He is not guilty."

Norman Allen, weekly newspaper editor: "I regret it very much."

R. C. Francis, Democrat and a department store operator: "People are kind of stunned. They hoped for a different decision."

Army Funds Are Increased

prevails. He said, however, that "in general we restored the mechanical and maintenance men at Air Corps stations, and some civilians in the War Department necessary to the research programs."

Warrant Officers Favored

4. Allowed funds for 2206 more warrant officers than provided by the House. This would permit the War Department to go ahead with plans to establish an enlisted career service, by creating more billets at the top.

5. Provided additional funds for radar and other Signal Corps equipment to get started on setting up an air raid warning network.

Senator Gurney said that much of the increase is designed to meet rising costs. The price of aviation gas has doubled, he stated, and 34 millions more was voted to give the Air Force 4 million flying hours this year—the amount originally contemplated for training and operations.

Prior Appropriations Cut

Of the additional $263,490,000 in contract authorization, he said, $103,490,000 is for the increased cost of building the airplanes provided in the original budget.

Counting both cash and contract authorization, the amount voted by the Senate subcommittee is slightly in excess of President Truman's budget estimate for the Army last January. However, Gurney said the group decided to rescind $439,139,201 in 1946 and 1947 appropriations. This will bring actual expenditures this year under the President's budget, officials said.

Young Backs Police Chief On Order for Hiding Reports

which was enacted by the District Commissioners in the 1890's and requires immediate reports of all crimes.

Manual Cited

Chapter XVI, Section 6 of the police manual, which Barrett's order appeared to ignore, declares:

"When reports of murders, burglaries, robberies and other high crimes are made to them, they shall immediately notify their commanding officer and shall telephone the particulars to the Central Bureau and to the inspector in charge of the Detective Bureau."

The teletype replaced the telephone in 1930, but the Central Bureau is still the center in which the reports of crime complaints arrive.

Young said he hadn't heard of the regulation, but said he'd have Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West look it up immediately. Late yesterday afternoon, West said he hadn't reecived the request to look up that regulation.

Barrett, who was sponsored by Commissioner Young for his job, was asked if he planned any corrective action to eliminate the hidden case system which flourished during his term as chief of detectives.

"My statement in the order issued yesterday (Wednesday) is all I have to say," said Barrett. "From now on my answer is N. C."

"What does N. C. mean?"

"No comment."

Misquoted, Says Barrett

"Does that mean you have closed all consideration of the cases found by The Post which were hidden by your Detective Bureau?" he was asked.

"I will have the answer to that at the proper time, when the investigation is completed by us," said Barrett.

"Besides," he said, "I was misquoted by The Post.

He refused to say where, when and how he was misquoted. His only comment was N. C.

No Answer to These

Barrett said he had "no comment" also on these questions which were submitted in writing to him in an effort to shed light on his order:

1. How does the order change the present practice of holding reports?

2. Does your order countermand the one issued by Inspector Truscott yesterday? Truscott's Order No. 1 orders that no cases be held "unless it is manifestly in the best interests of public service to temporarily withhold such report in order to comply with the order of a superior officer or higher official of the District or Federal Government where the circumstances of revealing such case to the force at large would materially affect or delay the arrest of the alleged perpetrator."

3. How does your order comply with police regulations? Chapter XVI, Section 6, which states: "When reports of murders, burglaries, robberies and other high crimes are made to them (the police), they shall telephone the particulars to the Central Bureau and to the inspector in charge of the Detective Bureau."

4. Does your order permit police to keep cases away from the Central Bureau and away from the teletype, despite the intention of Congress which passed the law before invention of the teletype?

5. Is it your intent to continue the same methods of permitting any "superior" of the police force to decide for himself which complainant is too respectable to be brought to public attention if he has been rolled while consorting with prostitutes or rolled while sleeping off a drunk in a public place?

6. Will your order permit a police officer to have a case marked "held" if his badge, wallet or pocketbook has been snatched?

7. Is it your intent to continue having crime statistics of Washington incomplete as they have been up to now because "hold" cases are withheld from the teletype?

8. How do you propose to account in your statistics for the "hold" cases you have now legalized?

Batt Sounds Plea For Economic Peace

Stockholm, July 3 (AP).—William L. Batt, Philadelphia industrialist and former vice chairman of the United States War Production Board, told the International Management Congress today that the "greatest hope" for political peace lay in achieving economic peace through improved living standards.

Ford Ends Foremen Talks

Detroit, July 3 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co.'s trail-blazing recognition of the Foremen's Association of America, an independent union, was written off the books today as "a hopeless failure."

Shortly thereafter, the union scheduled a membership meeting for Sunday to review its 43-day strike against Ford and to study the company's action in withdrawing the bargaining rights which it first granted the FAA in 1944.

At the same time, Ford urged more than 3000 striking foremen to return to work with no fear of "discrimination of any kind."

Admittedly the effect of the strike was waning.

Ford reiterated a claim that more than 700 strikers had returned to work at the Rouge, Highland Park and Lincoln plants and predicted the figure would soon top 1000. The FAA said the total did not exceed 350.

The strike began May 21 in a union demand for the right to represent all Ford supervisory employes. About 3800 walked out at that time.

Ford said today that it had been able to maintain "a nearly normal output of cars and trucks" despite the dispute.

Instead Of Reburial

On Independence Day, parents and widows naturally turn their thoughts to their loved ones who died defending American liberties. Many relatives are faced with a perplexing and grievous decision—whether to bring their soldiers and sailors home, as the Government (in a reckless moment) allows, or to leave them where they now rest in tranquil glory in overseas cemeteries. The bereaved have been subjected to subtle and cunningly disguised pressures to disinter their dead and bring them back for reburial and a new chapter of grief. Those on whom the choice weighs heavily may find comfort in an amazingly simple alternative recently inaugurated at Jamestown, N. Y. This consists of a "Field of Honor" in a local cemetery with individual spaces similar to regular graves, marked by memorial headstones on which wreaths and flowers may be laid.

Mrs. Beatrice Ayer Patton, widow of Gen. George S. Patton, describes the "Field of Honor" project in a letter in the current Atlantic. Mrs. Patton was one of the first to protest the desecration of military cemeteries abroad on which so much loving care has been lavished, and she has been an eloquent pleader for leaving the dead undisturbed in their last comradeship. Part of the article she quotes explaining the Jamestown movement states: "The Field of Honor serves the spiritual purposes without the heartaches attendant upon removal. We believe the idea could be extended to other communities." We do, too. Here, surely, is a constructive and soul-satisfying way to avoid the cruel stimulus to renewed anguish which reburial inevitably would mean for many families.

Revived Tax Bill

In the message accompanying his veto of the tax bill, President Truman declared that reductions in income taxes would increase existing inflationary pressures on prices and were not needed now to provide additional funds for business expansion. He also denounced the bill itself as unfair and inequitable, and likely to interfere with a later carefully considered general revision of the tax structure. In the light of these sweeping objections it seems virtually certain that the decision of the Republican leadership to repass the rejected tax bill without change, except for a six-month deferral of the effective date for income tax reductions, will bring another veto.

The President's contention that there is no evidence of an imminent recession is supported by Prof. John H. Williams of Harvard University, a vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and Dr. Leverett S. Lyon of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, who testified this week before the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report. They agree that the problem facing the country at present is one of inflation rather than depression. While another witness, Millard D. Brown, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, looked for a decline in business activity this year he, too, believes there will be no depression "if we restore a free economy in this country." Secretary Snyder also remains firm in his opposition to tax reduction, asserting that revenues should be maintained at levels that will permit a continued reduction in the public debt as long as business employment and national income continue high.

While deferral of tax reduction to next year would lighten the strain on the budget from loss of revenue, it obviously would not meet the objections of the President and his advisers to the premature timing of the congressional tax reduction program. Moreover, whether or not the President vetoes the resuscitated tax bill, its reintroduction is certain to increase the growing hostility between Congress and the Chief Executive and make it more difficult to secure cooperation between them in dealing with other pressing issues. Debate on the tax bill will also slow down work on the unfinished business before Congress and may be used as an excuse for failing to enact other important pending bills at the present session.

The purely political gains that the Republicans hoped to achieve from their drive for tax reduction have, in our opinion, already been chalked up to their credit. We doubt whether those gains are very substantial. In any case, the Republican leaders are taking considerable chances in risking another presidential veto that they may not be able to override. Even if they should succeed in pushing through a tax reduction bill at this session over a presidential veto or with the reluctant acquiescence of the President, they would be deprived of an opportunity to say "I told you so" if a business depression should unexpectedly overtake the country in the next few months. We conclude, therefore, that the decision to revive the issue of tax reduction is not only, economically speaking, ill-timed, but a tactically unwise political maneuver.

Military Missionaries

The Big Berthas that the State, War and Navy Departments rolled up in behalf of arming the Americas should have been used in a better cause. They made an impression on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, but in some cases it was a wrong impression. House members seem to have been left with two sets of ideas as the result of what was said or implied by the secretaries, generals and admirals. One is that the Russians are lying in wait just outside the 3-mile limit ready to send military missions to Latin-American capitals if we refuse to send ours. The other is that the despatch of arms is necessary to stop an arms traffic maintained by the Russians. Neither idea will survive any scrutiny in the light of both known and circumstantial information. The suggestionization to that effect on the part of the witnesses for the arms bill serves only to promote an anti-Russian and anti-Communist hysteria which, as Secretary Marshall knows full well, is bad for the sober conduct of our international relations.

We make the categorical statement that not one Latin-American government could or would entertain any military mission from Russia. Their people would not allow it. To be sure, there is one country, viz., Chile, which has recently had Communists in its government, but the President let them go after a very short-lived experiment in coalition government. The Latins have more sense than to ask for Trojan horses. If the truth were known, they are just as cold to military missions from America, though they could not fail to be influenced by the pressure from Uncle Sam coming on top of their own military pressure. Far from spreading sweetness and light, as was suggested, members of military missions are not renowned as missionaries of good neighborliness, and would, of course, hobnob with the military castes in Latin America that are Old Men of the Sea on the backs of the Latins. To our knowledge the only suggestion of the possibility of an invitation to Moscow came from a Nicaraguan official in a drunken moment after he heard that we did not intend to send an ambassador to the tyrant Somoza.

We will make another categorical statement by way of rebutting the suggestions left in House Committee by the Administration's barrage. That is that no Russian arms have been purchased by our Latin friends. The contrary appears to be understood by some members of the House Committee. We have made inquiries, but have not found a morsel of evidence to substantiate the suggestion of any traffic, big or little. Nor can we get a scintilla of testimony that any such trade with Moscow is in prospect. The exact state of the arms industry in Russia is beyond our knowledge, probably beyond anybody's. Of course, in armed personnel we are, as General Eisenhower puts it, a poor second to Russia. God help this country if we ever tried to match Russia's standing army! Our understanding is that Russia for a half century has had more men under arms than any other power, no matter how military. This situation has never bothered any other power hitherto because of the difference in quality; the Poles and the Germans used to reckon parity with the Russians at 10:1. As for Russia's arms industry, we doubt very strongly whether the Russians have arms enough and to spare for Latin America, in view of the demands of their immediate security zone.

Certainly we do not underrate the threat coming from the intransigence of the Russians. But the way to meet that threat is not to turn this hemisphere into an armed camp. If ever there were a Russo-American conflict, which God forbid, the immediate arena would be the Polar cap, which in this air age is our closest contact with the Russians. Do we need, as was implied in the House hearings, Latin soldiers in our rear? Of course not. The Latin soldiers who wanted to fight in the last war made for all manner of difficulties in brigading which gave them little value to our military organization. What we need in our rear is a friendly and economically developed continent, engaged in supplying our war machine. We want workers and not soldiers as our neighbors. How to produce a friendly and developing continent is the task of our statesmen. Our uneasiness over the arms bill is shared by the very Latins who can produce such a continent.

Budget Surplus

The fiscal year 1946-47 ended with a budget surplus of 754 million dollars—the first time since 1929-30 that the Treasury has not recorded a deficit. During the 17 intervening years, the Federal debt has risen from approximately 16 billion dollars to more than 258 billion dollars. Expenditures in 1930 amounted to only $3,400,000,000; during the past year they have been more than 12 times that figure. So while there is reason to congratulate ourselves on what has been accomplished, it is evident that coming generations of taxpayers will have to carry a heavy load of taxation to service the debts of a prolonged period of deficit financing and meet the costs of a tremendously expanded Government establishment.

Budget-balancing has been achieved primarily because of the high level of economic activity and the resultant high level of national income that has made it possible to retain heavy wartime taxes without unduly burdening the economy. But we cannot count on indefinite continuance of these favoring factors. Even at present abnormally high, in fact inflated, income levels, the pressure for tax reduction is tremendous and cannot be long resisted. Opponents of the tax reduction bill that encountered a presidential veto are well aware of the need for tax relief; they merely object to tax cuts at a time when the country is facing new drains on its resources for foreign aid and has not yet succeeded in effecting necessary reductions in outlays.

When we get a budget that has been balanced at a markedly lower level of expenditures, a task of great difficulty as Congress has discovered, there will be real reason to rejoice. But unless or until expenditures are sharply reduced, there is no assurance that the budget will continue to be balanced, even if taxes were to remain at present high levels.

Case For Consultation

President Truman's statement on the new Labor Relations Act manifested a keen awareness of his obligation to appoint fair-minded and conscientious public servants to administer it. "I regard it as of the utmost importance that persons be selected for these offices who have the confidence of management and labor, and who can be depended upon to deal fairly with both," he said. "Above all, they should understand the paramount interest of the Nation as a whole." Here is undoubtedly an admirable outline of the proper general policy to be followed. A question remains, however, as to the specific method by which this policy will be carried out.

Considering the background of controversy between Congress and the President on this important national policy, we think that the new appointments to the NLRB should not only be made in a spirit of fairness; they should also have the appearance of complete objectivity. Like Caesar's wife, they should be wholly above suspicion. Appointments of that character are likely to be made, in the present emotion-charged atmosphere, only through consultation between the White House and the Republican high command.

We do not, of course, suggest that the President should relinquish his appointive power. Whoever the new NLRB general counsel is—and we regard this post as even more important than the two appointments to be made to the NLRB itself—he must have the confidence of the President under whom he will function. To avoid becoming the target for constant criticism, however, he must also have the confidence of the congressional leaders who brought about enactment of this legislation over the President's veto. In other words, the appointment should appear to be objective from Capitol Hill as well as from 1600 Pennsylvania ave. If there ever was a case in which the advice as well as the consent of the Senate to an executive appointment should be actively sought, therefore, it is this one.

In all probability the Senate would refuse to confirm an appointee who did not measure up to a high standard of impartiality and administrative ability from its own point of view. But such a rejection would intensify controversy in a sphere where it ought to be minimized. The most direct way of avoiding that contingency and of giving assurance that the law will be "well and faithfully administered" is consultation between the President and congressional leaders on the personnel to be selected.

Neglected Unification

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal has done well to squelch the rumors that he is opposed to the Army-Navy unification bills now in Congress. Although the proposal being considered is the product of many minds, Secretary Forrestal himself gave the impetus to start it rolling. None of the reasons that impelled Mr. Forrestal to make his original decision has been in any way mitigated since the Army-Navy agreement was reached in January. If anything the need for an integrated military arm is even more pressing. For in these critical post-war days it is becoming increasingly evident—indeed, it is the lesson of all history—that if the United States is to continue to speak with authority in world affairs, it must have the strength to back up its moral convictions. And strength does not thrive on division.

In some respects we wish that the Senate bill were a stronger measure. There is some legitimate objection, we think, to the fact that it does not provide specifically enough for coordination and combination wherever possible of supply and medical functions. Likewise we feel that provisions as to the Central Intelligence Agency should be tightened by insistence on a civilian director and by defining more precisely the duties of the agency. But these are matters of implementation rather than of substance. The important thing is to get unification on the books so that our armed forces may get started toward their goal. Here is where Congress has fallen down. Despite promises by the Republican leadership, the Senate bill, which was reported by the Armed Services Committee June 5, still has not been taken up. In the House the situation is even worse. The Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments, to which the measure was misdirected, has finished hearings, but the report has not yet been written. Action this session is imperative if our security plans are not to be severely hampered. The adjournment date is drawing close, and some time must be allowed for floor debate. If unification is not to be another lamented victim of the log-jam, Congress had better get a move on.

CANOEING AT SUNDOWN

The smooth firm wood of the Indian paddle strokes me down the path of sun. And the restless lake is flame in the brilliant aftermath of sundown, flame on windy blue.

I shift the paddle, tack, cleaving the wind and water, steering toward pines already black with the gradual growing of the night.

My lifting light canoe rides beauty homeward, while the first gold evening star breaks through.

National Park Timber

Reference is made to Mr. Van Name's letter of June 30, entitled "National Park Timber Grab." His presentation of the issue has all the earmarks of unvarnished fact.

Moreover, I have been through the West and seen the reckless destruction of magnificent forest lands transformed by the hand of man from a heritage of priceless beauty to reproachful wastelands that will remind us forever of what cannot be had again.

However, in recent years, the public has been sold the idea that the Government was stepping in to preserve the best of this country's scenic wonderland through a system of national parks which would be inviolate.

My family and I, therefore, have read Mr. Van Name's exposure with distress and indignation. Is this further proof that those in positions of authority in our Government cannot be trusted to protect the interests of the American people?

I am writing letters to the chairman of both congressional committees considering the bills to plunder and defraud the countless generations to come for the temporary benefit of a handful of greedy people. I shall write relatives and friends in the West, Western newspapers, and the President, too.

May Mr. Van Name's letter have the same effect on others who, like myself, are usually too absorbed with their everyday affairs to defend America from her own irresponsible citizens.

Taxation Without Votes

The following thoughts seem apropos, as we in the United States once more are privileged to observe another "glorious Fourth:"

"The heat is on" to admit Hawaii into our Union as the forty-ninth State. Then we hear rumors that Alaska shall—or should—eventually become State No. 50. Again, some reckless souls advocate that Great Britain become an extra State.

Meantime, the humble citizens in the District of Columbia stand aside—despite the fact that "taxation without representation" was supposed to have been cast forever into oblivion, in the course of events giving Independence Day real significance. Can it be that adoption outranks birth in acquiring legitimate legal recognition in these United States?

Free Government

I challenge Mr. Truman's statement made on June 29 before the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people in Washington, in which he is reported to have advanced a program which, if attempted to be carried out by the Federal Government, will, in my opinion, inevitably lead to a despotism in this country as complete and as harsh as now exists in Russia.

A lot of people in this Nation, including Mr. Truman, seem to have forgotten, if they ever knew, that the Government of the United States came into being as a republic and its founders had as a goal the greatest good to the greatest number. They understood that there are certain fields in which Government must operate and that to properly perform its duty in these fields it must not go outside of such fields.

This is why it is so "un-American" for Mr. Truman, as President of the United States, to put into the minds of any group of citizens of this Nation that there is any obligation resting on the Federal Government to guarantee to them "decent homes," "an education," "adequate medical care," "a worth-while job" or "an equal share in the making of all public decisions through the ballot."

A free government is one which operates so that the citizen shall lean on his State for nothing that his own arm can do, and on his Nation for nothing that his State can do; and so that when he gets a home (by his own efforts) it becomes his "castle" through which the wind may blow, and into which the rain may fall, but into which neither the Government, nor its representatives, can enter except by invitation or when armed with the due processes of the law.

Careful Cab Drivers

Recently at 17th and H sts. nw., I saw a taxicab driver stop on a dime to save the life of a little boy who had dashed out in front of him.

Tribute should go, first to the alertness of the cab driver, and second to the District of Columbia Traffic Inspection Division, which assures, among other things, efficient automobile brakes. Without either of these the little boy would have been killed.

I have found the great majority of cab drivers I ride with efficient, courteous and intelligent. Give the maligned cab driver his due. It's the rule that he is a good citizen.

"Fascism In Action"

The statement of Congressman Busbey of Illinois, carried in The Post of June 20, that members of the Catholic faith might be offended by publication of the study made by the Library of Congress, Fascism in Action, is as lacking in tact as it is slanderous of American Catholic citizens. It is a direct reflection on their loyalty to their country.

Congressman Busbey apparently fails to realize to what extent the patriotism of our soldiers led them to put their country's welfare foremost in the war. Italy is what is known as a "Catholic country." The German government under Hitler also had a concordat with the Vatican, as has Spain. Yet the valor of American Catholic boys in our Army did not deter them in their fight against Fascist totalitarianism.

It may be as Congressman Busbey cautiously advises, the publication of this pamphlet revealing the machinations of fascism may offend Dictator Franco. But is available knowledge concerning a system which so many Americans (Catholics as well as Protestants), died to keep away from our shores to be denied us when by study and contrast we may reach a better appreciation of our own system of democracy?

Education Crisis

A crisis in education is a crisis in democracy itself. What this Congress does about Federal aid to education will determine whether it has a sense of the Nation's most basic need or, for that matter, any sense at all.

Universal Military Training

A Fourth of July message to Mr. Wayne F. Buckle (letter published July 1) and those Americans who feel as he does toward universal military training:

There has never been a threat of militarism in these United States, but we often have been called upon to defend our country against militarism and threats of aggression from the outside. Each of these threats has been warded off by belatedly trained citizen armies built around the small Regular Army and Navy.

Every war we have been forced to fight to defend our Constitution and the principles of liberty and freedom set down in the Declaration of Independence has been fought the hard and most expensive way. We invited each of these threats of aggression by our own lack of military preparedness. The winning of the Second World War was made possible only through the belated and inadequate measure of preparedness we attained through the selective service system that was invoked in 1940 against the wishes of such well-meaning citizens as Mr. Buckle.

We can have preparedness to some extent through the very expensive alternative to universal military training—a super standing Army of millions of men and women. However, the best informed civilian and military leaders today know full well that preparedness today—for any possible future war—means far more even than compulsory military training for our young men in their late teens. Preparedness today means complete mobilization right now of all civilians and civilian, industrial and social resources.

There have been too many indications of national weaknesses and softening of our youth. Let the Surgeon General's reports and those of selective service serve as evidence of this fact. Are these records so soon to be forgotten by our people?

America is not going to horsewhip the world into peace, but she will do well to display some sort of horsewhip to those who would offend peace. Only by such a display of strength can human offenders in their present ways of thinking be challenged and war averted.

Let this Nation for the first time in its history establish a continuing system of defense—a system that will afford not only a possible means of averting war and aggression but which will give us at all times an inventory of our manpower and national resources. Who ever heard of a young man being hurt by sending him to military school? On the other hand, that has been the means of straightening out many a chap who was hard to orient and control.

More than 30 years ago Teddy Roosevelt said, "It has always been true, and in this age it is more than ever true, that it is too late to prepare for war when the time for peace has passed."

T. R. probably had not dreamed of our atomic age, yet he was decades ahead of the average citizen in this matter of defense needs. Is it possible that the Americans of our generation are behind Teddy Roosevelt in defense consciousness at this time when the world has a comet by the tail and that comet percussioned with an atomic fusecap?

I believe that once Mr. Buckle and other good people who have lost their realistic approach to the problem of defense realize that the fifth columnists and other totalitarian enemies within our borders also oppose universal military training or any other means of defense, they may wake up.

No shame or apology can I feel in saying that I believe that no man who is not willing to cooperate in building up some system of military defense can give a good reason why he should be entitled to the privilege of living in a free country. Teddy Roosevelt and George Washington, among other great leaders, said as much, and more, in this connection.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Pursuit Of Happiness

"LIFE, LIBERTY and the pursdit of happiness." The "right" to pursue happiness is one of the things that makes our Declaration of Independence a unique document. It never occurred to any other people to put that in the basic charter of their freedom.

In these feverish postwar years we are pursuing happiness with a fierce zeal that often endangers life and sometimes seems to threaten liberty. On a thousand and one highways on this 171st Fourth of July, the sleek new cars are streaking past or they are snarled in traffic, trying to edge around the battered jalopies that have survived the war and the inflation.

Pursuit of happiness is big business. Motor vacationists are expected to spend 6 billion dollars this season. That figure comes from the American Automobile Association, which estimates that each family spends on the average $100 on a summer trip.

The National Park Service expects more than 12 million visitors to parks and historic shrines from Maine to California. Attendance is running about 10 per cent above last year. And, incidentally, the national parks will return to the Treasury this year an estimated three million dollars.

At the beaches, in the mountains, in the cities, the pursuit of happiness goes on. It's too frantic to be entirely healthy. It sometimes seems too heedless. We snatch at happiness the way a child snatches at a Christmas tree.

THERE'S room for doubt whether it's happiness in the true sense or whether it's just motion, getting from one place to another by the quickest possible route. In the day before the gasoline motor, people had more time to savor their happiness and to appreciate it.

We are almost the only country in the world today that can engage in this race for happiness. Maybe that's one reason we go at it so feverishly—because we want to forget that in Europe and Asia the measure of happiness is enough food to keep off hunger and enough fuel to keep off the cold.

A sizable number of American vacationers will go to Europe this summer. Reservations on every boat and almost every plane have been taken up weeks in advance. Many of these visitors will go abroad for the first time since the war.

They will be welcomed if only because tourists help to supply the desperate need for dollars. But they will not make themselves popular if they complain about the inevitable inconveniences and discomforts. They must understand that, compared to the ordinary European, they will be living in fantastic luxury, even though they may feel that the hotels are shabby and the food poor and scarce.

THE FIRST crop of tourists is the forerunner of what promises to be a flood tide. If the world continues to move shakily back toward normal and if American prosperity continues, then the tourist business to countries abroad promises to develop on a scale far greater than before the war. Some fairly conservative students of tourism believe that it will amount to five to six billion dollars a year within a few years. At that level it would be a substantial help in redressing the balance between exports and imports.

That means Americans trotting all over Europe, the Americas and Asia, too, if there is ever any peace in Asia. We can export a lot of ill-will that way or a lot of goodwill.

Heedless pleasure-seekers won't be popular. Other peoples have sacrificed so much just to live in freedom. The mad pursuit of happiness at any cost will look a little strange and alien to men and women who have endured years of tyranny and privation.

It has been well said that those who prize other things more than they prize liberty will lose not only their liberty but the things they value more. The pursuit of happiness is only one of the rights that have come down to us from the men who believed that liberty was the first essential if there was to be any freedom to pursue the phantom of a happy life.

Scientists' Advice

I believe that Alfred Friendly's report on June 30 of the special press conference of the Emergency Committee of Atomic Scientists, presided over by Dr. Einstein, is one of the most important news items I have ever read. In an atomic world we must go to atomic scientists for realities. Apparently, if we are to survive we must also act on what they believe to be true. If they have decided that it takes a world government to assure peace in an atomic age, then we must do what it takes to create and live within a world government. The scientists see no possibility that the U. N. efforts at control of atomic energy, which have failed during the past year, can ever be successful.

I hope it has already occurred to The Post to conduct one of its opinion polls on the extent of the appreciation of the people, and perhaps of Congress, of the life and death facts and judgments in the scientists' statement.

Incidentally, the article suggests one or two questions that might well have included in The Post poll reported on the same day. The alternative answers provided to the question "What would you like to see the United States do in Europe?" hit me very strongly as being biased. While negative alternatives were explicitly stated, positive alternatives had to be initiated by the persons interviewed.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The 100-To-1 Shot

THE OPTIMISTIC citizen who enjoys backing long shots might get a little money down on the proposition that history will remember the Lodge-Brown bill as one of the most important enactments of the present Congress. The odds are heavily adverse, but the payoff will be very big indeed if it occurs. And, incidentally, it will be vitally important to the future of the United States.

As usual with long shots of any real promise, it is necessary to explain what the Lodge-Brown bill is. In brief, it is a bill introduced by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., of Massachusetts, and Representative Clarence Brown of Ohio, which permits the President, the Speaker of the House and the President Pro Tem of the Senate to name a commission to investigate the organization of the Federal Government. The commission is allowed 16 months to complete its inquires, and is instructed to recommend a plan of reorganization in January, 1949. The idea is that if the commission does a decent job, a newly elected President with a Congress of his own party may then conceivably be able to effect the thorough-going Government housecleaning that has been more and more urgently needed every year for the last 50 years.

The odds are unhappily against the Lodge-Brown bill paying off for two reasons. First, the commission is to be composed of 12 members, 4 from Congress, 2 from the executive branch and 6 from private life. So large a body, tackling so complex a task, is bound to be hampered by its mere unwieldiness. Second, there is no guaranty that men of the highest quality will be named, or can be persuaded to serve on the commission. It is crucial that none but men of the most eminent abilities, able to command general confidence in their judgment, be charged with the job of replanning the Government. Such men are hard to find.

IT WILL do no good, on the other hand, to name one more commission which will be just like all its predecessors, drawing its per diem, presenting a report recommending strict economy and general virtue, and fading into obscurity again. The responsibility placed on President Truman, Speaker Martin and Senator Vandenberg is heavy. It will be the more difficult to discharge because the really acute need for thorough-going Government reorganization is so little understood.

Nonetheless, a heavy debt of gratitude is owed both to the hard-headed Representative Brown and to Senator Lodge, whose return to the Senate has measurably improved that rather dreary body's average quality. Even if their scheme is not successful, Lodge and Brown have at least called attention to the two most important facts about the United States Government today. They have pointed out that the Government is disorganized, ponderous and dropsical to the point of acute danger.

And they have tacitly recognized that the economy-shouters are largely talking nonsense at present. This is because the economy shouters really know nothing whatever about the inner pattern of the Government, and are therefore in the position of doctors trying to operate on a patient with dropsy when the source of the dropsy has not been located.

THE REMARKABLE progress made by Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Undersecretary Robert Lovett, following blueprints originally drawn by Dean G. Acheson, is an illustration of what can be achieved in one small area. From immemorial chaos, something like order is emerging at the State Department. It may not result in fiscal economies. But what is immeasurably more important, it will unquestionably result in a clear, coherent foreign policy, in which all parts will be related to each other and the whole, and the whole will be conditioned by the interests of the United States. Clarity and effectiveness of policy are more important, in every branch of the United States Government today, than the petty penny-pinching bawled for by the kind of Congressman who would sink the national defense in order to cut 30 per cent off the income taxes of his political angel.

If one were to write a memo to the commission to be named under the Lodge-Brown bill, it would contain the following headings:

1. The insane complexity, the nightmarish proliferation of Federal administration is the first fault. No government on earth can operate when there is so little consolidation of responsibility that every major activity involves a score or more of agencies; and that at least 150 officials in theory and about 90 in practice report directly to the President.

2. Besides ruthless consolidation of responsibility, the Government cannot much longer continue to operate without some sort of coordinating executive secretariat working under the President to keep the whole machine oiled and in condition.

3. Most urgently of all, a decent governmental service, with reasonable conditions of servitude, is now required. It is plain stark staring madness to let a 37-billion-dollar national enterprise be largely directed by an army of routine-minded clerks.

The commission will do well to concentrate on these fundamental objectives. Achieve these, and we shall get efficient Government. And once we get efficient Government, we shall get economy as a healthy by-product.

Off The Record

"Never mind—she wouldn't wait!"

New Freight Rate Increase Of 16% Asked by Railroads

The Nation's 699 railroads unanimously petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for an average 16 per cent increase in freight rates.

At the same time, 36 Southern railroads asked that the commission grant them, in addition, an increase of 6.06 per cent in their basic Pullman sleeping and parlor car fares.

In both cases, the railroads cited the high cost of operations as the major reason for requesting the new rates.

The larger petition—representing all operating railroads—did not ask any change in passenger fares, but said that the increased freight revenues were necessary to "bridge the gap" between present income and increased operational costs. The high operational overhead was said to stem from demands by passengers for more modern service.

The 699 railroads proposed to increase their freight tolls by 25 per cent in the East and by 15 per cent in the South and West. This would average 16 per cent increase across the country, they said.

The railroads said that the increases—if approved by the ICC—would make up for additional wage, material and supply costs that, since 1939, have grown by $2,300,000,000.

A general freight rate increase last January absorbed all but about one billion dollars of these operational costs, they said, and the new rates requested today would probably meet the balance.

They made it clear, however, that yesterday's petition is not related to any increases which might develop later in railroad wages or fuel costs and, further, that if such increases do come, "a supplemental petition would be necessary."

The petition estimated that the net railroad operating income for this year will be about 800 million dollars, or a return on net property investment of about 3½ per cent. The petition said such a return is insufficient "to provide the adequate and efficient transportation service provided by law."

The railroads asked that the 25 per cent increase in Eastern freight rates include all territory north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers and east of the Mississippi. The rest of the United States would bear the 15 per cent raise.

In addition, the railroads asked for the entire country increases in rates for various special services such as refrigeration and heating, switching, pick-up and delivery, and diversion and reconsignment.

Split With Russia

By Mark Sullivan

Job For American Leadership

FACTUALLY, what occurred at Paris this week can be put in a single paragraph:

The United States, through Secretary of State Marshall, had proposed a plan for restoration of economic life in the countries of Europe, with help from the United States. Britain and France wished to go ahead with the plan. Russia tried to intimidate them, Foreign Minister Molotov warned them "against the consequences of such action." To this, Foreign Minister Bevin of Britain replied, "My country has faced grave consequences and threats before, but that is not the sort of prospect which will deter us from what we consider our duty." France joined with Britain and they are going on with the American plan.

The meaning and consequences of this step, many and far-reaching, flow from one condition. The step is a recognition that, in the economic and ideological sense, there is not one world but two—one of them headed by Russia, the other, the Western world, symbolized and led by the United States. The step this week is the end of a long and patient attempt by the United States and Britain to get cooperation from Russia. By the step this week Britain and France declare that restoration of the world can wait upon Russia no longer, that they are going ahead with an American plan and are asking the other countries of Europe to collaborate. Restoration is at last to begin, upon an American plan with American help and American leadership.

IT IS FUTILE now to say, and may in fact not be true, that the step ought to have been taken long ago; it may be that by the delay the world has been educated in the difference between the two worlds and their respective systems.

Not in the spirit of saying the step should have been taken in the beginning, but rather for picturing the background of it, a convenient way is to reprint here parts of an article which originally appeared in this column almost exactly two years ago. The date was July 15, 1945, soon after the end of the war with Germany and at the beginning of the first of the postwar conferences, at Potsdam.

"At Potsdam President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes sit with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill. They sit as representatives of the United States in a conference which amounts to rearranging the world.

"In this rearrangement one task is most urgent and immediate—and also the most important in the long-term sense. It is the simple primitive task of assuring human existence; of reviving the production of the goods which the peoples of the world eat, wear and otherwise consume.

"FOR MEETING this task, for performing this service throughout the world, America is better equipped than any other country. In differences of view about how to solve the problem, Mr. Truman and Mr. Byrnes speak for the country which has everything the rest of the world needs. America has the food, it has the natural resources, it has the money and credit, it has the machinery of production as a going concern.

"In the conference will be one difference of view towering above all others, embracing all others. This is whether the revival of industry throughout the world shall be on the basis of free enterprise as in the United States, or on the basis of government-owned industry and regimented peoples as in Russia.

"Because of the economic strength of the country Mr. Truman and Mr. Byrnes represent, they should be able to determine the pattern of world revival. We will contribute our resources because we ought to. In contributing them we must accompany them with leadership. We must do more than be merely a gigantic warehouse of indiscriminate philanthropy. We must so use our resources that the peoples of the world can create a life of free men in a free society."

At long last, after two years of patient endurance of frustration by Russia, we have taken responsibility for the leadership the world hungers for. Britain and France have acted upon our leadership and other countries will. The mere act of decision on our part, the coming to conclusion, will have on other peoples the psychological effect of confusion ended, of men's spirits released, their freedom assured. It will be a psychological tonic as constructive as the material help we give.

The Gallup Poll

Popularity of Attlee Seems Stabilized After Early Decline

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 3.—After a period of initial decline, Prime Minister Attlee's popularity in England seems to have stabilized.

The Labor government took office two years ago this month. Mr. Attlee's popularity at the beginning of his administration was measured by the British Institute of Public Opinion, which found, in August, 1945, that 66 per cent of the voters polled approved of Mr. Attlee's handling of his job.

This high figure began to come down as Britain's postwar food and financial crises deepened and as the government's program for nationalization of industry unfolded itself. By October, 1946, the Prime Minister's popularity was down to 53 per cent. It has continued virtually unchanged since that time.

Following is the trend as shown in surveys by the British Institute, one of ten polling organizations abroad which is affiliated with the American Institute of Public Opinion.

"On the whole, do you approve or disapprove of Mr. Attlee as Prime Minister?"

	Approve	Disapprove	No opin.
Aug., 1945 ..	66%	19%	15%
Oct., 1946 ...	52	35	12
Feb., 1947 ...	52	36	12
TODAY	51	36	13

It will be noted that while the number expressing approval has shown little change in recent months, the proportion expressing disapproval has increased since February, most of the increase having come from the group previously "on the fence" and expressing no opinion about the Prime Minister.

In spite of the decline Mr. Attlee is more popular than his party.

A recent British Institute survey found that the opposition party—the Conservative Party—has gained ground to the extent that it now runs neck-and-neck with the Labor Party, although it was decisively beaten by the latter only two years ago.

The trend of basic party strength, irrespective of the personalities of political leaders, is shown in the following vote:

"If an election were held today how would you vote?"

	Labor Party	Cons. Party	Liberal & Other
Election, 1945	49%	39%	12%
May, 1946 ...	45	39	16
Jan., 1947 ...	44	41	15
May, 1947 ...	44	44	12

The May figures are based on the total expressing an opinion. One person in every eight (13 per cent) had no opinion.

Cruelty to Children Rated Severe Crime

Cruelty to children is a more serious offense than burglary, black market operations or evading income taxes, in the opinion of the British public.

The British Institute of Public Opinion, in a national survey, asked British voters how they rank six offenses in order of seriousness, the six offenses being drunken driving, income tax evasion, cruelty to children, black market offenses, burglary and cruelty to animals.

Here's how the British people rank them: (1) Cruelty to children, (2) drunken driving, (3) black market offenses, (4) cruelty to animals, (5) burglary, (6) avoiding income taxes.

3 Columnists Held Rewriting Power Hearing Propaganda

By the United Press

Representative William J. Miller (R., Conn.) told the House yesterday that three nationally known columnists have shown themselves to be "rewrite men for Government propagandists."

His accusations, Miller told his colleagues, are based on "identical" articles the three wrote in connection with hearings before a House Interstate Commerce Subcommittee on legislation to amend the Federal Power Act.

He named the columnists as Thomas L. Stokes, Lowell Mellett and Marquis Childs.

Decline Comment

Stokes and Childs declined comment on Miller's remarks. Mellett said:

"I'm glad Mr. Miller brought the matter out on the floor of the House. It may cause the House to look into the whole situation regarding his bill."

In his speech, Miller said:

"The sole purpose of each column was to discredit the hearings.

"Their means to this end was in each case identical. Each sought to discredit the work of this committee by raising emotional arguments rather than factual presentation.

"What they have done proves the ancient axiom that 'the truth will out.'

"Truth has been served by their willingness to be spoon-fed by a Government bureaucrat, for the simultaneousness of these three articles clearly reveals the writers for what they are—rewrite men for Government propagandists."

Writing Held—"Inspired"

Miller said the conclusion "is inescapable" that the Government "through one of its employes directly or indirectly inspired the writings of these columns."

Asserting "it is not every day that a civil servant can influence the thinking of three such well-known Washington correspondents," Miller said:

"If that employe feels proud of his achievement, I trust that his feelings for American democracy are such that he will after a moment's reflection realize how he has cheapened the Federal service, and the principle of self-government.

"I hope he fells ashamed, for he is a shameful person."

Miller said he was calling "this matter" to the attention of a House expenditures subcommittee "with the suggestion that it use its wide-spread powers to investigate these propaganda activities."

Senate Votes Pay For Italian Ships Lost Aiding U. S.

The Senate passed a bill yesterday to compensate Italy for Italian merchant ships lost while in the war service of the United States.

The bill also authorizes return to Italian owners of 15 million dollars worth of seized property now in the hands of the alien property custodian.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate that the legislation was one of "several definite steps the United States is undertaking to cooperate with the new democratic government of Italy."

He agreed with Senator Russell (D., Ga.) that passage of the bill was an official recognition of the cobelligerent status of Italy in the war against Germany.

Senate Passes Export-Import Extension Bill

The Senate passed yesterday by a voice vote legislation extending export and import controls over scarce commodities through June 30, 1948.

The measure now goes to conference with the House, which had passed a similar bill.

Before acting finally, the Senate:

1. Adopted by voice vote an amendment by Senator Reed (R., Kans.) to extend authority for Office of Defense Transportation allocations of freight cars until January 1.

1. Wrote in an amendment by Senator Hawkes (R., N. J.) to continue controls over quinine and related products. It was approved by a standing vote.

3. Adopted a compromise on fiber and cordage worked out by Senators Cooper (R., Ky.) and Saltonstall (R., Mass.) under which fiber stocks on hand July 16 would be earmarked for binder twine needed in harvesting crops.

4. Rejected an amendment by Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) to require that export licenses be granted to anyone, whether they are traditional exporters or not. At present, the Commerce Department gives preference to established exporters.

5. Turned down a proposal by Senator Butler (R., Nebr.) to require that export sales of grain and its products be handled by private firms, not the Government. It lost on a standing vote.

Provisions of Bill

The measure maintains emergency wartime controls on tin and tin products; fiber and cordage; antimony; materials required for export to aid foreign production of products urgently needed in the United States; fats and oils and rice and rice products so far as imports are concerned; and materials needed for export to help carry out this country's foreign policy.

Allocation controls also would be maintained on nitrogenous fertilizer.

The bill also would authorize the Government to prohibit or curtail exports of any materials or commodities.

5 Miles a Minute Airliner Makes Successful Flight

Baltimore, July 3 (AP).—The Martin 3-0-3, a five-mile a minute pressurized sister ship of the twin engine Martin 2-0-2 airliner, made a "highly successful" first flight today, the Glenn L. Martin Co. announced.

O. E. (Pat) Tibbs, director of flights for the concern, was at the controls with W. R. Turner as co-pilot. The plane was in the air 57 minutes, slightly longer than the usual initial flight of a new plane type.

The 3-0-3 is a low wing, tricycle landing gear monoplane as is the 2-0-2. It has a passenger capacity of from 36 to 39, and will cruise at 321 miles per hour at 19,300 feet, where the pressurized cabin will permit low altitude comfort for passengers.

The company said airlines which have announced orders include United, Northwest and Panagra.

Townsfolk Fight Grimly Against Flood

Grand Tower, Ill., July 3 (AP).—A day-and-night fight against Mississippi flood waters continued at several critical points but Army engineers reported today that most of the remaining dikes in Illinois and Missouri were expected to hold under pressure of the river's peak crest, barring further heavy rains.

The rampant river rose steadily at this isolated town 75 miles below St. Louis, and women and children helped with the erection of a sandbag barrier to stem the flow of water into the town. Food was brought in by boat for the community's 1000 residents.

The townspeople of Dupo, Ill., who had refused to surrender their homes to the spreading waters when Army engineers ordered the town abandoned three days ago, relaxed their stubborn battle along a reinforced railroad embankment and many expressed confidence their homes would remain dry. The town of 2600 is located near St. Louis and the river was receding slowly in that area.

"The fact that Dupo is dry is a tribute to the never-say-die spirit of the town's citizens and the many volunteers," said Mayor Delmar Valine.

"Wading in water up to their waists and shoulders, these people fought with such tenacity that they stopped the flood waters."

Coast Guard rescue task forces continued to patrol inundated sections between Alton, Ill., and the extreme southern part of the State.

Gangs Flying Opium Near U. S. Border

By The Associated Press

John W. Bulkley, Assistant Deputy Customs Commissioner, said yesterday that gangs in Mexico are using airplanes to fly opium to the United States border area so that it can be smuggled into this country.

He told a reporter that a tough fight against smuggling is in prospect because an apparently record-size opium crop of 32 tons or more has been harvested this year in rugged mountain areas of Mexico about 50 miles south of the U. S. border.

He said Mexican gangs trafficking in the drug had flown it out of the mountains to secret fields on the Mexican side, but there is no evidence they are flying it into this country.

Risks of landing crackups and of having valuable planes seized if caught had deterred airborne smuggling over the border, he said.

Instead, he said, the drug usually is moved across the border in small lots, one or two six-ounce cans at a time. Those cans have an underworld value of about $250 delivered in this country.

Bulkley said that "hot spots" for drug smuggling on this side of the border include Nogales, Ariz.; Calexico and San Ysidro, Calif. Mexican communities from which main smuggling efforts are undertaken include Juarez, Tiajuana and Mexicali, he said.

China Gets Jap Ships

Pastor Arrested for Chaining Daughter on 16th Birthday

Knoxville, Tenn., July 3 (U.P.)—A preacher chained his daughter to a bedpost today so she would be safe from pleasurable associations on her sixteenth birthday, police said tonight.

Authorities released the sobbing blonde girl, whose body bore livid welts from weekly beatings. They took her father, William Massengill, 50, to jail. The girl's tight-lipped stepmother — Massengill's third wife—was held for questioning.

Massengill was described as an itinerant Baptist minister who took paperhanging jobs to supplement his meager income.

Geraldine (Gerry) Massengill, the daughter, owed her escape to her own ingenuity. As her sixteenth birthday dawned, she said, Massengill came in her room and padlocked a big iron chain around her ankle. He padlocked the other end of the chain to the bed.

The chain gave her enough freedom to get to the window. She scribbled a note and dropped it to a boy.

"Daddy has chained me to the bed; please call the police," the note said. A neighbor called the police.

Massengill admitted chaining her to the bed to keep "her home so she wouldn't get into trouble."

He admitted that he also was in the habit of whipping her.

Geraldine said that she had never been to a movie, gone swimming or attended a party because of her father's harsh rules. Her brother, Edward, 18, ran away from home almost a year ago because of the severe beatings he received from his father, the girl said.

Parley Granted On Probe Ruling In Adoption Cases

Montgomery County Circuit Court Judges Charles Woodward and Stedman Prescott have granted a request from the Montgomery County Community Chest and Council for a conference to discuss the court's recent decision on use of probation officers for investigating adoption cases.

Set for Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the county courthouse at Rockville, Md., the conference was sought by Miss Margaret MacGregor, assistant director of the Chest and Council, after organized county groups criticized the court's decision against use of trained social workers.

The delegation will try to persuade the judges to try out the Social Service League and the Welfare Board's method of investigation in a couple of adoption cases and then compare it with the procedure of the probation officers, it was learned.

Ernie Pyle to Join Buddies On Okinawa in Rites Today

Naha, Okinawa, July 3 (U.P.)—Ernie Pyle left Ie Shima today the same way he arrived April 16, 1945—in a combat landing barge.

From the memoralized spot on the little island where the 77th Infantry "lost a buddy," the body of the beloved correspondent was going to the Okinawa Island command cemetery. Reinterment will take place there at special July 4 services tomorrow.

He was still "with his friends." Bodies of soldiers buried on Ie Jima were moved with him.

The Army had asked Mrs. Pyle shortly after Ernie's death April 18, 1945, if she wanted his remains transferred to Albuquerque, N. Mex., their hometown.

"No," she replied. "Ernie is where he'd want to be—with his friends."

Victim Charged With Faking Kidnaping in Meredith Case

Hollywood, July 3 (AP).—A former actor's agent, his head swathed in bandages, pointed out Film Actress Madge Meredith today and said:

"She sat there while they beat me up, looking like a dummy in a show window. She stared through me, as though she didn't see me at all."

The speaker was Nick Gianclis, 38, Miss Meredith's former business manager. The scene was the sheriff's office.

Earlier, police reported, a counter-accusation came from one of two men jailed in the case that Gianaclis himself had arranged the attack.

Detective Sergt. A. W. Hubka identified the two men, booked on suspicion of kidnaping, as Albert W. Tucker, 29, North Hollywood nurseryman, and James Hatfield, 33, former Beverly Hills police officer.

He quoted Tucker as saying:

"Gianaclis engineered the whole thing himself so he could place the blame on Miss Meredith. They were having trouble over ownership of a house and Nick wanted to get the girl in trouble."

Nick Gianaclis, 38, is Miss Meredith's former manager. He told sheriff's deputies Miss Meredith lured him and Vern V. Davis, 32, his bodyguard, to a rendezvous near her home to discuss litigation over title to a house.

There, he alleged, he and Davis were set upon and beaten, then taken to a lonely foothill canyon from which they escaped hours later.

Miss Meredith surrendered last night. She declined to discuss the affair after a night in jail beyond saying:

"It's perfectly ridiculous; if anybody was threatened it was me. He lured me saying he wanted to discuss troubles about the house."

She was booked on suspicion of kidnaping, robbery and assault, as were Barclay Leon Thomas, 33, Gianaclis' son-in-law until this week, and Damon William Klinkenberg, 32, a cook. Hubka said today, "It looks like Thomas wasn't present at the time" of the incident.

Gianaelis, a restaurant supply operator, claims he "discovered" Miss Meredith, obtained a job for her as cashier in a studio commissary and promoted her film career.

Deposits Here Up 105% From Level of 1941

By S. Oliver Goodman

Fears of a sharp decline this year in Washington bank deposits failed to materialize, mid-year figures disclosed. Like going to a dentist, the anticipation was greater than the realization.

Combined deposits of the 19 local institutions, as reported yesterday, aggregated $1,015,057,816. This represented a leveling off rather than a decline. The total still was 105 per cent more than that of December 31, 1941.

Since the record deposit total of $1,059,916,962 was reached on December 31, 1945, the aggregate has slipped less than 5 per cent. This decline was attributed entirely to Treasury withdrawals of savings bond funds.

"True deposits," those held by private persons and corporations, more than held their own, according to local bankers.

Better than words, figures showing local bank deposits (and the chart above) illustrate the trend here since start of the war. The figures follow:

	June 30.	December 31.
1946	1,039,347,047	$1,024,769,447
1945	974,278,677	1,059,916,962
1944	761,955,000	855,756,433
1943	654,336,000	707,687,000
1942	515,932,000	604,296,000

Per Capita Income Figures

Per capita income in the District of Columbia rose 42 per cent from 1939 to 1946, a special survey by the publication Business Week showed yesterday. The average person's income here was $1031 a year in 1939 and $1467 in 1946.

Washington's income gain was the smallest in the Middle Atlantic area, the survey revealed. Per capita income in this region follows:

	In 1939	In 1946	% gain
New York	$825	$1616	95
New Jersey	746	1401	88
Pennsylvania	589	1171	99

Giants 'Moider Dem Bums', 19 to 2

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, JULY 3.—The horse racing championship of the world, or at least the closest thing to it, is down for decision at Belmont on July 19, and the Belmont people have just made a nice gesture to the foreign turfmen.

POVICH

They announced today that the $100,000 race—called The Gold Cup—would get under way from a "flag start," in deference to the unfamiliarity of the English, French, Argentinian and Brazilian horses with the American starting gate.

It's a generous concession because American horses are equally unfamiliar with the flag start. No starting gate will be on the track. The field will be sent off from either a walk-up or flat-footed start by Marshall Cassidy, who hasn't yet determined which he will use.

There's scarcely an American jockey today who is experienced in the flag start, and thus no advantage accrues to the United States entries. There was a walk-up start at Empire City on August 30, 1943, however, by sheer accident. The starting gate broke down a few minutes before the Bay Shore Handicap, and with the fans' money already bet it was decided to get the field off without a barrier.

THE WINNER OF THAT race was Wait A Bit, and it is significant that he was ridden by Jockey Johnny Longden, the only rider in the field who knew about walk-up starts. Longden broke in on the old Vancouver track in the flag-start days, and he stole a five-length lead with Wait A Bit to win the race and set a new record of 1:22 2-5 for the 7 furlongs.

Preparations are virtually complete to bring the champions or near champions from five countries to Belmont by air this week, in the most notable aviation hegira of horse flesh to date. The South American entries, Endeavour, from Argentina, and Ensueno from Brazil, are expected at LaGuardia Field late Saturday night or Sunday morning. The European entries are expected to leave by air on July 13.

The air-travel phase of The Gold Cup began last winter when Jim Butler, president of the Empire City track, flew to Europe to investigate the travel conditions. The air-minded, 30-year-old Butler who flew in the ATC during the war, convinced the foreign owners that they could ship their prize horses safely by plane.

THE ONLY DIFFICULTY encountered thus far was in the case of the Argentinian champion, Endeavour. He's a big horse, 17 hands high, and could neither be led or backed into the DC-4 that is ready for him, until a special, low loading platform was constructed. Endeavour will be taken aboard on the morning of July 4 at Buenos Aires, and later that day the Brazilian steed, Ensueno, will go aboard at Rio de Janeiro.

From England are coming the two champions of the Maharaja of Baroda, with either or both starting. They are the sensational Sayajirao, winner of the Irish Derby, and mighty Maharatta. On the same plane will be Marcel Boussac's French entry, Djelal, and Edgar Britt, the Maharaja's contract jockey. Britt, an Australian, has been cutting a swath in British races and formerly was the leading rider of India.

Both Endeavour and Ensueno, the South Americans, readied themselves for the Gold Cup by winning stake races last Saturday in their own country, although they will find different footing at Belmont. South American tracks are the sandy type.

FROM NOW UNTIL the race, a test of a mile and five furlongs that is true championship distance, the American horses will be offered schooling at Belmont in the walk-up start. The schooling will be available to the foreign entries, too, after their arrival.

Belmont was selected for the race because it more nearly resembles the size and shape of the foreign courses, with its 1½ mile course and wide turns.

The American hopes will rest chiefly with Assault, the world's leading money winner, but virtually every horse of stature except Armed will be saddled by United States trainers, including Stymie, Phalanx, Gallorette and Riskolater. If all 21 entries start, the purse will total in the neighborhood of $123,000, which is a nice neighborhood, eh wot?

Brown Plays Kramer for Title Today

London, July 3 (AP).—Doris Hart, a Miami, Fla., miss who turned to tennis at the age of 10 to erase the effects of infantile paralysis, upset Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., 2—6, 8—6, 6—4, today to reach the Wimbledon finals against Margaret Osborne of San Francisco.

Her stamina in the stretch produced a gallant rally which brought her from behind and stimulated 14,000 fans around Wimbledon's center court to cheers as she qualified for Saturday's showdown battle against the California favorite who ousted her in the quarter-finals a year ago.

Miss Osborne, top-seeded in the scramble for the title vacated when Pauline Betz turned pro, had left the fans cold—gagged to silence by her brilliance—in routing the last commonwealth hope, Mrs. Sheila Summers of South Agfrica, 6—1, 6—2, in the other semifinal test.

All-American Show

Thus the singles side of the famed tournament developed into an All-American show, for Jack Kramer and Tom Brown of San Francisco will have it out tomorrow for the masculine crown.

Kramer and his Los Angeles partner, Bob Falkenburg, smashed and volleyed their way into the men's doubles finals, meanwhile, and the mixed doubles semifinal bracket was filled without an upset and with Americans on three of the four surviving teams.

Miss Osborne stormed through her match in 27 minutes, attacking the ball with almost masculine force that left Mrs. Summers a weary baseline defender.

Taking the court five minutes later, the second-seeded Miss Brough started out to duplicate the feat of her chum and long-time champion doubles partner. She danced through the first set in jig time and then Miss Hart began to call the tune.

It was a bitter pill for Miss Brough, who had gone to the finals against Miss Betz last year and ranked as a favorite with many fans to take the title on her second try.

No Explanation

Miss Brough had no explanation for the upset, but Miss Osborne explained her partner's defeat this way: "Louise wasn't serving so well. She never got her real serve in like she usually does."

With the women's semifinals out of the way, Kramer—bidding again to share the doubles title he won with Brown last year—and Falkenburg served up some thrills in advancing to the finals.

They eliminated the third-seeded Australian Davis Cup combination of Geoff Brown and Colin Long, 10—8, 6—4, 6—4, in a volleying duel that was kept to straight sets by a great rally.

Miss Brough and John Bromwich of Australia, seeded first in mixed doubles, moved into the semifinals by eliminating South Africans Eric Sturgess and Mrs. Summers, 6—2, 9—7,

Miss Osborne and Tom Brown, the second-seeded pair, reached the semifinals with a 6—3, 6—2 triumph over Jaroslav Drobny of Czechoslovakia and Mrs. Simone Mathieu of France.

Colin Long and Mrs. Nancye Wynn Bolton of Australia moved up by stopping Josef Asboth and Mrs. Susy Kormoczy of Hungary, 6—1, 6—4, and Miss Hart and Lennert Bergelin of Sweden, seeded fourth, defeated Billy Sidwell and Mrs. Nell Hopman of Australia, 6—2, 10—8, in a marathon windup that kept the fans at Wimbledon until nearly sundown.

The only other action today was in Women's doubles, where Mrs. Molly Blair and Mrs. Kay Stammers Menzies of Britain upset the fourth-seeded pair of Mrs. Bolton and Mrs. Hopman, 6—3, 6—3, to complete the semifinal bracket. The remaining men's doubles semifinal will be played tomorrow.

SHE SPRINGS BIG UPSET—Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., makes a return at Wimbledon, England, where she sprang one of the tournament's biggest surprises by defeating Mrs. Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., to reach the finals. She will meet Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, Saturday for the title

Behrens Edges Gerry Thomas In Net Play

Charlottesville, Va., July 3 (AP).—Favored Buddy Behrens of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Don Mathey of Deerfield Academy, Mass., advanced to the semifinal round of the National Interscholastic Tennis tournament here today, but not before both players got the scare of their lives from lower-rated opponents.

Behrens, seeded first in the tournament being played at the University of Virginia, was forced to come from behind after losing the second set to defeat fifth-ranked Gerry Thomas of Washington, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

Mathey, rated fourth, lost the first set of his setto with eighth-seeded Jack Turpin of Dallas, Tex., and was within two points of losing the second set when he pulled his game together and took command. He won eventually, 2-6, 7-5, 6-4.

In quarterfinals doubles play, the top-seeded duo of Sidney Schwartz and Bob Luxenburg of Brooklyn romped over Waller Horsley and Bobby Cabell of Richmond, 6—2, 6—0; and Turpin and Dixon Osburn, of Dallas, eliminated the favored combination of Gilbert Bogley and Jack Yates of Washington in a two-hour match, 3—6, 7—5, 6—3.

In tomorrow's semifinals singles matches, Behrens tangles with Mathey and Schwartz meets Bogley. The latter two advanced yesterday in upper bracket competition.

Tomorrow's play will not begin until approximately 4 p. m.

Flag Tournament Won By Mrs. J. F. Barnes

Mrs. J. F. Barnes yesterday carried off top honors in the holiday flag tournament at Army-Navy Country Club, planting her flag on the eighteenth green to edge out Mrs. Ralph Hunt and Mrs. Ann Stonemetz, who tied for second. Next in line were Mrs. Elliott Vandeventer and Mrs. J. D. Arneld.

He Really Takes Bowling Serious

New York, July 3 (AP).—Bocci is an Italian bowling game.

Manuelli Sabatino takes it so seriously that he jumped into the East River last night after losing three games.

"Let me alone, let me alone—I want to die!" shouted Sabatino, 50, after patrolman Henry Grote jumped into the river to save him.

But the 26-year-old patrolman held him until a tugboat rescued both.

More than 10,000 persons are expected at Lanham tonight at the West Lanham, Md., Speedway when an all-star Fourth of July midget automobile racing program gets under way at 8:30.

The Damon Runyon Cancer fund will receive 10 per cent of the receipts.

Schaefer, leading Eastern point scorer of the American Racing Drivers' Circuit and last week's Lanham feature winner, will rule a slight prerace favorite tonight.

Transportation to the speedway and return will be made for $1, by buses departing from 403 11th st. nw., at 7:15 p. m., and tickets for tonight's racing are on sale at the Lanham track only today.

Masterson, Wynn to Work Yank Twin Bill

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

New York, July 3.—At a point where the Yankees are threatening to make a runaway of the American League pennant race, the Nats are tossing their two top pitchers at 'em in tomorrow's Independence Day double-header.

Early Wynn and Walter Masterson, who represent the peak of pitching ability on the Washington staff, have gotten their working orders from Manager Ossie Bluege, who says "They figure to slow the Yankees up."

It was Wynn who pitched a five-hitter against the Yanks in his last start to beat 'em, 5-1, just before Masterson took the mound later in the day and lost a 3-1 game.

Chandler, Johnson Go

Manager Bucky Harris has announced that the Yankee pitchers will be the veteran Spud Chandler and Don Johnson.

Yankee fans, in a frenzy of pennant fever with their club 6½ games in front, are expected to turn out to the number of more than 65,000 for tomorrow's double bill.

Thus far this season the Nats have lost 6 of 10 games with the Yankees. Their only win of the year in Yankee Stadium was on the day that Sid Hudson beat Chandler, 1-0, on Babe Ruth Day.

Still Lack Hitting

Manager Bluege has no new plans to shuffle his ball club in an attempt to inject the needed hitting power. Cecil Travis will remain at shortstop despite a sacrifice in defensive play. Two ground balls that Mark Christman might have fielded eluded Travis last night.

Gerry Priddy's recent hitting splurge is the only item of comfort for Bluege, what with Mickey Vernon still shackled in his slump, and Buddy Lewis below the .300 figure this week for the first time this year.

Bluege is dissatisfied with the play of both Joe Grace and Tom McBride in left field and declared today that George Case would be in the Washington lineup were it not for an aching back that hampers his batting swing.

Monarchs, Clowns Meet Here Today

A holiday double-header between the Kansas City Monarchs, champions of the Negro American League and the Indianapolis Clowns, will get under way today at Griffith Stadium at 2 p. m.

Star of the Monarchs is Shortstop Hank Thompson, who has been playing the position since Jackie Robinson joined the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Clowns, one of baseball's most entertaining outfits, feature the play of Goose Tatum at first base and the antics of King Tut, base coach de luxe.

Marlboro Race License Revoked

Baltimore, July 3 (AP).—The State Racing Commission, meeting for the first time today with its new chairman, Stuart S. Janney, jr., revoked the 10-day license for Marlboro track in Prince Georges County.

The commission said the action was taken because the track operators had failed to make repairs at the half-mile oval.

5 Homers Break Yankees' Record

Brooklyn, July 3 (AP).—The Giants "moidered dem Bums" today for the edification of 25,987 Brooklyn fans. The score was 19 to 2.

Aroused by last night's 11-3 defeat which included a nine-run inning, the New Yorkers teed off on Dodger pitching in the first four innings and the results could be described only by Tony Galento's celebrated words.

In the second inning, the Giants matched that nine-run frame. When they stopped scoring after Johnny Mize belted his twenty-second home run of the season in the fourth, they had wiped out all the season's high scoring marks for the National League and had equaled the year's one-game high established by the Boston Red Sox when they whipped Chicago, 19-6, May 13.

The only real scoring records broken, however, as the Giants stopped far short of the modern record of 28 runs in one game, made by the St. Louis Cardinals in 1929, were for home runs in consecutive games.

Their totals in this department now stand at 15 for four games, 16 for five, 19 for six, 21 for seven, 24 for eight and 26 for nine. The first two figures will go into the books as new National League marks and the rest as new major league records, wiping out the standards set by the Yankees of the 1930's and the 1940 Red Sox.

Bobby Thomson contributed two homers today and Walker Cooper and Sid Gordon one apiece in addition to Mize's swat. Cooper's, his eighteenth of the season, was made with the bases full in the second inning.

In addition four Dodger pitchers contributed eight bases on balls, most of them costly, and two wild pitches. Meanwhile Dave Koslo coasted to his eighth pitching victory, letting the Dodgers score only after the Giants finished.

The big second inning resulted from only three hits—a single and a homer by Gordon and Cooper's four-run circuit blow. The rest of the trouble was caused by four walks, two of which forced in runs, an error by Jackie Robinson and Spider Jorgenson's late throw to the plate on a fielder's choice.

Watts Paces Virginia Golf

Lynchburg, Va., July 3 (AP).—Slender James O. Watts, jr., 1938 titlist from Lynchburg, had the inside track on medalist honors in the thirty-fourth renewal of the Virginia State Golf Association's amateur tournament tonight as dusk gathered over the par 72, and 6601-yard Boonsboro Country Club course with nearly a fourth of the field of 198 still playing the tricky, wooded course.

Watts, the likable former naval officer who knows the Boonsboro course like a book, toured the winding layout in one over par 73 and spent much of the afternoon waiting for the many others to trickle in.

Tied temporarily at least behind Watts were Wynsol Spencer, the Newport News sharpshooter, and Meredith Watson of Petersburg, who were a stroke behind the early pace setter.

Ten others have scores of less than 80 and were assured of making the select group of 32 stars who will fight it out in match play starting Friday for the 1947 simonpure championship of the Old Dominion.

The others who carded scores of less than 80 included Walter Hagen, jr., of the Hermitage Country Club, Richmond, who got a 75; George Fulton, of Roanoke; Walter Cushman, of Charlottesville's Farmington Country Club, and Dave Ewell, jr., of Hermitage, each 77; Jack Hamilton, of Newport News, 78, and five with 79, namely, Bill Tomlinson, jr., of Hermitage; James Simpkins, of Hampton; Malcolm E. Herndon, of Lynchburg; Charlie Pegram, of Petersburg, and John R. Whittle, of Martinsburg.

Johnsen Trips Leavens in Net Scramble

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Dr. Dave Johnsen defeated Donald Leavens, 8—6, 5—7, 6—3, in a grueling 2½-hour match to reach the seminals of the District of Columbia Tennis Tournament yesterday at Kenwood.

Phil Neff downed Alan McCarroll in the other quarterfinal, 5—7, 6—3, 6—3.

It was a close call for the second-seeded Johnsen, as Leavens, ranked sixth, displayed steadiness and control which forced Johnsen to go all-out the entire way.

Both men exhibited a brand of tennis that kept the gallery gasping as seemingly impossible shots were retrieved time after time.

The first set see-sawed to 6-all, then Johnsen broke through Leavens service and held his own to pull it out. In the second set, Leavens, hitting with great depth and accuracy, led 3—1, 4—2 and 5—2.

Davey Gambles

With the score 40-15 against him in the eighth game, Johnsen threw caution to the winds and, mixing drop shots with forays to the net, blasted through the left-handed Leavens and tied up the set at 5-all.

Leavens refused to become flustered by this rally and, regaining his control, captured the last two games to win, 7-5.

Leavens started the final set by taking the first game, but Johnsen, having uncanny success with his drop shot, went ahead at 3-1. Leavens came back to even the count at 3-3, but the effort he had expended in chasing Johnsen's drop shots began to show.

The stocky Johnsen seemed to gain strength as Leavens weakened, and the doctor ran out the last three games in rapid succession. In the final game Dave scored four perfect placements as Leavens was unable to come within yards of the ball.

In the women's final, Willie Herbert strengthened her claim to beeing the most improved player in town as she defeated Charlotte Decker, 7—5, 6—3.

After a hard fought first set which could have gone either way, Miss Decker's game deteriorated and Willie had no trouble the rest of the way.

In the women's doubles final, Herbert and Decker paired to defeat Pearl McCoy and Margaret Sweeney, 0—6, 6—0, 6—1.

The men's finals will be held Saturday at 3 p. m. instead of today as was previously announced. The late starting time of yesterday's quarter matches caused the semifinals to be held over until today.

Locke, Kaiser, Oliver Shoot Sub-Par 66s for 'Tam' Lead

Chicago, July 3 (AP).—Bobby Locke, the knickered South Africa champion; Herman Keiser and chunky Ed "Porky" Oliver today rolled into the first round lead of the $36,000 Tam O'Shanter golf jamboree—each with 66, six under par.

The grinning, 29-year-old Locke, who pocketed a substantial guarantee from Promoter George S. May to take bows before the crowds of golf's blue plate special, was seven under standard figures going to the 17th tee.

He needed a par and a birdie on the last two holes to set a course record of 64 for the rugged 6825-yard playground and become eligible for a side prize of $666.67.

With the opening day gallery of some 3000 swarming around him, Locke missed a three-foot putt on the 17th for a 1-over-par 5 and came in with a regulation 4 after holing a 5-footer to register a pair of 33's against the 36-36—72 standard.

On the 500-yard 15th, Locke holed an amazing 100-foot chip shot from tall grass for an eagle 3, and on the next hole he dropped a 15-foot putt for a deuce.

Coming in with 70's were Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., and Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich. Eight players broke pars with 71, including Sam Byrd of Detroit and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va.

In all, 25 pros shot par or better. Scores ranged up to an 88 by Edmundo Salas of Mexico City, Mex., and 84 by heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis, who is stringing along as an exhibitionist.

Oliver, the Nation's sixth leading money winner from Wilmington, Del., whose only victory this year was in the Texas open, and Keiser, the 1946 Augusta Masters champion from Arkon, Ohio, also had eagles. Both sank long putts on the 485-yard second hole which is fronted by a high-banked creek.

Following the three leaders in the field of 117 pros chasing prizes ranging up to $7000 for the title were Chick Harbert of Detroit, national PGA runner-up, with 35-33—68; and Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, Jim Milward of Madison, Wis., and E. B. Dozier of Big Springs, Tex., with 69 apiece.

While the main show was progressing, Betty Jameson topped the women's field, and three amateurs were tied for the first day lead in their section of the meet.

Jameson, the San Antonio, Tex., lassie who last week captured the National Open championship, took a two-over-par six on the eighteenth hole in her first round of the 72-hole medal test to author 38, 38—76, a stroke off women's par.

Marvin "Bud" Ward, Spokane, Wash., was refused permission to play because of his refusal to wear a number on his back identifying him.

Matt Niesen, Chicago, chairman of the tournament committee, said Ward had agreed to wear a number when he signed his application.

Culpeper Show Opens

Culpeper, Va., July 3.—The forty-third annual exhibition of the Culpeper Horse Show opening here on Friday for a two-day event, not only marks the Fourth of July holiday, but is the first real postwar show put on by the association.

John S. Thornton, secretary of the association, says that prospects are more than pleasing, that some of the best horses in Virginia and nearby States will be shown, and that the racing card is so full that several races will have to be run in sections.

The grounds and stables were put in first-class condition by a force of workmen employed during the past six weeks and are filled.

Among the exhibitors are Mrs. M. E. Whitney, who has a leg on the Challenge plate; Miss Eva Prime and Mrs. Alex Calvert of Warrenton. Miss Gloria Galban and G. H. Vandeventer of University of Virginia.

Also, Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Randolph of Upperville, Miss Jane Sprague, Marshall; Dr. L. M. Affen, Berryville; John F. McCauley and B. M. Johnson, Falls Church, and many others well known to the show ring class. Included in the local exhibitors are Oliver Durant 2d; Dewey Bache, Mrs. Alice G. Marsh, Ashby Clatterbuck and also Howard and Lindsay.

The Tennessee walking class, a favorite with the grandstand crowd, will be judged by Bernard J. Smith of Brandy Rock Farm and the pony class will be judged by Miss Julia Shipper.

Giants Tie for Lead

Defeating the Braves, 6-5, yesterday at Fort Greble in a Walter Johnson Memorial School League game, the Giants went into a first place tie with their victims. Each team has won four out of five games.

Babe Goes Home To Gay Welcome Of Denver Fans

Denver, July 3 (U.P.).—They shouted "Welcome home!" to Babe Didrickson Zaharias today, and the whoop-de-doop lasted from noon on.

The gangly gal from Texas, who became the first woman in history to parlay the British and American golf championships, received a 15-foot-long key to the city, a ton of praise and nothing-left-out from the town she now calls home.

It all started with a parade through the city limits. It was an honest to gosh mardi gras, with a score of floats depicting the Babe's athletic successes from her Olympic track days on through to her victory last week in the British Amateur.

Then came a mass barbecue on the lawn of the Civic Center, adjacent to the City Hall grounds. There was staked the largest outdoor feed in the history of Colorado.

Overhead, meanwhile, a sky-writing airplane spread its two-bits worth across the Rocky Mountain sky—a huge, "Hi, Babe."

Senators Win, 13-0, In Johnson League

The Wahington Senators defeated the Cleveland Indians, 13-0, yesterday in a Walter Johnson 12 and-under league at Anacostia Playground.

Edmund Walsh of the Senators twirled a no-hit, no-run game while striking out 13 Indian batsmen. The big sticker for the winners was Bob Rusevlyn, who hammered two home runs.

Indians' Negro Player Quite A Clouter With .458 Average

Paterson, N. J., July 3 (AP).—Larry Doby, first Negro player to make the American League, achieved the dream of his young life today, but wasn't sure whether he was "more surprised than excited, or more excited than surprised."

The 22-year-old all-around athlete, who has been banging balls against the fences of the Negro National League for the past two seasons as a second baseman for the Newark Eagles, and is this year batting .458, said "it's a big jump from our league to the majors, but I think I can make it."

"I'll go wherever Cleveland wants to send me, although of course I would rather play with the Indians themselves."

Doby said being signed by the Indians is "the greatest thing that ever happened to me . . . from time to time I'd hear rumors that I was being scouted but no one ever approached me directly until last week."

He said he was introduced to "a Mr. Louis Jones of the Cleveland Public Relations Department about two weeks ago." Jones took him to a Cleveland-Yankee game, he recalled, and afterward "he told me that Cleveland had scouted me for two months and that all reports were highly favorable."

Doby said he heard again from Jones today, asking him if he wanted to fly or go by train to Cleveland tomorrow.

"If it's all the same to you I'd rather go by train," Doby said he told Jones. "You see this is a big opportunity for me and I don't want to miss it." He hastened to assure Jones he was not afraid of flying but that "just this once, let's take the train. I'm excited enough as it is."

Doby recalls that he and Jackie Robinson, the Brooklyn Dodgers Negro first baseman and first Negro player in the majors, often spoke of the possibility of the Paterson youth moving up to the big leagues. Robinson gave him many good tips, Doby said, and "he encouraged me a lot."

Doby, who is married, played every sport in East Side High School in Paterson, and spent a short time at Long Island University before entering the Navy. He is leading the league in home runs with 13 and doubles with 16. He bats left-handed.

At Charles Town

DEAR FOLKS:

Those who like their racing with a mountain flavor are offered a nine-race program here for the holiday. With a limit field assured in all events, the feature is the Stars and Stripes Purse, located in seventh position. This test is at a mile and a sixteenth and involves eight horses, four previous winners at this meeting. The card has variety, with two events at 4½ furlongs and three over a distance of ground. Stevens, Inc., is keeping the clubhouse dining room open so if you are a winner you can go to dinner—before 8 p. m., that is. Certainly missed Jimmy Baird's riding yesterday. He will be up again next Wednesday. President and Mrs. Albert J. Boyle will tender a dinner to newspapermen and their wives after the holiday program. Duke O-Balu, the horse who figured in the chaining episode at Havre de Grace and was believed to have caused a spill here, has been destroyed. He was broken down and his sight was failing. Trainer L. R. Colon is shipping First Party, Alarosa, Teegy and Secret Raider to Garden State Park next week. See you on the rail.

Kirk Aboard $13 Winner, Tintrel 2d

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 3.—In a thrilling, three-way battle to the wire, Psychic Fancy, owned by Wayne Kendrick of Washington, was a head winner in the featured sixth race on the Thursday program. The 5-year-old mare, under punishment, was up in the final jumps to turn back S. H. Hall's Tintrel. Also in the picture was H. W. Shaffer's St. Lo.

Without a steady backing, Psychic Fancy, ridden by Jockey Woodrow Kirk of Silver Spring, Md., paid $13 and was clocked in 1:21 1-5 for the 6½ furlongs over a track that was fast. The weather was perfect for the sport.

Tintrel and Erato did the chief early running with Psychic Fancy and St. Lo being rated within striking distance. Erato finally weakened and Tintrel looked like the winner. However, Kirk drove between horses and Psychic Fancy went on under the whip to be up in the closing jump.

The second best offering on the card went to E. L. Miller's Belle Moose with Jockey Sammy Palumbo up. The daughter of Bull Moose went into the finish line two lengths in advance of J. M. Trapnell's Busy Moose with Kendrick's Frosty River third.

Returns $4.20 Mutuel

Belle Moose was clocked in .50 for the about 4½ furlongs and returned a $4.20 mutuel to her legion of backers in a holiday-eve crowd of 5000.

Palumbo and Kirk also figured in the daily double, a $20.80 affair. Palumbo rode the winner of the first race, G. A. Lawson's Fall Gal at $3.60, while Kirk put up an excellent ride to get F. Pence's Fittstown home at $9.40 in the second.

Amazing A's Again Trim Bosox, 8-4

Boston, July 3 (AP).—Phil Marchildon pitched the Philadelphia Athletics into third place over the Boston Red Sox today with a seven-hit, 8-4 victory against the American League champions before a 16,969 crowd.

The victory kept the surprising Athletics a half game behind the Detroit Tigers, who gained undisputed possession of second place by defeating Cleveland. The loss dropped the sockers to fourth place, a half game behind the A's and seven full games in the rear of the league-leading New York Yankees.

Ted Williams accounted for the fourth Boston tally when he led off the eighth inning with his fifteenth circuit clout.

Kids Play Benefit Game

The Metropolitan Amateur Athletic Association honors the memory of the late Walter Johnson, "Big Train" of the Nats, and Josh Gibson, star catcher of the Homestead Grays, Saturday with a baseball program at Griffith Stadium, the proceeds of which will send hundreds of underprivileged Washington children to summer camps.

Two sandlot ball games are on the schedule. In the first, the Silverman Rockets will play the Georgetown-Francis Bugs, both teams in the 12-years and under Walter Johnson Memorial Baseball School League, sponsored by the Washington Post, Junior Board of Trade and Recreation Department.

In the other game, the Cameo Furniture Co. team of The Washington Post's Industrial League, battles the Washington Aztecs, top Negro sandlot team of the District.

General admission tickets for the benefit game are $1, box seats, $1.50, children 50 cents. Recipients of Walter Johnson School diplomas will be admitted to the program for 35 cents, but they must purchase their tickets at 541 Florida ave. nw. Tickets are on sale at The Sport Center, 8th and D sts. nw.; 2124 14th st. nw.; The Sport Shop, 2505 Benning rd. ne.

Perfect Day For Holiday Forecast as Exodus Starts

Travel From City Hits Stride With Rail, Bus Lines Adding Sections

The Weather Bureau yesterday promised holiday weekenders perfect weather, and the great stampede to leave the city began.

Predictions were for sunny weather today, becoming warmer and a little more humid tomorrow and Sunday in the Washington area.

Heavy travel was reported by airlines, railroads, bus companies and the American Automobile Association, beginning as early as last weekend and really hitting its stride yesterday afternoon.

While in other parts of the Nation, traffic was expected to break all records, Washington's travel agencies, handling a large-sized holiday rush, recalled other weekends with even more of an exodus.

Extra Rail, Bus Sections

The railroads used 46 extra sections in and out of the Union Station yesterday. Bus companies also reported extra equipment being rushed into service, Trailways alone having 46 extra vehicles on the road, with their forces here doubled at 3 p. m. yesterday.

The AAA estimated that travel routings furnished for their members were 25 per cent ahead of last year, with hotel and other accommodations pretty "tight" and some tourists finding themselves without a place to stay.

With the National Safety Council predicting 275 highway fatalities during the three-day holiday, the local AAA and District Traffic Director George E. Keneipp asked motorists to observe safe-and-sane rules of driving.

Keneipp urged them to keep both tempers and speed down, avoid long stretches of driving, be extra careful and dim headlights at night, check the condition of their cars, be prepared for sunlight glare, and watch out for children.

The Council of Social Agencies, mindful of other mishaps that can occur on carefree outings, urged using common sense while swimming, avoidance of impure drinking water and poison plants, too much exercise, too much sun, and carelessness with fireworks.

District and Maryland authorities reminded their citizens that the use of most fireworks is subject to permit.

Today's holiday means a three-day closing for banks and most stores in the area, as well as most business houses.

Coast Storm Due to Mar Holiday in New England

Miami, Fla., July 3 (AP).—A sea storm promised bad weather for the Fourth of July along the New England Coast.

The Federal Storm Warning Service today said the center of the disturbance, which developed off the North Carolina Coast today, would remain at sea, but probably would offer a backlash of rain and squalls along New England's coastline tomorrow.

The forecaster warned ships at sea to be prepared for heavy gales in shipping lanes off the middle and North Carolina Coasts during the next two days. Small craft around the North Carolina Capes were advised to remain in port.

Urquhart, EM 2/c, of 2122 P st. nw.; Harold G. Gegenheimer, S 2/c (squatting), of 3415 Holmead pl. nw., and Charles E. Eller, S 1/c, of 2909 Nash pl. se.

Father Revives Baby by Exhaling Into His Lungs

Baltimore, July 3 (AP).—A desperate father saved his 4-month-old son from death by suffocation today by breathing into the infant's lungs until it recovered its respiration and medical aid was summoned.

John Rohl told Union Memorial Hospital authorities he found the boy lying in his carriage, so close to death its skin had already turned blue. He snatched the child into his arms, Rohl said, and began exhaling into its mouth, until it started breathing again.

Oxygen was administered to the boy after an ambulance arrived, and hospital attaches said he would recover.

Bill to Speed Airport Disposal Passes Senate

The Senate approved unanimously and sent to the House yesterday legislation designed to speed up disposal of surplus government airports.

The bill would permit the War Assets Administration to transfer Federally-owned airports to local or state public agencies without cost.

Cameraman Injured

Hollywood, July 3 (AP).—Harold Rosson, movie cameraman and one-time husband of the late actress Jean Harlow, was knocked down by a hit-run motorist on Sunset Boulevard last night, police reported. After treatment for nose, head and leg injuries he was removed to his home.

Due to the holiday, the Federal Diary is omitted today. It will be resumed Sunday.

Army Staff College Graduates Told Strength Is Needed

Fort Leavenworth, Kans., July 3 (AP).—Graduates of the first post-war regular course at the Command and General Staff College were told today America "has no appetite for further conflicts" but that the existence "of military strength is the best guarantee of peace."

Addressing the 308 graduates—58 of them from other countries—Undersecretary of War Kenneth C. Royall said the "country at large would prefer to assume that our armed forces would always be peacetime forces."

"But," he continued, "you officers of the Army, Navy and Air Forces cannot proceed on this assumption. If you did, you would defeat the very purpose of preparedness. You must train and plan with war in view."

Educator Decries Sadistic Teachers In U. S. Schools

New York, July 3 (U.P.).—An educator charged today that "sadistic, frustrated females" are teaching in the modern school system to the "everlasting detriment" of the children.

Dr. Abraham N. Franzblaud, dean of the Hebrew Union College school of religious education, said that teachers often "get a sense of power out of the classroom situation and in turn evoke aggressive and destructive reactions in the children with whom they deal."

"What the teacher says is not one hundredth as significant as what the teacher is," he said. "Teachers must be warm, understanding people who are sensitive to their pupils' needs and evoke the pupils' confidence."

Congress Told What Activities U. S. Might Turn Over to D. C.

The District was breaking even yesterday as Federal officials started telling Congress what activities they would be willing to turn over to a Washington home-rule government.

Interior officials made clear to the House District Home Rule Subcommittee they were all against surrendering Federal control of the National Capital Parks in the District. They said, too, they wanted the Park Police kept separate from the Metropolitan Police.

On the other side, Robert C. Goodwin, director of the United States Employment Service, said "there would be justification" for transfering the District employment service from Federal to city control under a home-rule setup here.

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), subcommittee chairman, said Goodwin's suggestion was "very refreshing."

Auchincloss said generally Federal agencies showed "great reluctance" to give up any functions.

Goodwin said under a system of District self-rule all local labor functions could logically be brought together into a city labor or industrial relations department.

He pointed out the Federal Government now pays the full cost of employment services in the States and the District. He said legislation to divide the costs between Federal and State governments may be introduced in the next session. He said if the States and District were made to contribute half the costs of their employment services, the District would have to pay about $295,000 a year.

Witnesses who presented the Interior Department's stand against turning over park control to the District included:

A. E. Demaray, associate director of the National Park Service; Irving C. Root, superintendent, and Frank T. Gartside, assistant superintendent of National Capital Parks.

Demaray presented an Interior Department statement on the parks in the District, declaring:

"In any consideration of the organization of the District, weight should be given to the fact that Washington is primarily a Federal city. . . . The park system for the Federal city has been developed by Federal agencies and is essentially national in character. . . . It enhances the dignity and beauty of the National Capital and its operation and maintenance is no mere municipal function. . . . There is much to be gained in the retention of the National Capital parks in the Department of the Interior, whereas this department knows of no advantages that would result by placing the administration of the park system under the local municipal authorities."

Subcommittee Staff Director George B. Galloway quizzed the Interior officials about the District's share in paying for the parks here.

Gartside said in the last year the District contributed $1,354,523 while Federal funds totaled $1,818,600. He said the Federal total included $882,250 for operation and improvements of the White House, counted as part of the park system.

Million Dollar Road Relocation Project to Begin

Cumberland, Md., July 3 (AP).—Relocation of 4.7 miles of U. S. 40 between Crystal Park, near Cumberland, and Frostburg will be started this year, G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the Maryland State Roads Commission, said today.

Chaires said the project will cost more than one million dollars and will take about a year to complete.

The new strip of road will vary from 28 to 44 feet wide and will have two, three and four-lane traffic. It will be necessary to move nine homes to make room for the road. Rights-of-way have been obtained for most of the 100 pieces of property involved, Chaires said.

The minimum width will consist of two 12-foot concrete strips separated by 4 feet of black top material.

Hedy Sues for Divorce, Cites Mental Anguish

Hollywood, July 3 (U.P.).—Hedy Lamarr, whose marital squabbles with John Loder made almost every day sound like the Fourth of July at their home, late today filed suit for a divorce, charging life with Loder meant only "great and grevious mental suffering."

Miss Lamarr said she and Loder had reached a settlement regarding community property, money and custody of their three children.

Thieves Get Total of $780

Thieves obtained $320 from a feed store safe, and $100 from another safe in two burglaries, it was reported to police yesterday, while five robberies netted stick-up men a total of approximately $360.

Paul H. Meyer, manager for the Dickey Brothers, Kenilworth ave. and Benning rd. ne., reported the feed store robbery. The dial was knocked off the safe, police reported.

Disappearance of $100 from an unlocked safe at the Perfection Cleaners, 2513 Pennsylvania ave. nw., during working hours was reported by Nathan Blaik, manager.

Charles Shifflett, jr., 25, of Elkton, Va., told police that he was robbed of $217 and a wristwatch early yesterday.

Shifflett said he was leaning against a tree in the 700 block of N st. nw. waiting for a cab when a tall man approached him from behind, put the point of a knife against his throat while he robbed him and then fled on foot.

Pvt. Walter Tinsley of Fort Belvoir, Va., reported that $55 was taken from his pocket early yesterday while he slept on a lawn in the 1400 block of N st. nw.

Harold Ross, 52, of the 800 block, fifth st. nw., reported that while sitting in a park at Fifth and G sts. nw. he was struck on the head by two youths who took his wallet with $45.

Clifton Flood, 16, of 1315 28th st. nw., reported that while walking north on 28th st. near Olive ave. nw. he was attacked by three men, knocked down, struck in the face, kicked in the stomach and ribs and robbed of $3.70.

Arthur Young, 50, of the 1700 block Willard st. nw., reported being attacked by two men in a park at Sixth and R sts. nw. and robbed of $38.

Suicide by Plane Theory Disputed By Flier's Wife

Miami, Fla., July 3 (AP).—While police investigated a theory that 27-year-old Torris V. Seigle deliberately ended his life here last night by crashing his plane into a thickly populated section, his 21-year-old estranged wife declared today, "Torris wasn't trying to kill himself, I know it."

The small plane crashed within two blocks of where Mrs. Seigle lived after having "buzzed" the area twice, and not far from the shop where she was employed.

Deputy Sheriff Claude High said "it is definitely my opinion that Seigle was trying to crash into the house where his wife lived."

Mrs. Seigle told police she did not think her husband knew where she was living, and that he had intended to "buzz" the sundry store where she was employed.

Mrs. Seigle told police she and her husband had quarreled about two months ago, but were nearing reconciliation.

"I didn't think too much of his call yesterday when he rung off after saying 'read the morning papers,'" she told investigators.

20-Year Employe Gets 8 Months For Mail Thefts

Baltimore, July 3 (AP).—Claude H. Way, who was a postoffice employe for 20 years and, officials said, had an exemplary record, pleaded guilty to four counts of mail theft today and was sentenced to eight months imprisonment.

Testimony before Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut said Way, a 43-year-old Baltimorean, was picked up last June 16 after four test letters had been "planted" by investigators.

Way admitted taking $30 from the mails during the past six months. His attorney told the court the thefts took place when the defendant had been drinking.

A request for probation was refused by Judge Chesnut, who said such procedure would "not be consistent with the public welfare."

Apartment Owner To Base Argument For 16% Hike on Higher D. C. Levy

First argument for increased rents because of the new District real estate tax rate here will be heard by the District Rent Control Board July 21.

Stephen G. Ingham, attorney for S. D. Moses, owner of an 86-unit apartment house at 1314 Massachusetts ave. nw., yesterday said he planned to cite the tax boost in his plea for an average 16-per-cent rent increase.

The Commissioners ordered the real estate tax rate increased from $1.75 to $2 per $100 assessed value last Tuesday.

Ingham said his formal petition had been prepared before the tax increase was announced. "But I plan to use the tax raise as an argument for higher rents in testimony at the hearing," he said.

Ernest Williams, general counsel for the Rent Control Board, said this would be the first case in which the next tax rate would be cited. He said it was "usually allowable" to introduce new arguments, not included in the formal petition, during hearings.

Examiner James G. Tyson will hear the case, he revealed.

Other arguments for the rent rise, Ingham said, are increased maintenance and operating costs and a hike in District property assessments.

Prince Georges Adjudges Man Suicide

James B. Dixon, 71, of 6213 42d ave., Hyattsville, Md., died yesterday in Leland Memorial Hospital at Riverdale—a delayed victim of suicide.

Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince Georges County medical examiner, issued a certificate of suicide from tetanus.

According to police, Dixon, a carpenter, was drinking in a Riverdale tavern the night of June 21 with his estranged wife, Mrs. Mevie L. Dixon, 43, of 3810 Powhatan st., Hyattsville.

On the way home, police said, there was an argument and Dixon slashed his wife with a razor. She ran to her home, called police and was taken to Leland Memorial.

Police found Dixon, his throat slashed, on the front porch of his house several hours later. After treatment at the hospital, Dixon was taken to the Hyattsville jail, charged with assault with intent to kill and released in $2500 bond.

The hospital had instructed Dixon to return for further treatment last Thursday. When he did so, his condition was found to be serious and he was admitted. The tetanus infection which developed in the self-inflicted wound caused his death yesterday.

His wife is still a patient in the same hospital.

Legion Clubhouse To Be Dedicated At Silver Spring

Cissel, Saxon Post, American Legion, will dedicate its new $50,000 clubhouse at 907 Sligo ave., Silver Spring, at 3 p. m. Sunday, with national and State officers as speakers.

The clubhouse will be dedicated by National Commander Paul Griffiths to "community service and child welfare," John F. Collier, chairman, said yesterday. Open to the public, the ceremonies will be highlighted by a concert by the Elks Boys Band of 60 pieces and Flag-raising by the Post's color guard led by Lieut. Joseph Walsh.

Every service organization in the Silver Spring area will be represented. Refreshments will be served after the program. In case of rain the program will be conducted indoors.

John Alexander, retiring commander, and William Brannan, new commander, will be toastmasters.

3 Events Planned For This Weekend In Capital Parks

In Senate Hearing

Alcohol Need Cause Of Clash

A Senator and a nerve specialist clashed yesterday on the place of alcohol in American life.

The medical expert, Dr. E. Y. Williams, chief of the neuropsychiatric service of Freedmen's Hospital, labeled alcohol a "necessity" in testimony before a Senate District subcommittee studying proposed establishment of an alcoholic clinic.

Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), a trifle miffed, shot back:

"I don't think it's a bit necessary. I never touched a drop in my life and I never felt better."

The legislator was soon placated, however, when the physician explained that strong individuals do not require liquid bracers while many weak ones do. For many, he said, drinking is the only thing that keeps them going from day to day in America's "fast-paced" life.

Generally favorable to the House-approved Hebert Bill, Dr. Williams recommended that it be modified to provide for emphasise on rehabilitation rather than treatment.

Earlier, Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman of legislation for the Washington Committee for Education on Alcoholism, urged that an alcoholic rehabilitation program include:

1. An out patient clinic service; 2. an in-patient service to be given at Gallinger Hospital; 3. a research program into the causes and cures of alcoholism.

Dr. Clinton N. Howard, general superintendent of the International Reform Federation, went on record in favor of the proposed clinic but called for a tax on newspaper liquor ads to help defray the cost.

Care Centers May Possibly Open July 14

But Action Depends On House Making Funds Available

Acting Welfare Director Raymond F. Clapp said yesterday July 14 appears the earliest possible date for reopening the District child day care centers.

Opening then, he said, depends upon whether the regular District 1948 money bill contains funds for the centers when it clears the House next week. House action is planned Wednesday.

Although the President and Congress have approved funds to continue the centers for a year, the centers have been out of funds since Tuesday. The plan to continue them is held up until they get authority for operations through an appropriation bill.

Held Up By Technicalities

Legislative technicalities have held up that authority. One is that no budget estimate went from the President to Congress for the centers before July 2. The other is that officially there is no District appropriation bill before Congress, and won't be until the House Appropriations Committee sends one to the floor Tuesday.

Clapp said if the House includes funds for the centers next week, "we expect to be able to proceed and open the following Monday."

Two of the six centers to be operated this year have been open with volunteer help.

Children Sent To Relatives

Mrs. Marguerite Grey, chairman of the mother's committee for the centers, said in order to go to work she has had to send her two children to the home of a relative near Hyattsville, Md.

Mrs. Grey works as a telephone company contact clerk. Her children, Constance, 7, and Glenn, 6, were in the Truesdell Center, 9th and Ingraham, nw. They live at 1321 Kenyon st. nw.

Mrs. Grey said she had tried without success to get in touch with top District officials to seek action on the centers.

12 D. C. Bills Approved in Unanimous Senate Vote

5 Go to President, Others Sent to Hou; One Inflicts Penalt For Sports Bribery

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The Senate late yesterday proved a dozen District bills, sending five of them to the White House.

Others sent to the House included bills to give the District a modernized legal code for corporations, and to reorganize the city's parole setup. All the bills were cleared by unanimous consent.

A thirteenth bill, which also went to the White House, authorizes $25,000 to prepare plans for giving House members more office space.

Five Go to White House

District measures forwarded to the President for his signature included:

1. Heavy penalties for sports bribery.

2. Authority for the District to pay an estimated $9000 a year to support the Metropolitan Police Band.

3. Authority for a $10,000 annual fund for the District Commissioners to entertain visiting officials.

4. A new law to make the District pay property owners their expenses in condemnation proceedings which the city finally abandons.

5. Legal clearance for the District to sell to the Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington Railroad Co., a section of the Southwest Washington freight yards which was once the 1200 block of E st. sw.

House Gets Parole Bill

The parole bill, earlier approved by the House giving the District parole board one full-time salaried member cleared the Senate. It must go back to the House for agreement on two changes. One requires that the parole board chairman be one of the two unpaid members. The other says a person can have legal counsel at a hearing on revoking his parole.

Also returned to the House for agreement on minor differences was a bill to permit erection of an Andrew W. Mellon memorial fountain near the National Gallery of Art.

The senate also approved five of its own District bills, and forwarded them to the House for review by its District Committee. The bills would:

1. Give the District a new modern legal code for setting up and operating corporations. The bill was sponsored first by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), and Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) steered it through the Senate. Kem cited a District bar report that the present corporate code is so "rigid and inadequate" that almost no corporations have been formed under it for 25 years or more.

Fete Board Set Up

2. Set up a commission to arrange the District's sesquicentennial celebration for 1950.

3. Let Washington Episcopal parishes and congregations adopt their own bylaws for electing vestrymen.

4. Permit Municipal Court reporters to charge fees for official transcripts, like reporters in other District Courts.

5. Let the estate of a dead person be sued for personal injuries he caused another individual. Present law permits a damage suit for death against an estate but not a damage suit for personal injuries.

The Senate deferred action on three bills to revise the District insurance laws. Major changes proposed in them are authority for insurance companies to invest in housing, and to use modern mortality tables for life insurance.

Meanwhile, a House District Subcommittee approved the bill of its chairman, Representative Sid Simpson (R., Ill.) to let insurance companies operate here without application of the antitrust law. The group also cleared a Senate bill to permit pooling trust accounts for improved investment.

'Hotfoot' Produces Roasting Ears on 4th

By The Associated Press

Anthony Barrett of Timonium, Md., gave two rows of sugar corn a hotfoot and will have roasting ears for his Fourth of July dinner.

Elsewhere in Maryland sugar corn is just knee high.

Last April, he buried two 60-foot lead-covered heating cables in his garden. They were attached to a thermostatic control and a special meter supplied by the gas and electric company.

He planted the corn April 15 in hills about 1½ inches above the cables and set the thermostat at 50 degrees.

Five other rows were planted without benefit of hotfoot treatment.

At a cost of about $2 for electricity, Barrett has a good crop of corn from the two rows.

The other five rows are yet to bear.

Tobacco Barn Burns

Annapolis, Md., July 3 (AP).—A barn containing approximately 14,000 pounds of tobacco, with a total value of $15,000, was destroyed last night on a farm at Harness Creek, near here.

Fred Walker owned the farm and contents on the farm land of Christ P. Nelson.

Walker said the barn was only a year old and solidly constructed of oak timbers. The heat of the fire was so intense it melted the aluminum roof.

Anderson sends his greetings to the English mayor on New Year's Day.

Leaf Average Climbs

Baltimore, July 3 (AP).—Average prices for a majority of grades offered on southern Maryland tobacco auction markets during a three-day selling period ended yesterday were steady to $6 higher than the previous week, the United States Department of Agriculture reported.

Most gains were from 50 cents to $2, but the cost of the lower quality marketing after Monday's sales at some points and a slight drop in prices on several grades dropped the average to $46.69 or a decline of 26 cents from the previous week.

The volume of sales was heavy, with 1,670,192 pounds offered. The most active demand centered on tips and seconds, while the largest increase was for fair dingy bright crop which made a gain of $6.

The markets have closed for July 4, not to reopen until Monday.

Takes Blaze to Firemen

Baltimore, July 3 (AP).—Mechanic Joseph Marchak was repairing a car yesterday when a spark from a welding iron set fire to the fuel tank.

Instead of turning in an alarm, Marchak jumped into the automobile and sped toward a fire house a mile distant.

Firemen found the flames had been blown out in the high wind engendered by the fast trip.

Record of Records

Annapolis, Md., July 3 (AP).—Dr. Morris L. Radoff, State archivist, believes in keeping the record straight on the Hall of Records.

He has just published a pamphlet entitled, "The First to Fourth Annual Reports of the Archivist of the Hall of Records."

The work brings to completion to date the history of the Hall of Records so far as it is ascertainable.

The first three annual reports of the depository of important Maryland documents were prepared by Dr. James A. Robertson, the first archivist. These were distributed among members of the Hall of Records Commission.

When after Dr. Robertson died, Dr. Radoff took over the job, June 16, 1939, he prepared a similar report. This was later printed for public use.

Now in the new pamphlet Dr. Radoff has completed the record outlining the early days of the Hall of Records which stands on St. John's College campus.

Since the new archivist took over eight reports have been printed. The twelfth is being prepared now.

Fire Losses Drop

Annapolis, Md., July 3 (AP).—State fire losses during the spring season were at a record low of less than one-tenth of one per cent of Maryland's woodland acreage, State Forester H. Buckingham reported today.

Buckingham said there were 331 fires this spring compared to 540 in the preceding year.

Burned over acreage during the most hazardous period totaled 2372 against 6732 last year. The State's total acreage is 2,700,000.

The low was a new record for the State, for which Buckingham credited the "highly trained field personnel, modern equipment designed for fire detection and suppression and the department's year-round campaign in fire prevention."

'Don't Strike Out on Your Vacation . . .'

Television 'Eye' Urged For Air Safety

Leesburg, Va., July 3 (AP).—The Air Line Pilots Union recommended a cloud-penetrating television "eye" for large planes today as the Government concluded the public hearing phase of its investigation into the crash of a Capital Airlines plane on a mountainside near here June 13. All 50 persons aboard the plane were killed.

The television proposal was made by Carl F. Eck of Chicago, a safety engineer for the Air Lines Pilots Association (AFL).

Eck said that an infra-red television set in the nose of the aircraft to present a picture of the actual terrain at all times would eliminate so-called instrument landings. He suggested that radar to detect thunderstorms should be coupled with the infra-red television since this latter would penetrate the bad weather without disclosing it.

Until those ultimate objectives are obtained, Eck said the union recommends six steps for improved safety:

1. A non-fouling altimeter static tube arrangement "must be installed."

(This was a reference to extensive testimony earlier in the day concerning the possibility of water logging an air tube essential to the accurate operation of the altimeter.)

2. Airways traffic control orders should be clearer and more accurate and there should be standardization of clearance with respect to minimum altitudes.

3. In view of congestion at major airports, landing privileges during periods of instrument flying conditions should be confined to pilots qualified for airline transport flying.

4. Better intermediate position markers should be installed between Pittsburgh and Martinsburg probably with a beacon on a ridge near Flintstone, a point 80 miles southeast of Pittsburgh where airway ranges intersect.

5. Improved types of radio range should be installed and ultimately should be changed to VHF (very high frequency) as soon as possible. (VHF is regarded as more dependable and less subject to interference than ranges using lower frequency.)

6. The flight engineer should be required as a crew member on all four-engine aircraft.

Officer Today Marks 25th Anniversary

The Fourth of July holds a special significance for Inspector Earl H. Burdine, veteran Montgomery County police officer.

Burdine

The 46-year-old policeman will observe the holiday by completing 25 years of service, thus becoming eligible for voluntary retirement and a "life of leisure" on his small farm at Redland.

A native of Takoma Park, Burdine was one of the six original members of the force when it was formed in 1922. He was the last of that group to remain on active duty with the department. Three of the other five are dead and the remaining two have retired.

He also will be the last member of the force to hold the rank of inspector. The County Commissions several weeks ago ordered that it be abolished on his retirement and the highest rank on the force will now be that of captain.

A veteran of the days when policemen relied mainly on brawn, Inspector Burdine has figured in virtually every major case investigated by the Montgomery force. He is probably the best known officer on the force. He has served eight times as president of the county Police Association, which he organized nearly two decades ago.

In 1929, Inspector Burdine was wounded when he grappled with a gunman who attempted to hold him up when he parked his car to observe the occupant of another parked car in a wooded area near Rockville. The injury, kept him on the shelf for three months.

The inspector is a veteran of World War I, with three years of Army service, including 14 months of combat in France. He was discharged as a corporal.

Following his appointment to the police force in 1922, Burdine was promoted to sergeant in July, 1925. He was made a lieutenant in July, 1941; a captain in May, 1943, and was elevated to his present rank on July 9 of last year.

He is married and is the father of two sons and a daughter.

Fairfax Child Clinic Given High Rating

The Fairfax County Child Consultation Service has been rated one of the most up to date mental hygiene clinics in the State of Virginia.

A recent survey by the United States Public Health Service showed that it is the only Virginia clinic in a semi-rural area with a psychiatrist, psychologist and psychiatric social worker.

Fairfax, Arlington and Alexandria comprise one of the 13 mental hygiene service districts set up in the State. Neither Arlington nor Alexandria as yet has a clinic although Arlington plans to start one soon.

Through May the clinic had dealt with 94 cases this year. Most of the cases were referred by schools. A few came from juvenile court or from troubled parents. No cases are handled without the consent of the parents.

Treatment of each case is divided into four phases:

1. Physical examination by a private physician.

2. A social history of the child and his family is taken by the psychiatric social worker.

3. Tests given by the psychologist to determine aptitudes, disabilities and intelligence.

4. Treatment by the psychiatrist.

Meetings are held with teachers or juvenile authorities concerned and the case followed through until some adjustment has been made.

The clinic is financed largely through the Community Chest, and partly from State funds. Clinic director is Dr. L. E. Wexberg, who is also director of the District Health Department's Mental Hygiene Clinic.

Bank Seizes Montgomery Paper Plant

Properties of the Montgomery Independent-Standard, only daily newspaper in Montgomery County, were seized yesterday by the Citizens Bank of Takoma Park.

A spokesman for the bank said the paper's plant and mechanical equipment at Rockville had been taken over because the Standard failed to pay off a $20,000 loan granted by the bank last August. About $18,000 of the balance, he said, was unpaid at the time of the seizure.

R. C. Musser, publisher of the newspaper, made no comment, and also declined to say whether he would attempt to continue publication. The Standard office was closed both yesterday and today in observance of the July 4 holiday, and no editions were scheduled for either day.

Seizure of the plant will be followed by foreclosure proceedings to be filed in Montgomery Circuit Court at Rockville next week, the bank's representative said. He added that the equipment probably would be sold at auction to satisfy the unpaid balance on the loan and said the banks has no plans to continue operation of the plant.

A combination of the old Montgomery Independent and the Silver Spring Standard, the paper has been operating as a county-wide weekly for about eight years. Last July it began to be published twice weekly. It became a daily last October 1.

Autopsy Result Awaited in Newbill Death

Charlottesville, Va., July 3 (AP).—Albemarle County authorities investigating the death of Dr. Hugh Page Newbill, 38, superintendent of Dejarnette Sanatorium, awaited today reports of an autopsy ordered by Dr. Herbert Breyfogel, the state's chief medical examiner.

W. O. Fife, Commonwealth's attorney, said there had been no development and that he was awaiting a report on the autopsy. Earlier, Dr. E. D. Davis, county coroner, said results of the autopsy would not be known for "four or five" days.

Funeral services for Newbill, found dead yesterday in his vacation cabin northeast of Charlottesville, have been arranged for noon Saturday at the Derry funeral chapel in Norfolk. The Rev. Sparks Melton, pastor of Freemason Street Baptist Church, will officiate.

The body of the Dejarnette Sanatorium head was found by his secretary, Miss Margaret Hanger, who went to the cabin to have him sign some papers.

County authorities who went to the cabin to investigate after receiving Miss Hanger's report, said indications were that Newbill had been dead for more than two weeks.

Dr. Davis said there was no evidence of foul play.

Too Much Revenue

ABC Head Says Virginia Over Drinks

By The Associated Press

Virginians are drinking too much whisky and the Commonwealth is making too much money from the sale of whisky, Hunter Miller, chairman of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, said in an interview yesterday in Richmond.

"It was never intended that the board regulate the legal social habits of Virginians," Miller declared, "and I do not think that the legislators who wrote the law ever expected the sales to be so high or the revenue a significant factor in the State's business.

"If the large amount of revenue from liquor ever should be permitted to hamper the control system, it would be a bad thing. In any event, Virginia's control system still is standing up very well in comparison with those of other States, and it still seems to provide some of the wisest answers to the age-old questions raised by alcohol."

The ABC board chairman said, that the board has little complaint against the public's general attitude toward liquor control policies, that there is a minimum of patronage for bootleggers and that even severe critics of alcohol have accorded the board and its policies and problems sympathetic consideration.

Miller said that while the board should not be blamed for the personal habits responsible for heavy drinking, it is concerned, however, about the situation and is anxious to use its control power as far as it can go in the direction of inducing a greater degree of temperance.

The ABC official emphasized that Virginia's reputation for heavy drinking can be attributed to a large degree upon the heavy purchases of liquor by residents of bordering States. He said that nearly 80 per cent of the recent increases in ABC store sales was believed due to purchases by non-Virginia customers after the lifting of the State's ration regulations last year.

Funeral Rites Set Tomorrow For Whiteside

Funeral services for Garrett Whiteside, for many years dean of congressional secretaries, will be held tomorrow at noon at Hines Funeral Home, 2901 14th st. nw.

Mr. Whiteside

Mr. Whiteside, 63, died unexpectedly at his home, 5817 Chevy Chase pkwy., Wednesday night.

After 40 years as a congressional secretary, he retired as Senate clerk of enrolled bills on March 1 of this year. Mr. Whiteside came to Washington in 1907 from his home in Nashville, Ark., to serve as secretary to Representative Ben Cravens. When Cravens retired in 1913, Mr. Whiteside acted as secretary to his successor, Representative Otis Wingo.

While serving with Wingo, he was also clerk of the House Committee on Enrolled Bills. In 1917, it was Mr. Whiteside who typed the American declaration of war against Germany for Representative Flood, then chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

In 1921, Mr. Whiteside became secretary to Senator Thaddeus Caraway (D., Ark.). When the Senator died in 1931, and was succeeded by his wife, he became her aide. Mr. Whiteside remained with Senator Hattie Caraway until she retired from the Senate in 1945. He then became Senate clerk of enrolled bills, and continued in that capacity until his retirement.

As clerk of the Senate Committee on Enrolled Bills, Mr. Whiteside carried to the President the American declaration of war against Germany and Japan in 1941. He also delivered the Senate ratification of the U. N. charter to the White House, and had hoped to be able to deliver the peace treaties.

Mr. Whiteside is survived by his wife, Mrs. Pearl B. Whiteside, a daughter, Mrs. Algernon S. Gardiner, jr., of Bethesda, and three grandchildren.

Survey Forms On Pollution Distributed

Annapolis, Md., July 3 (AP).—The new Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission will call on public-spirited citizens to aid in the fight to clean up State waters, Paul H. McKee, executive secretary, said today.

Forms are being prepared to be distributed to sportsmen's organizations as well as State agencies' employes to report pollution conditions to the commission.

The commission will have three forms for record purposes. The first will be for the general public as well as such persons as forest and game wardens, officers of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission, sanitary officers of the Department of Health, and sportsmen.

On this form the general nature of the condition will be described.

Armed with this one of the commission's three field agents, or the executive secretary himself, will make an investigation report with recommendations.

A second follow-up will be made with a complete run of tests on the water, with analysis of the water contents and the interpretation. This latter test will determine the effects of pollution on swimmers, fish and animal life.

The commission's budget of $22,990 for the 1948 fiscal year is being amended for the Governor's approval. It will include also $3829 left over from the original committee on water pollution control named by Governor O'Conor. This fund will be used for laboratory equipment.

The commission was the result of the committee's studies, embodied into law by the 1947 Legislature.

Wife Says Marriage Is Idyllic, Except That Husband Is Unpunctual About Going to Work, Coming Home; This One Fault Is Maddening

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I have been married three years and have a 15-month-old daughter. We are extremely happy except for one thing which is assuming mountainous proportions and threatening our marriage.

Tom is always late. Time and again, after calling to say he'll be home in 30 minutes, he walks in three or four hours later, after dinner has spoiled and I've tucked the baby in bed, crying her heart out because Daddy wasn't there for her goodnight kiss.

It isn't only in our personal life that he is so unpunctual. He's always late to work, though he gets plenty of sleep and occasionally I manage to get him up early. He is so slow about dressing and eating his breakfast—yet holds me to blame!

Tom isn't lazy; in fact, he's extremely ambitious—by spurts! And I don't want to become a nagging wife. In fact, I do my best to hurry him along without seeming to; but I've always been a very punctual person and it drives me nearly crazy trying to cope with his dawdling. No matter how carefully we lay our plans, they have to be revised time and again.

Wife Is Sickly Since Baby Came

WE'VE TRIED to reason the problem out together and Tom realizes how thoughtless he seems. He says he really tries hard to be on time, but somehow it never works out. Perhaps it is foolish of me to make so much of a minor habit; but it happens so often that I can't stand much more; and I'm so terribly discouraged and upset that I don't care to discuss it with him any more.

I myself have been ill since our baby was born. I've lost a great deal of weight and still don't feel quite up to par. My doctor says to avoid worry and strain but I'm constantly on edge about Tom's unpunctuality. If it weren't for this, our life would be idyllic. We have our own home, a garden and a dog.

We can't afford a baby sitter so we don't go out together, though Tom goes out several times a week. It's rather hard on me, staying home all the time; but I don't mind too much, so long as we can look forward to a brighter future. We both will sincerely welcome your advice—because Tom has spent this entire day being late again.

J. S.

Man Dislikes Responsibility

DEAR J. S.: Your marriage is a long way from being idyllic. Your state of health points to all sorts of problems beneath the surface—and Tom's habitual unpunctuality is simply the last straw, I think.

Obviously Tom is a pretty juvenile person—so much so, his performance indicates, that one wonders how you've acquired a nice little home. He doesn't sound much like the good provider type.

Tom is allergic to obligations, duty, discipline. That's why he can't get to work or come home on schedule; also why he gads about considerably, while you get no relief from baby-care. His unpunctuality spells unconscious resistance to responsibility; and so does the fact of his being a great sleeper, who never feels sufficiently rested to rise up early.

He has a child's reflex of playing a delaying action against situations he doesn't like; and the more you needle him about his dawdling, the less he likes to come home at all. You're spending your strength in vain, trying to push and goad him into being on time. Far better wash your hands of him on that score and let him miss every boat if he will.

Both Partners Need Guidance

THIS POLICY might or might not bring a change in him; but if it doesn't, nothing will. His evasive attitude toward commitments reflects acute psychological immaturity, a condition which he only can correct—as he might see fit to do, if you stopped trying to prop him up and push him along and he got short shrift from others.

Now, back to your health! Your frailty suggests neurasthenia at this point. Your emotions are making you sick. I dare say you've been an anxious soul from earliest memory, with a chronic tendency to worry about everything. Thus the burdens of marriage and parenthood—past, present and to come—weigh very heavily on your shoulders; and Tom's unstable, noncooperative performance is of course a real cross to bear.

Whether by neurotic bent or provocation, you are a nagging wife already; and you'd better cross-examine yourself as a mother, if it's true that your 15-month-old daughter "cries her heart out because Daddy isn't home for her goodnight kiss." This suggests you've been manipulating her feelings to serve your own ends; indirectly fostering such hysteria in her to shame Tom for coming in late.

I say this because any wise, unselfish mother would instinctively influence her child to adjust tolerantly to such a minor deprivation; and the fact that you haven't is not to your credit. In my opinion, you and Tom need a stiff course of psychological instruction to get straightened out; and my advice is to consult such authority at firsthand.

Java in a Jiffy Claimed for New Coffee Pot

By Eleanor Griesemer

Baltimore.—A couple of male inventors have invaded the kitchen to try to improve the morning coffee.

The inventors, Fred E. Stuart of Baltimore and F. O. Baldwin of Richmond, Va., have developed a contraption which combines both drip and vacuum principles and reduces the whole coffee-making process to 4½ minutes.

Stuart, a designer of water purification equipment from 'way back, says the object of coffee-making is to get it strong and black, but without the sediment.

The new coffee pot has a filter paper. It also has a thermometer for heat control because, says Stuart, the best coffee is made at 180 to 212 degrees, boiling point at sea level. Any hotter and the coffee gets a bitter taste, he says.

The coffee maker works like this: There is a plain mug-shaped outside pot and another tightly-capped pot which fits snugly inside. The inside container has a double bottom, with pinpoint holes in one section and little tunnels leading to larger holes in the other. The filter paper fits between.

Both the coffee and water are put in the outside container. A certain amount of water filters down through the perforated bottom and hits the bottom of the outside container, which is on the stove.

These drops of water are quickly converted into steam and bounce back up through the holes and the filter paper.

Miss Dolan Celebrates 20th Anniversary at Century-Old Hotel

Housekeeping's an Executive Job at Willard

Post Staff Photos—Ellis

CHECKING over linen supplies is one of the multitudinous duties of Miss Sadie Dolan, housekeeper at the historic Willard Hotel for the past 20 years

THE grandfather's clock which has watched generations come and go in three successive Willard lobbies is being dusted here by Lena Scales of the housekeeping staff

GETTING the Willard Room ready for its daily influx of visitors is quite a job. Here Artrice Giest arranges flowers in the center of the room and Nola Ray cleans the chairs with a special leather polish

By Lucia Brown

HOW would you like to keep house for 4000 persons every day—get 500,000 square feet of floors cleaned, 4000 pieces of furniture dusted, and 3000 pieces of linen laundered?

Sounds staggering, doesn't it? Even Miss Sadie Dolan, executive housekeeper at the historic Willard Hotel, admits it's no snap. But she wouldn't change jobs with anybody, just the same.

Today, Miss Dolan and other members of the Willard staff are celebrating with pride the 100th anniversary of the famous old hostelry. Miss Dolan is also observing an anniversary of her own—her twentieth as a member of the housekeeping staff.

The Willard, which for 100 years has stood in its strategic location at 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave., was founded by Henry and Ed Willard. It was at one time regarded as the official White House and at another as the Japanese Legation. It was the birthplace of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and President Abraham Lincoln viewed his own inaugural parade from its balcony. Through the years, it has been rebuilt twice.

Not Experienced

IT was to the third edition of the Willard that Miss Dolan came to apply for a job in 1927 while on a visit here. Her only previous experience had been keeping house for her brother in Utica, N. Y., but she was taken on as an assistant housekeeper. She soon found that hotel housekeeping was definitely "big business" compared with running a home.

"I nearly walked myself to death the first week I was here," she says. "I thought I'd never seen such a big place or so many things to do. It was a year before I was really any good at the job. But I liked it and determined to stay and learn the work."

It was a decision she has never regretted. The job has often been hard and exacting but she's had cooperative bosses. It's had its moments of glamour, too. She arrived at the hotel too late to make welcome Buffalo Bill, Charles Dickens, and Lafayette, all Willard visitors in earlier times. But, in her role as housekeeper, she has had as guests President Calvin Coolidge, Admiral Richard E. Byrd, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Professor Einstein, and many other celebrities.

Saw Passing of Era

WHEN MISS DOLAN came to the Willard, there were still brass beds and old-fashioned rocking chairs in many rooms. Through the years, she has seen streamlined furniture replace the old things, air-conditioning installed on several floors, and the whole scheme of decoration changed numerous times. A few rooms are still completely furnished in the old manner, among them a charming bridal suite.

But despite all the remodeling, many of the Willard's housekeeping problems remain those—greatly magnified—of old-fashioned mansions.

To help do the job, she has five assistant housekeepers and 75 other employes. Several of them have been with the hotel two score years or more, and Miss Dolan says she couldn't run the place without these faithful, experienced members of the Willard "family."

Here are a few details of the means they employ to keep the Willard clean and shining:

Lobby floors are waxed once a week, but every night the waxer goes over the spots that get the most traffic. Miss Dolan says she has found one can overdo waxing but never the rubbing.

Rugs Given 'Shampoo'

CARPETS are washed regularly with a carpet-washing machine. It's not necessary to remove the rugs from the floor for this "shampooing." One machine lathers them and a "pick-up tank" follows to rinse out the soapsuds.

Fabric upholstery is "laundered" regularly in much the same way as the carpets. A special leather polish is used on leather upholstery.

Chairs and sofas are reupholstered often in the hotel's upholstery shop. Miss Dolan says those in Peacock Alley must be reupholstered twice a year, they get so much wear.

Furniture is kept glossy with a liquid polish applied about once a month. A man goes over the furniture with a wet polish rag, then with a dry one. Stubborn stains are rubbed with wood alcohol.

Ammonia is used in cleaning those massive crystal chandeliers in the Willard Room and the Crystal Room about once a month.

All stock closets are sprayed with moth crystals every month. Floors and carpet edges are also sprayed from time to time with 5 per cent DDT solution. That, in case you didn't realize it, is because Washington has a well-earned reputation as "The City of Moths!"

Daughter to Earnshaws

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Earnshaw announce the birth of a daughter on Wednesday in Columbia Hospital. Mrs. Earnshaw is the former Miss Ruth Besson of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Earnshaw's other children are Martha and Samuel Besson Earnshaw.

New Baby Should Not Claim All of Mother's Attention

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

THE presence of a new baby in the family is bound t obe exciting to the older child. Yet it is the prime cause of jealousy, for no matter how dearly the mother loves the older child her daily behavior would seem to deny that fact.

She is certain to be so busy with the baby, that her attentions to the older child are largely in the form of demands that he perform certain tasks, prohibitions of others and punishment for behavior which annoys and inconveniences her.

Gives Baby Time

NONE of these are pleasant attentions and if the mother feels justified in limiting herself to these, it is because the baby uses up so much of her time.

Mrs. B. has a good suggestion along these lines. She writes "I have a little system that may be of help to other mothers. Before sitting down to feed the baby I always send my older boy to the toilet. Then I start him playing or looking at a book, or I have him sit in his rocking chair by me and I tell him stories or rhymes. He is now learning some of his Mother Goose rhymes."

This is an effective way to prevent the child from feeling left out and forgotten while the baby is fed. The mother has to be physically busy but her mind is free to devote to the child and he will come to look upon baby's feeding time as an agreeable playtime for him.

Dispels Jealousy

MOTHERS abuse that familiar and understandable phrase, "Can't you see how busy I am?" The older child will have no cause for jealouys if he feels himself to be part of the activities of the mother and baby, and if his mother will make time to devote to play and reading with him.

Once the child's mind is freed of any suspicion that this little interloper is depriving him of his mother's love and attentions, he will be able to take the mother's necessary care of the baby in his stride.

Frauleins Resent 'Social Pass' Screening System

Munich.—To have, or not to have, a social pass has become problem No. 1 for German girls.

The social pass is a card which says in effect that a fraulein is "cleared" and may enter American establishments with her American boyfriend.

Since a recent order made all German cabarets and places of entertainment where drinks are sold, "off limits" to American personnel, there has been a rush for "social passes." More than 5,000 frauleins and in one case, a fraulein and her mother together have applied.

Nevertheless, it is a minority of German girls who seek social passes.

"Me? Ask for a social pass?" shrieked Olga, 21, and very pretty. "I think it is insulting that I have to be screened to be acceptable in any society. It is not that much of an honor to go out with an American."

Ask Anne — Your Questions On Homemaking

Do you know if it is possible to remove spots on sheets caused by medicines, especially cough medicine? The sheets have been laundered several times since the mishap. E. A. C.

Because of the great number and variety of substances used in medicines, it is rather difficult to give advice on removing medicine stains. Tarry medicines (cough medicine might come in this category) can sometimes be removed by rubbing lard or vaseline in to soften the stain, then sponging with a grease solvent like gasoline or carbon tetrachloride. The fact that the sheets have been laundered complicates the problem, however. A commercial bleach will probably help. Use one of the hydrosulfite dye-stripping agents available at drug stores, following the directions on the package.

In a letter published in your column on June 16, M. R. asked for assistance in locating additional pieces in a discontinued silver pattern. I have the addresses of two companies which specialize in discontinued silver patterns and were very helpful to me in completing my service. They are: The Silver State Exchange, Box 695, Colorado Springs, Colo., and Julius Goodman and Sons, Inc., 43 South Main st., Memphis, Tenn.

Will you please tell me how to remove scorch from an aqua cotton sports shirt? I would also like to know how to remove a yellow stain made by rubber sheeting on a waterproof mattress cover. And will you tell me how a crocheted bedspread should be washed?

D. S.

Light scorch stains can be removed from washable material with soap and water. After washing, place the article in the sun for a day or two. It may bleach out the remaining traces of stain. If it doesn't, use a solution of two tablespoons of hydrogen peroxide to a gallon of water. Test this mixture on a hidden section of the garment to be sure it will not affect the color. Then soak the stains for a half hour, or longer.

Lemon juice may be helpful in removing the stains from your waterproof mattress cover. Apply the juice to the stain and let it remain for a few minutes. Then wipe off with clear water.

Your crocheted bedspread can be easily washed in a washing machine. One spread will usually fill the washer. Use hot water and a rich laundry soapsuds. Wash for about five minutes. If necessary, use two sudsings. Rinse thoroughly in warm water. If you put the spread through the wringer, use a "light" pressure so as to avoid wrinkles. Put the spread on a curtain stretcher. Or shake it out and hang over the line with the corners square. Stretch carefully several times during the drying so the bedspread will shrink as little as possible.

$600 Hat Now Rides Hague's Pate

New York—Mayor Hague of Jersey City, who just retired, has a long life-expectancy. Recently he acquired a $600 Panama hat . . . "Quaint," was the comment of a New York blueblood when, at a party where she was seated next to Mike Todd, the producer turned to her before starting to smoke his cigar and—as prescribed by Emily Post—inquired: "Do you mind if I stick a heater in my kisser?" . . . United Artists' search for a man to become president of the company has resulted in increases for six executives of other companies. After each was approached for the presidency, he "consulted" his bosses, who then issued raises.

Dorothy Lamour

Jimmy Collins, who took a 40-year sentence from Judge Sam Leibowitz rather than gamble on leniency by revealing the whereabouts of his $350,000 Mergenthaler loot, probably has the money stashed away in Hollywood. Just before Collins was arrested he offered $300,000 to Mike Romanoff for his restaurant—$100,000 by check and $200,000 cash "under the table" . . . Dorothy Lamour, who still is under contract to Paramount, secretly signed a commitment to RKO, for $150,000 a picture, starting at the expiration of her Paramount contract . . . G. B. Shaw has written a play on J. Arthur Rank, the British film producer.

Melvyn Douglas has made a foreign-picture deal. He'll leave for France in March, to make a movie with Danielle Darrieux . . . Abbott & Costello, after listening to personal-appearance propositions from a number of agents, finally made a direct deal themselves: They'll appear at the Roxy Theater in New York this summer . . . Gov. Dewey went to a New York theater, and during the first-act intermission he entered the smoking room. A man greeted him: "How are you, Mr. Dewey?" The Governor nodded. "You don't remember me?" continued the man. Dewey told him frankly: "No, I don't." The man smiled, and told him, "I'm Waxey Gordon"—whose conviction by the then Assistant U. S. Attorney Dewey was the Governor's first springboard to national fame.

A Turkey With a Trot ... Kelly's Footwork Sweetens Lemon

By Richard L. Coe

METRO HAS SCHEDULED three promising pictures for Gene Kelly to follow the Capitol's new "Living in a Big Way," so we'll not roar too loudly at Leo the Lion for the rough job they've given him in his first film since his Navy days.

When Kelly dances he pulls this trite comedy out of its rut. He has three numbers and they're as fine dancing as ever you saw on the screen, eye-catching and witty. No one who enjoys elegant dancing should miss these turns, but the penalty for them is lethal.

How to catch the Kelly dances, which come at the beginning, middle and near the end, and at the same time avoid the rest of the picture, is the 64 buck question. You could go shopping or, if you live near enough, go home and do the dishes, though this would knock your budget. Cheapest thing to do, probably, would be to bring ear muffs, a good book and a flashlight, though whenever we've tried this they've thrown us out.

But that guy Kelly is pretty wonderful. He dances with such ease and evident pleasure you feel good just watching him. His first is a ballroom turn with Marie "The Body" McDonald, but in the second he hits his stride. This is a number with a dog and a statue, called "Fido and Me." The statue just stands there, but Kelly manages to give it a touch of his own likable personality. His last finds him doing nursery rhymes with a bunch of kids in the courtyard of a half-built house. It's rollicking fun and all ages got a bang out of it at yesterday's first show.

"LIVING IN A BIG WAY," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release produced by Pandro S. Berman. Screen play by Gregory LaCava and Irving Ravetch based on an original story by LaCava. Directed by LaCava. Dances by Gene Kelly and Stanley Donen; song, "Fido and Me," by Louis Alter and Edward Heyman. At the Capitol Theater.

THE CAST

Leo Gogarty ..... Gene Kelly
Margaud Morgan ..... Marie McDonald
D. Rutherford Morgan, Charles Winninger
Peggy Randall ..... Phyllis Thaxter
Mrs. Morgan ..... Spring Byington
Abigail Morgan ..... Jean Adair
Everett Hanover Smythe ..... Clinton Sundberg
Stuart ..... John Warburton
Schultz ..... William Phillips

Tasteless "Comedy"

Gregory La Cava, the director, wrote the screen play which he evidently intended to have the scampering quality of his "My Man Godfrey." But it completely misses fire in telling of a quick wartime marriage and what happened to it three years later. The girl's family, we're told, made a killing in profiteering and little missy's head is in the clouds. She prefers clothes, swimming pools and all that rot to a poor but honest husband.

So the story patronizes the veterans' housing problems with a shrewd old granny to clear the way for the vets and the spoiled darling's neglected husband. It's tasteless, feeble-minded and not the least bit convincing on either humorous or sociological grounds.

Miss McDonald is certainly stunning to look at, though you can hardly say she acts in a role that would stymie Garbo. Spring Byington flutters, Charles Winninger sputters and Clinton Sundberg is a tiresome butler in a household which has no other perceptible servant problems.

Yes, it's all Kelly's picture, but his numbers are few and far between. Don't say we didn't warn you.

Georgie Kaye Scores

The Capitol's stage doings are good vaudeville, long on laughs. Georgie Kaye is an uncommonly amusing monologist. He says things like, "If you have amnesia and you're not claimed in 30 days, you're yours." Silly, but the guy makes it seem fun.

The Craddocks are three pantomime-acrobats who manage to be pretty funny, too. Marjorie Knapp's smoky voice makes much of the "Robert E. Lee" and a couple of others. The bill gets off to a novel start with now-you-see-'em-now-you-don't dances by Dolinoffs and the Raya Sisters. Miffed light cues marred their first performance, but once the boys in the projection booth wake up (from "Living in a Big Way"), this will be a good opener.

The Capitol also observes the Fourth of July with a stage pageant, "Cavalcade of America," sung by the Justin Lawrie Choir and effectively spoken by WMAL's Charles Edwards.

GLORIA'S FOURTH looks like a sizzler. This holiday-conscious lass is Columbia's Gloria Henry. She's just completed starring roles for her first three pictures, "The Sport of Kings," "Keeper of the Bees" and "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back"

Ad Agencies Will Read Wrong Meaning in 'Hucksters' B. O.

HOLLYWOOD.—In "The Hucksters" our old Clark Gable is back home again—and this time to a mighty nice girl, Deborah Kerr. The most strenuous thing he's called up to do, however, is to pour a carafe of water over Sydney Greenstreet's head. He's the loving Clark: his technique is mighty smooth. But I must confess that I prefer the two-fisted Gable of "Boom Town," "Mutiny On the Bounty," and "China Seas." I didn't care for the book version of "The Hucksters," and I don't believe radio advertising agencies will like the picture any more than Hollywood liked the play "Once in a Lifetime." But gold will flow into the box-office over the country. Everybody will wan to see Gable in "The Hucksters."

Lana Turner

A New Start

I got on the "Cass Timberlane" set just in time to see Spencer Tracy do his last scene with Lana Turner. He'll soon start "State of the Union." He loves the script which Frank Capra gave him for the latter picture. When the picture is shot, the authors of the play, Lindsay and Crouse, will be on the set. The film will be rushed for release next February; so it will get plenty of circulation before the Democrats and Republicants hold their conventions. . . . Claudette Colbert has the part of Tracy's wife in that picture. But who will play "The Other Woman" is still a question. She's a feminine newspaper owner who has a lust for power and always gets her man. Does she remind you of anyone? The role is just as important as Claudette's My choice for it would be Ava Gardner, Roz Russell, or Joan Crawford. The kind of woman Roz played in "The Women" has disappeared from the screen lately. Maybe it's a good idea.

THAT MAGICAL URGE. Every man's secret ambition to be a magician blossomed out like a sunflower at the dinner meeting of Washington's amateur magicians in the Trade Winds Room at Ruby Foo's. Among the talented gents performing perplexing feats were a doctor, a former sailor, a painter and decorator and dent. They were as good or better than many professional magicos. Retired generals and naval captains sat on the sidelines, but didn't participate in this particular program. Only professionals present were Harry Baker and Oscar, the "rabbit with extrasensory perception" . . . It was quite a party in another way, too. Only 60 were expected and 117 showed up, spurring Ruby Foo chefs to some fast culinary magic. Understand the kitchen looked like a whirlwind revolving in two different directions.

"Mayor" Ciro Of Ciro's

The Jimmy Downs Trio, Manhattan favorites, will open in Merry-Land next Monday. Jimmy leads from the accordion and all the lads join in three-part harmony vocals.

THE MAYOR'S BACK. "Mayor" Ciro Gallotti, owner of Ciro's, and one high-strung and ever exciting chum, is back in town. Eight months in Florida have given him a tan rivaling that of Haille Selassie. He's dropped weight, feels fit as a fiddle and—what are we saying! Anyway, the Mayor's feeling so good that he may drag his French horn out of retirement one of these eves and treat the customers to a solo.

VITAL STATISTICS. Milton Kronheim, the beverage tycoon, founder of the "Old Grand-Dad Club", is a gramp for the fourth time. The new arrival is a cunning granddaughter yclept Patricia Lee Stahl . . . Prolific is the word for Clint Hobb's band at the Nightingale. Bassist Herbie Powell is popsy to a baby girl. Pianist "Doc" Traupel is gloating over a baby boy . . . There'll soon be cigars galore around the Metronome Room. Headwaiter Leslie Matke and his aide, Carl Zanich, are both expectant fathers . . . Stan Jones, the good-looking singing accordionist with Al Shea's crew at the China Clipper, sings "My Blue Heaven" with special zest because he's looking forward to one in November.

Dance satires, a la the Hartmans, are presented by Irene and Ray Drake in the Lotus' new revue which opened last night. Other stars are Ross and Ross, a "believe-it-or-not" pair, and tapstress Jo-Ann Summers.

FABULOUS EAR-BENDERS. "Mush! Mush!", the Jack "Jive" Schafer opus that loosens the Casino Royal's ceiling plaster every midnight. It's about polar exploration, has nothing to do with breakfast food . . . The Tunesmen's hotted-up version of "The Russian Cavalry March" at Quonset Inn" . . . If you go for "Chi Baba," you should hear the way Jack Corry's Glen Echo band chi-babas it up . . . Sammy Ferro's Tidesmen at the Neptune Room play a "Rumba Rhapsody" that starts customers to twisting and twirling in their chairs. It features Stan Mayer at the piano . . . "Gal In Calico" is still the pertest song of the year and for our money there's no one to sing it like Bob Simpson of the Old New Orleans . . . George Berg, bandleader in the Dubonnet Room, takes wonderful strolls down Memory Lane. The other night he came up with "Black Bottom," "Birth of the Blues" and "The Boy Is You and the Girl Is Me" . . . Etched in acid but no end amusing is "The Man That I Marry," exclusive number sung by the King Cole Room's Dona Mason. It was written by K. C. R. Owner Vin Gallagher, is the saccharine "The Girl That I Marry" given a reverse twist . . . Sammy Seymour's Skyliners on the Starlight Roof have a flock of new and elegant arrangements made by Bassist Hugh Barteman and Pianist Nini Baker. Among them are "It Takes Time" and "The Sunday Kind of Love."

Bernard Baruch is not the only one who finds inspiration on a Lafayette Park bench. Stephen Kisley, bandleader in the Carlton's Congo Room, perches there while working out new arrangements.

VACATIONEERING. Bob Knight, leader in the Lounge Riviera, is back from a baby vacation of five days at Virginia Beach, where he renewed his friendship with Carmen Cavallaro . . . Jimmy Lee, manager of the Good Earth, takes his family down to North River for weekend vacations. Olmsted's Leonard Mitchell is already a buttered-toast tan after hasty dashes back and forth to Virginia Beach . . . Jack Torry, trumpeter with Jimmy Nichol's Rainbow Room band, is hoping, but hard, that he'll be able to go to Maine. . . . Bob Seidell and his band are all smugly happy—because they figure that playing at the Washington Aviation Country Club is like going to a summer resort every night.

Hosiery Office Planned

Fredericksburg, Va., July 3.—The Realsilk Hosiery Co. will open a district wholesale and retail sales office here later this summer. The office will be headed by John Massaro. About 15 persons will be employed.

L. S. Bendheim Elected by Virginia VFW

Norfolk, Va., July 3 (AP).—Leroy S. Bendheim, an attorney, of 309 Mansion dr., Alexandria, Va., was elected senior vice commander of the Virginia Veterans of Foreign Wars here today.

Other officers elected at the final session of the annual VFW State encampment were Lester H. Mitchell, Roanoke, commander; Theodore C. Pilcher, Norfolk, junior vice commander; W. I. Woodell, Staunton, adjutant-quartermaster; McHenry House, Norfolk, judge advocate; Joseph A. Beil, Norfolk, chaplain, and Aubrey N. Stinnett, Covington, surgeon.

Before closing the encampment, the Virginia VFW urged payment of a $300 bonus by the State and called on Congress to create a far-flung system to investigate any mishandling of veterans' affairs by Government.

The delegates asked that the State pay the $300 bonus at the rate of $15 monthly to men who served overseas and a $200 bonus at the rate of $10 monthly to men who served in the armed forces in the United States.

As sought by the VFW, the investigative system would consist of three veterans in the localities for every 100,000 residential veterans, and a central group in Washington to receive complaints from the field investigators and decide on policy and final action. The three-man field group would include representatives of the VFW, American Legion and other organized veteran groups.

All the investigators would be on the Federal payroll and under civil service. The field men would receive annual salaries of $5000 and $10,000 and the members of the central group in Washington annual salaries of $7,000 to $12,000.

The encampment expressed appreciation for services rendered during the past year by Veterans Administration hospitals in Virginia.

CIO Lee Pressman's Words in Veto Message; Strict Labor Law Enforcement Prepared

By Drew Pearson

There've been considerable charges and counter-charges that CIO Counsel Lee Pressman ghost-wrote the hot White House veto message on the Taft-Hartley labor bill. Truth is that he had no direct hand in writing the message, though some of his words did creep in.

Inside fact is that the bristling veto message was composed by White House Assistant Clark Clifford with the help of two principal contributors, William S. Tyson, solicitor of the Labor Department, and Paul Herzog, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

However, both Tyson and Herzog wrote analyses of the labor bill for Clifford's guidance. And these were strikingly similar to an analysis written by CIO's Pressman. This is probably why certain phraseology that cropped up in the final White House draft of the labor message was attributed to Pressman.

Further inside fact is that Clifford requested the opinions of several other individuals outside the Government, including William Leiserson, former chairman of the National Labor Relations Board. However, Leiserson is plenty peeved because Clifford rejected his views—after seeking them.

A confidential memorandum Leiserson sent Clifford was only mildly critical of the Taft-Hartley bill and indorsed several provisions of the legislation, including the ban on jurisdictional strikes, as necessary steps in management-labor relations.

Leiserson tells friends that, while he couldn't indorse the whole bill, in his opinion, some parts of it were good. In any case, the former Labor Board head privately declares that some of the hot language Clifford wrote into the message should have been "toned down."

Bashful About Wives

Anyone in aviation will tell you that there's nothing bashful about Maj. Alexander de Seversky when it comes to airplane design. Repeatedly, before Pearl Harbor, he bearded and badgered Gen. Hap Arnold to build long-range pursuit planes, put armor around Flying Fortresses. When it comes to kissing his wife in public, however, Seversky belongs to the old school.

As Seversky called at the White House recently to receive the Hermon Trophy for outstanding aviation service from President Truman, news photographers learned that it was a double red-letter day for the Russian-born aircraft designer. Seversky and his lovely blonde wife were observing their twenty-second wedding anniversary. So photographers asked them to embrace.

Mrs. Seversky was willing, but not her famous husband.

"Mr. President," he demurred," "the place for a man to kiss his wife is at home, not in public."

"I don't blame you," chuckled Truman, greatly amused.

Finally Mrs. Seversky took matters into her own hands, giving her reluctant spouse a clinch that would have done justice to Hollywood.

Clogging Criminal Division

While Congress has been badgering Attorney General Clark for criminal prosecutions in Kansas City and for strict enforcement of the Taft-Hartley Act, simultaneously Congress has refused to let Clark have a new head for his criminal division.

More than three months ago Clark asked J. Edgar Hoover to pick the best prosecuting attorney he could find in the entire country to become Assistant Attorney General in charge of crime.

Accordingly, Hoover submitted several names. Tops on the list was Vincent Quinn, hard-hitting young crime prosecutor from Brooklyn.

But though Truman immediately sent Quinn's name to the Senate, it has languished before Wisconsin Senator Wiley's Judiciary Committee ever since. The Republicans, led by Ferguson of Michigan, apparently don't trust the judgment of J. Edgar Hoover.

Phantom Congressman

The six-day vanishing act of New York's Congressman Charles Buckley from the May-Garsson trial was no surprise to his House colleagues, who have known Buckley as "The Phantom" since his election to Congress 13 years ago.

For several days the Justice Department wanted the Manhattan Congressman as a witness against former Congressman May of Kentucky. However, many of his Democratic colleagues frankly admit that the Tammanyite is so rarely seen in Congress that they wouldn't recognize him.

Buckley used to keep his office locked up for long periods, occasionally sending a secretary (also paid by the taxpayers) down from New York to sort out the mail accumulated outside his door.

However, after the Merry-Go-Round exposed his nebulous maneuverings in August, 1943, Buckley opened up his office and kept a permanent clerk there to meet constituents. At that time he was chairman of the House Pensions Committee, which didn't hold one meeting during an entire session.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

Captain I. K. Wolfe and Mrs. Meyer D. Rothschild defended today's hand and the World War I flyer threw his heart queen under declarer's king and later used the seven spot on a club ruff.

He opened the eight of clubs; declarer won the ace and led a low heart. West put on the nine; the jack was finessed and it held the trick. Next dummy's heart king was laid down, and the captain, hoping a false card might bait South into a club lead, threw the heart queen.

Thinking West had no more hearts, declarer discounted a possible club ruff. Before the heart queen had fallen he had planned to enter his hand with the ace of diamonds, draw the remaining trump, and give up a spade and two diamonds tricks for game. But he saw that by returning to his hand with the club king he might be able, after drawing the last trump, to induce East to take the spade ace on the queen lead. South could discard one of his losing diamonds before the diamond ace was out.

He played the club from dummy to his king, and Ike produced the missing heart seven and ruffed. The queen of diamonds was returned, and South lost two diamonds and the spade ace in addition to the club ruff, for down one.

Let Us Be Loyal

Let us observe July the Fourth . . . Our Independence Day . . . By pledging always to preserve . . . Our democratic way . . . Let us be faithful to our Flag . . . Wherever it may fly . . . And show our deep respect for it . . . When it is passing by . . . Our country's course in peace and war . . . Depends on our consent . . . And so it is our duty to . . . Support our Government . . . It is our obligation to . . . Be loyal and sincere . . . To overcome domestic strife . . . And conquer every fear . . . Then let us join our hands and hearts . . . And put away our hates . . . To carry on the glory of . . . Our great United States.

Hooray...it's the 4th of July!

● Sound the salvoes! Order the 21-gun salute! All Hail to the Future Chief! It's his First Fourth and the rockets . . . the glory . . . the bombs bursting in air . . . are all for him, because it's HIS country, HIS freedom, HIS Day of Independence. No talk now of Dad blasting the enemy at Iwo Jima . . . or struggling through the surf at Omaha Beach . . . or breaking the Nazi Pincers at Bastogne. ("Nuts," the General said when the Germans demanded surrender . . . Remember?)

● The guns lie cold, the shattered villages sit quietly in the sun, the world relaxes in a welcome peace. There is a short prayer from the hearts of all of us for the men who sleep in heroes' graves . . . a reverent moment of silence in eternal thanks to the maimed who have a Nation's Gratitude.

● But what about this Little Man . . . who gazes upon his Brave New World and the glory that surrounds him? For him, it's a happy day . . . full of promise and home and challenge. His victory is the victory of Lexington and Bunker Hill . . . Corregidor and The Alamo . . . the Battles of the Marne and St. Lo.

● Because Great Men before him fought valiantly for freedom, he can grow to manhood without fear and without suppression of those Inalienable Rights which are carved deeply into the destiny of these United States. "Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness" . . . in those seven words lies his birthright, and no man can deny it to him.

● To him, and to all of us, America's Day of Independence is a day of celebration and of rejoicing that our country stands free and strong. Let us make this a Happy Holiday, a day to commemorate America's greatness. And let us resolve to share our greatness and freedom with all the world . . . to give the downtrodden and the defeated new hope and inspiration through our own living example of Democracy in Action.

● To the Youngest Generation, The Hecht Company joins with all our citizens in saying: We salute you as the Standard Bearer of a better world. And we welcome you to a country irrevocably endowed by our Forefathers with Freedom and Liberty. May you always keep it so.
